GANG CHIEF TO BE DEPORTED

SUPREME COURT REVISES EXPERT SUIT OPINION

Denies Rehearing of Tribune Case.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Illinois Supreme court denied a rehearing yesterday in the expert fee suit, by which THE TRIBUNE sought to recover $1,732,279 paid to three real estate appraisers from the city treasury in a little more than a year.

At the same time the court modified its opinion, handed down last Oct. 25, by means of deletions, additions, and substitutions of text. These are said by Howard Ellis of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, representing THE TRIBUNE, to be important. Accordingly, the lawyers said they intended to ask the court to vacate its order.

Original Opinion Recalled.

In its original opinion the court held that no conspiracy was shown to cheat and defraud the taxpayers, as charged. It therefore relieved Mayor Thompson and former City Controller Harding of any obligation to repay the expert fees to the city treasury. That phase of the decision was not changed.

The expert fees were inaugurated in connection with appraisal of land to be taken for the widening of some major streets. For these improvements on Ogden, Western, and Ashland avenues and Robey and South Water streets bond issues totaling $28,400,000 were approved by the voters on Nov. 4, 1919.

The City Council Order.

Then followed on Feb. 5, 1920, an order of the city council finance committee to employ real estate experts. The first part of the order authorized the payment of experts at one per cent of the property valued for each expert, if the approval therefor were first obtained from the council committee. The latter part of the order authorized payment at $50 a day each.

The Supreme court in its original opinion said on this point, which it deleted from its modified opinion yesterday: "The insertion of the words 'at $50 a day' after the names of Waller, Lyons, and Merigold [three real estate experts] in the last proviso of the order must have been through an inadvertence in following the names of special counsel 'at $50 per day.'"

Change in Court's Opinion.

A hasty reading of the modified opinion by one unacquainted with law gives the impression that the Supreme court now says that it does not believe that the part of the order which provided that the experts should be paid $50 a day was an inadvertence. But on the percentage basis the experts received $577,426.11 each, or a total of $1,732,279.23.

In the lower court, from which the case was appealed, Judge Hugo Friend decided that all of those fees, plus interest, or $2,245,604.32, should be returned to the city treasury.

After the order providing for the payment of the experts was adopted the city council passed its annual appropriation bill. Specifically it appropriated $235,000 for expert fees and set up other appropriations out of the bond fund which it was provided should not be expended without subsequent approval of the city council.

The Tribune's Charge.

It was out of these "blanket appropriations" that a large part of the real estate expert fees was paid. It was charged by THE TRIBUNE that fees paid from the blanket appropriations were illegal and wrongful.

In its original opinion the Supreme court asserted that a bond ordinance approved by the electorate was an appropriation for the purposes set forth in the ordinance. The court then said:

"This court has repeatedly held that the passage of a bond ordinance by the city council and its approval by a vote of the people constitute an appropriation of the amount of such bonds as a special fund for the purposes specified in the same and render any further appropriation of such amounts by the city council unnecessary." That declaration and some more reasoning on the same point are omitted from the modified opinion.

Another Modification Made.

The first opinion quoted sections 2 and 3 of article 7 and section 1 of article 9 of the cities and villages act, which prohibits the city council from making appropriations, except in the first quarter of its fiscal year, except where the appropriation is passed by a two-thirds vote and subsequently approved by a majority of the voters.

In the original opinion the Supreme court said "the above sections, however, have no application to bond issues for special purpose authorized by the people themselves."

That and more reasoning along that

JOHN G. SHEDD ESTATE CLOSED; SET AT $19,912,837

The estate of the late John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Co. and philanthropist, was closed yesterday after four years of probate before George B. Weiss, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. The final accounting gave the value of the estate as $19,912,837. The estate paid $1,115,981 in federal inheritance taxes and $1,610,920 in state inheritance taxes. The greater portion of the estate was in stock of the merchandise company.

Mr. Shedd died on Oct. 22, 1926. Most of the estate was left to his daughters, Mrs. Helen M. Shedd Reed and Mrs. Laura A. Shedd Schweppe. A year before his death Mr. Shedd agreed to make a gift of $3,000,000 to the south park board for the creation of the Shedd aquarium. The accounting reveals that of this sum $100,000 was paid by Mr. Shedd before his death and the remainder through the trustees.

The tractor works have been working on the order since September, the company last year exported 1,300 tractors to Russia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Approval of the application of Station W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station, to broadcast with the maximum power of 50,000 watts, on the grounds that it has the necessary talent to enable it "to consistently maintain well diversified and highly acceptable programs," was recommended to the federal radio commission today by its chief examiner, Ellis A. Yost.

At the same time Mr. Yost recommended that the application of station WCFL, operated by the Chicago Federation of Labor, seeking to oust W-G-N from its assignment and to increase its power to the maximum, be denied. Two other Chicago stations, WMAQ of the Daily News and WBBM of the Columbia Broadcasting system, which sought increases in power to 50,000 watts, were favorably recommended by the examiner.

Makes Blanket Recommendations.

In his report, Mr. Yost urged that the commission amend its present restrictive order, limiting the number of 50,000 watt stations, to permit all stations assigned to cleared channels to use the maximum power. This was pursuant to the recommendation made by Louis G. Caldwell, W-G-N counsel, and other counsel appearing before the examiner during the five weeks of hearings of the applications of 24 stations for the maximum power.

"The greatest single contribution the federal radio commission can make to the listening public throughout America is to permit all cleared channel stations to operate with a power output of 50,000 watts," Mr. Yost declared. "It is a waste of potential broadcasting resources to limit cleared channel stations to less than 50,000 watts."

Means Improved Service.

He held that the American people are entitled to the "greatly improved and additional radio broadcasting reception which would inevitably result from granting all cleared channel station applicants authority to use fifty kilowatts [50,000 watts]."

The report, which supports the engineering theory that high power is necessary to provide service to listeners remote from radio stations and on the farms, covers individually each of the 24 applications upon which hearings were held. In the cases of three stations, besides WCFL, adverse action is recommended because they are not in the cleared channel category. These three stations are WTMJ, Milwaukee; WWJ, Detroit, and WREC, Memphis, all "regional" stations, limited in night power to 1,000 watts.

Means Forty More Stations.

With only ten stations in the country now licensed for the maximum power of 50,000 watts, Mr. Yost's recommendation, if adopted, will mean that all forty of the cleared channels, upon which more than fifty stations are licensed, may have stations of this output. He said there is no apparent technical, scientific or economic reason for limiting cleared channel station applicants to the use of less than 50,000 watts.

The commission last summer adopted an order limiting to twenty the number of cleared channels which would be permitted to accommodate stations of 50,000 watts. Thus it provided that only four of the eight cleared channels assigned each of the five radio zones into which the country is divided would have such stations.

By modifying its order to authorize all stations on cleared channels to operate with 50,000 watts, the commission "would make available additional and improved radio broadcasting reception to many millions of rural and metropolitan listeners throughout America," Mr. Yost contended.

Treats All Alike.

Mr. Yost stated he had made a blanket recommendation in the nature of a preliminary report because of the inherent difficulty in choosing between stations so well qualified for high power and service to the public. Should the commission, however, decide to stick to its existing restrictive order, he added, "This report will be followed by a supplemental report in which the examiner will make a choice between applicants."

In the case of W-G-N, Mr. Yost pointed out that the station with its present power serves a population of 6,000,000. With an increase in power to 50,000 watts, he added, it would be enabled to serve an area of from 300 to 400 square miles at night, with a population of approximately 8,000,000.

ORDER ALL LAND REVALUED; TAX BILLS TO DROP

Situation Desperate, Reviewers Say.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Cook county taxes on land, minus buildings, payable next April 1, are to be reduced substantially.

The board of review decided unanimously at 4 o'clock yesterday to revalue and reassess all real estate, excepting buildings, in the county, so that all of the savings decreed will be obtainable in the next general tax bills. The reviewers, William H. Weber, Edward R. Litsinger, and Charles V. Barrett, indicate clearly in their official statement that the reassessment means a cut.

Forecast Amount of Cut.

The amount of the reduction cannot be forecast accurately, but the general opinion of the reviewers is shown by their statement. After a preliminary survey by the board's real estate experts, the reviewers say that land values have decreased from 10 to 50 per cent. They also hazard the opinion that tax spenders could reduce their budgets 25 per cent. So an average cut of 25 per cent may be the eventual result.

The reason for the reassessment is set forth by the reviewers. With no action by the reviewers, city tax bills payable April 1 will be more than 20 per cent higher than those paid last July 10.

Many persons were not able to pay their last tax bills. Of the county's tax bill, totaling $233,162,829, there was $51,748,210 unpaid on Dec. 4. These conditions the Board of Review calls "desperate." The board believes that the present land assessments were made at the peak of real estate values.

Will Stop All Building.

"Such an increase," reads the reviewers' statement, "will not only make this year's taxes nearly confiscatory, but will stop all new building and practically kill the real estate business in this county."

As to the methods to be employed, the reviewers announced they will take one township at a time, starting with the farm land outside of the city and working towards its center. The land committee of the board, with the help of real estate authorities throughout the county, will gather all of the facts readily obtainable regarding land values and real estate conditions.

The reassessment is to be without added cost to the taxpayers generally or the property owners individually. Lawyers and appraisal concerns will be entirely unnecessary to obtain fair treatment for property owners, according to the board. The revaluation will be made as of April 1, 1929.

Will Be on Land Only.

The reassessment made by order of the state tax commission on all real estate will be reduced on land only, although the values on buildings are too high in the opinion of the reviewers. They have notified the board of assessors that they must revalue the buildings for 1930 taxes, payable Dec. 1, next, under threat that if they fail or refuse, the reviewers themselves will perform the task.

From the reviewers' action, it seems apparent that they will reduce land valuations between 20 and 30 per cent on the average, one township perhaps less and another more. They believe they can finish the job so that 1929 taxes may be collected on April 1 as the new law requires.

This prospective action will necessarily force the tax spenders, the city corporate authorities, county board, drainage trustees, board of education, park boards, and other local governments to reduce their appropriations

Volpe Arrested on Warrant of Secretary Doak

Tony ["Mops"] Volpe, ranked as second in importance to Al Capone on the Chicago crime commission's list of public enemies, was arrested last night at his home, 1500 North Menard avenue, by immigration bureau agents who served a warrant issued by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak.

The arrest means that Volpe, within two weeks, will be sent to Ellis Island, there to be put aboard a ship bound for Italy. Issuance of the warrant, according to Shirley D. Smith, head of the local immigration bureau, meant that the government has sufficient evidence to deport the gangster.

No Delays for Him.

"Chicago will be rid of Volpe for good," commented one government agent. "There are no pardons or paroles or time off for good behavior when a man is deported. Al Capone will have to get along without his chief lieutenant in the future."

Volpe was held at the detective bureau in $10,000 bonds. He will be given a brief hearing before immigration bureau officials, but the conclusion is foregone that he will be ordered deported, it was said unofficially. Warrants in such cases are never issued by the secretary of labor until positive evidence for deportation is possessed, it was said.

The gangsters may have recourse, through attorneys, to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, but this plea can be heard only by the immigration bureau. There is no known remedy at law, it was said, by which Volpe may seek to remain in this country.

History of His Case.

Volpe is 40 years old. When he was 15, he first entered America. He was naturalized a few years later in Chicago, but later the government found that he had made false statements in his application for citizenship and his papers were revoked.

In 1925, Volpe pleaded guilty to a plot to counterfeit $1,000,000 worth of war savings stamps and he was sentenced to jail. It is upon this record that the government bases its decision that Volpe is an undesirable citizen and subject to deportation.

The arrest was the first one in a drive, announced by Secretary Doak several days ago, to exile gangsters from large cities. It was said that evidence against a number of other leading gangsters is possessed by the government and other warrants are to be issued in the near future.

Guziks on Trial Today.

The general drive against hoodlums in the city was marked yesterday by a number of arraignments, followed by continuances. Today will see an important test of the vagrancy drive when Jack and Harry Guzik, important members of the Capone syndicate, are put on trial before Judge Edgar A. Jonas. Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and James Brown will prosecute the case.

Because of the Guzik hearing, which will probably take several days, a number of other vagrancy cases were continued. The case against Edward [Spike] O'Donnell was continued to Jan. 26. The case against James Belcastro was continued to Jan. 29.

Ralph Capone will be tried on vagrancy charges Jan. 21. The brother of Al, through his attorneys, is now appealing a three year sentence in the federal court for violation of the income tax laws.

Capone Fails to Appear.

The much heralded trial of Al Capone for contempt of court, before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson evolved into a perfunctory hearing at which the man listed as the head of all public enemies in Chicago did not appear.

Capone didn't appear, his attorneys explained, because the charge was a misdemeanor and not a felony. After some consultation between attorneys for the government and defense, Jan.

HOUSE BLOCKS HOOVER'S PLAN OF DROUGHT AID

16 Republicans Go Democratic.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—President Hoover met a rebuff today when the house refused to suspend its rules and pass the administration drought relief loan bill.

While a majority of the house voted in the affirmative, the total was 38 votes short of the two-thirds required under the suspension of rules procedure, which was resorted to in an effort to prevent the offering of amendments.

Defeated in this move, administration leaders now will be forced to allow consideration of the bill in the house under a special rule, which will permit amendments to be offered. Opponents of the administration expressed confidence that they will be able to tear the bill to pieces. Hoover supporters admitted tonight they are fearful of the outcome.

Two Points at Issue.

The two chief points at issue are the amount of the appropriation, which is $60,000,000 in the bill as passed by the senate and $20,000,000 in the administration measure approved by the house committee on agriculture, and the question of loans for food, which are authorized in the senate bill in addition to loans for seed, cattle, feed, and fertilizer for drought sufferers.

The other of the two principal Hoover relief measures, the emergency construction bill to aid unemployment, encountered obstacles in the senate when objection was made to the agreement reached by conferees of the senate and house on Saturday in advance of the formal appointment of the senate conferees.

The senate, after a sharp debate, permitted the conferees to be named without instructions after Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] had promised that they would not agree definitely to the restoration of the house section giving the President discretionary authority, and to the elimination of the Couzens amendment requiring government contractors to employ local labor and pay the highest prevailing wages.

Senate to Vote on Questions.

This means that when the conferees submit their report to the senate, probably tomorrow, separate votes may be taken on these two controversial questions. If the senate insists upon elimination of all discretionary authority to the President and acceptance of the Couzens amendment a deadlock with the house may delay final enactment of the legislation.

Senator Dill [Dem., Wash.] offered a motion to definitely instruct the conferees to insist on retention of the authority restrictions, but withdrew it after Senator Jones promised to let the question come to a vote.

La Follette Asks Inquiry.

Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.] in the course of the debate called for a congressional inquiry, independent of the Hoover recommendations, into the need for direct federal aid to the unemployed.

If it should be shown that relief was needed, he said, congress should of its own initiative make the necessary appropriation. He added that he favored the bill introduced by Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] providing 100 million dollars to help the cities and states care for their unemployed.

The vote in the house, on a motion by Representative Gilbert N. Haugen [Rep., Ia.], chairman of the committee on agriculture, to suspend the rules and pass the senate drought relief bill, amended by the substitution of the house committee bill, was 205 to 159. A two-thirds total necessary for favorable action on the motion would have been 243.

16 Republicans Desert.

The Democrats lined up almost solidly against the motion, only one, Representative Loring M. Black [N. Y.] voting with the Republicans in the affirmative.

Sixteen Republicans, including the Wisconsin radicals, joined with the Democrats in opposition to the motion. Representative Paul Kvale [Minn.], the only Farmer-Labor member, also voted in the negative.

Normal Buying Will Help Put Men Back to Work

From present indications, it would appear that business already has reached its low points in many lines. The movement now seems to be sidewise. All that is needed to push this sidewise movement into an upward movement is normal buying for normal needs on the part of every one who is able.

The job of making conditions better for everybody rests on the shoulders of those whose incomes have remained undisturbed. If this group, which consists of by far the largest percentage of the population, will increase its expenditures up to normal levels, the upturn will be started. Once the upturn is clearly defined, business will move rapidly forward. What is needed now is the normal buying support of every one who is able to provide it.

Campbell [Ia.], Victor Christgau [Minn.], Scott Leavitt [Mont.], J. D. Craddock and Charles Finley [Ky.], Milton C. Garber [Okla.], W. P. Lambertson [Kas.], Menalcus Lankford, J. A. Garber, and J. C. Shaffer [Va.].

The three Virginia Republicans, who won their seats two years ago when Hoover carried their state, swung against him as a result of failure of the administration to include in the bill provisions recommended by the Virginia drought relief committee.

"Coöperation" Breaks Down.

The administration house leaders had counted on the support of a considerable group of Democrats on the basis of the coöperation pledge given by spokesmen for the minority party.

The Democrats justified their opposition on the theory that the suspension of the rules procedure is a "gag rule."

Representative John Garner [Dem., Tex.], minority leaders, in a vehement speech asserted the issue was "whether you will permit the house to give proper consideration to an important piece of legislation."

Mr. Garner charged that the Republicans, by opposing loans for food, are preventing relief for "starving children."

He advanced a plan for a five per cent increase in the surtax on individual net incomes over $100,000, which he estimated would yield 108 millions.

"Every man and woman in this country," he said, "who has an income in excess of $100,000 ought to be willing, at a time like this, to contribute something to help the poor."

Aswell Demands $60,000,000.

Representative James B. Aswell [Dem., La.], denounced the suspension of the rules proposal as a "nefarious effort" to defeat his bill, which is similar to the $60,000,000 senate bill.

Defenders of the administration program included Representative John Q. Tilson [Rep., Conn.], majority leader; Representative Fred S. Purnell [Rep., Ind.], and Representative Haugen.

Representative Tilson asserted that the Red Cross and similar agencies can take care of those in need of food in the drought areas. Representative Purnell expressed opposition to the establishment of the principle of purchase of food for farmers with government funds.

"If we purchase food for farmers, through loans or otherwise," said Mr. Purnell, "there is no reason why we should not loan money to every working man who is in need of food."

Under the terms of both the senate and house bills the loans would be made to farmers in the drought areas under regulations prescribed by the secretary of agriculture, security to be given in the form of a first lien on all crops grown during 1931.

Means Further Delay.

As a result of today's failure to pass the bill, action in the house now will be deferred until Thursday or later. Meetings of the committees on agriculture and rules will be held in the meantime to decide upon the procedure.

The house passed under a suspension of the rules one of the minor bills in the Hoover unemployment relief program. This was a bill reported from the judiciary committee to make it possible for the government to take possession of building sites before the completion of condemnation proceedings. This bill, together with one from the committee on public buildings and grounds, which was not reached today, are designed to facilitate a cutting of red tape which has impeded the public buildings construction program.

WATSON SPEAKS UP FOR HOOVER AND IS RAZZED

Republicans Join in Heckling Him.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, majority leader, set forth today on a speech which was to defend the President and still not offend the senate.

He Sidesteps Clumsily.

And, pinned down to a "yes or no" answer concerning his opinion of the President's now famous "playing politics" statement, he sidestepped.

The close of the day's session found Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr. [Rep., Wis.], undismayed by a failure earlier in the day to call up his pending resolution of censure, holding the floor with a speech of censure for the administration's policy toward relief legislation.

Starts Out Bravely.

He denied that the coöperation program had failed. He justified the President's acceptance of the budget's $25,000,000 for drought relief on the ground that John Barton Payne, Red Cross head, had said that the Red Cross could take care of all personal distress due to the drought.

"Nobody has the right to abuse the President because he limited the appropriation to $25,000,000, he declared, pounding the desk, "and yet language has been indulged in here toward the President as if he were a culprit.

"The committee on agriculture presided over by our ever faithful friend, in whose intelligence and loyalty we have supreme confidence," Senator Watson recalled, "increased the appropriation to $60,000,000."

The Faithful Friend Rebels.

"It is not fair to say that," he retorted. "Two weeks before action was taken the department of agriculture wanted $60,000,000. I believed the President knew what his right hand was doing. Then two days before the matter came up the director of the budget submitted an appropriation of $25,000,000, which I assumed to be the later attitude of the President. The committee frowned on the $25,000,000 and unanimously adopted the $60,000,000."

Senator Watson hastily passed on to something else. He said that Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's employment committee, had stated that local authorities were able to handle the unemployment situation without federal aid.

Caraway Wields the Lash.

Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.] lassoed him and dragged him back to drought relief again. The talk ran warm concerning doles.

"Until I am convinced that local authorities cannot aid these people and prevent death I am not willing to go further," said Senator Watson.

"O, of course," Senator Caraway came back, "the senator will vote an appropriation to hang wreaths on their tombs, and that is as soon as he will act."

"Herbert Hoover is as familiar with taking care of unemployment as any man anywhere," was the next step for Senator Watson.

"Does the senator refer to the statement which the President issued on the eighth of last March?" inquired Senator La Follette, "that within sixty days unemployment would be so substantially reduced that it would no longer be a serious problem?"

The majority leader sidled around that one.

"I merely wished to suggest that the President is not the infallible prophet the Indiana senator suggested he was," Senator La Follette jabbed the barb a little deeper.

Caraway Reënters Ring.

Senator Caraway wanted to know the reason for this lecture, if coöperation was going forward. They had it back and forth, then:

CARAWAY—I am sure the senator's speech is calculated to create harmony.

WATSON—I hope it is.

CARAWAY—I suspect the senator really thinks so.

WATSON—Are not my friends and I closer together than we were when I started?

CARAWAY—No. I was going down the center aisle when the senator started.

WATSON—Now, senators, of course this is all in good part. This ought to be an era of good feeling among us.

"If there is going to be coöperation, it should not all be required of one side," he declared, "but of the President as well."

Watson Tries Wriggle.

WATSON—I am willing to let the senator have his views on that question.

McKELLAR—Does not the senator have that view?

WATSON—I am not going to quarrel with the senator's view on that question.

McKELLAR—Does not the senator hold that view?

WATSON—I am not going to quarrel with the senator's view on that question, because I deprecate and deplore crimination and recrimination anywhere at this time. I believe the way to coöperate is to coöperate and the way to harmonize is to beat down the bandying of epithets by the getting together of those who believe in a common purpose and are animated by a common patriotism.

He was no sooner down than Senator La Follette was up, questioning him, hammering at him, criticizing the attitude of Col. Woods' committee.

"The policy of this administration," said Senator La Follette, "has been to minimize the economic results of the depression, to play down the number of unemployed, and I for one believe that the time has come to stop trying to talk the people of the United States out of this situation. The time has come for the senate and the congress to ascertain the facts concerning the situation and to act accordingly."

Calls for Woods' Report.

"The senate asked Col. Woods for his report," he went on. "Although that report, according to the press, was submitted to the President many weeks ago, it has not been forthcoming and is not now available. I do not care to make any insinuation upon that statement of fact, but I feel that such information be made available for the senate and for the people."

In an attempt to disprove Col. Woods' reported claim that local authorities could cope with the situation, Senator La Follette read from several dozen telegrams received by President Green of the American Federation of Labor from heads of local labor organizations. Nearly all spoke of pressing need and many thought federal aid would be necessary.

"If this had been a physical earthquake there would have been no question about the federal government coming forward," he declared, "but because these millions of unemployed are the victims of an economic earthquake caused by the bankruptcy in leadership of American industry, finance, and government, we are told that any suggestion that the federal government should consider whether or not relief is needed is to enter upon a field of dole."

All this verbal meandering was aggravating to Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho].

DAVIS, BROWN SPENT OVER MILLION, NYE SAYS REPORT SHOWS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Chairman Nye of the senate campaign funds committee said today investigation had disclosed expenditures of "well over $1,000,000" in behalf of the Davis-Brown primary and Davis election campaigns in Pennsylvania.

Nye called a meeting of his committee for Thursday or Friday to consider further reports from its investigators in Pennsylvania and to examine additional witnesses, including Samuel Vauclain, treasurer of the state Davis-Brown campaign committee.

The North Dakotan said the committee had complete reports on expenditures from all counties except Allegheny and Philadelphia.

2 BANDITS SLAIN BY POLICEMAN IN LOOP TEAROOM

Fall Into Trap Set After Earlier Robbery.

Policeman Raymond Schlagel faced two armed robbers yesterday a few seconds apart. He killed both. They were attempting the holdup of the Gold tea room, 120 South Clark street, in the heart of the downtown district, at 2:10 p. m. Each bandit had his pistol pointed at the policeman as the policeman fired.

One of the bodies was identified as that of Arthur Schuster, 20 years old, unemployed, son of Frank Schuster, 4119 Fletcher street, a furniture repair man. He had participated in the robbery of the same restaurant on Dec. 4, when $306 was taken with ease.

The other bandit was identified last night as Henry Grisch, 21 years old, 1745 Armitage avenue. Identification was made at the county morgue by the father, Michael, 73 years old. According to Mr. Grisch his son had chummed with Schuster for years. Recently Henry had been out of work, he said.

Bandits Caught in Trap.

The bandits walked into a trap set for them by Capt. Willard Malone of the central station. He had stationed Schlagel, an expert marksman, there expecting that another robbery would be attempted because the other had been successful. He said he had selected Schlagel in the belief that Schlagel was a man of courage and good judgment, and both he and Chief of Detectives John Norton complimented the policeman on the exercise of those qualities.

"We are recommending him for an award of $300 extra compensation," said Chief Norton, "and I want him assigned to the detective bureau."

Waiting for Ten Days.

Schlagel was seated in the kitchen, the entrance of which is a step or two lower the stairway than the door to the dining room. He had been there ten days.

Mrs. Ethel Rabner, 4850 Wrightwood avenue, a waitress at the Cliff, and her husband, Raymond, were standing in the hallway when the bandits passed, revolvers in hands. Mrs. Rabner recognized Schuster as one of the bandits of Dec. 5. She pushed her husband into the kitchen, following him. Rabner announced, "Looks like a stickup." Schlagel's gun was in readiness. A man, gun first, pushed the door open.

Schlagel's first thought was "Is he a police officer?" That natural hesitancy might have cost his life, for the bandit had a pistol pointed at him and only surprise kept him from firing. Schlagel decided, and fired, sending four bullets into the robber. It was enough.

Meanwhile the other bandit, Schuster, had gone inside the dining room. He at the sound of the shots turned back, gun aimed at Schlagel through the door, which remained open because the body blocked its closing swing. One shot by Schlagel ended Schuster's life and the attempted robbery. There was $15 then in the cash register.

Letter from Girl in Pocket.

A letter in Schuster's pocket from "Laura"—Loretta Mack, 5743 School street—told of her love for "Art" and of her hopes when they were married. She sent hopes he would soon get a good job. She later appeared at the county morgue and identified Schuster's body. She said they were engaged.

At the Schuster home the parents said they had no intimation their son was a bandit.

Mrs. Margaret Schlagel, wife of the policeman, was at home in their new bungalow at 3762 Osceola avenue when a reporter called. For a moment she was fearful of tragic news, for she knew of her husband's mission. No telephone has yet been installed and Schlagel couldn't call to tell her of his encounter.

"You don't have to tell me my husband is a hero," she said when informed of what had happened. "How could I be married to him for six years without knowing he is brave, intelligent, careful, and considerate?"

Get Death Penalty Jury in Hour; Youth on Trial

OFFERS MEXICO A NEW SANTA

Quetzalcoatl, ancient god of pagan Mexico, who was advocated by a minister of education as the Mexican Santa Claus. Opposition by the churches cost the cabinet man his job.

SANTA VICTOR IN MEXICO AGAINST PLUMED SERPENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15.—A scheme to oust Santa Claus from his venerable position as patron saint of the winter holidays in favor of the old Aztec sun god Quetzalcoatl, mythologically represented as a feathered serpent, was declared today to have been one of the reasons for the political demotion of Carlos Trejo y Lerdo de Trejada from his post of acting minister of education. He was appointed to the relatively obscure position of governor of Lower California.

Lerdo de Trejada, who is a member of the nationalist party, only headed the department of education for two months after the resignation of Aaron Saenz, but this was long enough for him to declare a zealous and patriotic war against Santa Claus and Santos Reyes (the Three Wise Men from the East).

Since these are only myths at best, the department of education reasoned, why not have a native myth? And, so saying, they dug up Quetzalcoatl, out of the debris of the fallen Aztec empire, and dusted him off for a new lease on life as purveyor os toys to the boys and girls of Mexico.

A Nationalist artist even fixed up a modernized Quetzalcoatl Santa Claus. It is fearfully and wonderfully made, an apparition of feathers, flowing Mother Hubbard skirt, Van Dyke beard and Chinese mustache.

When the first propaganda appeared the churches, both Protestant and Catholic, rose up in ire and declared the substitution of Quetzalcoatl for the Wise Men was an unheard of sacrilege. The press rallied to this view.

This crusade was waged with ardor until Dr. José Manuel Puiz Cassaurano, who was driven out of his job as administrative head of the federal district by the radical wing of the national revolutionary party, was appointed minister of education and Lerdo de Trejada, chief crusader for Quetzalcoatl, was packed off.

BANKER WILL PLEAD TO 8 MILLION DOLLAR DEFALCATION TODAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The plea of Gilbert H. Beesemyer to alleged defalcations of nearly $8,000,000 from the Guaranty Building and Loan association was delayed until tomorrow by the Superior court, which instructed Beesmeyer today to obtain an attorney.

The courtroom was jammed as Beesemyer appeared for arraignment. District Attorney Buron Fitts had announced the banker planned to plead guilty. When the court asked him what his plea was to the grand jury indictment, charging ten counts of embezzlement, Bessemyer asked for "several days to study the case."

The court told him that it could not grant his wish and asked him where his attorney was. Beesemyer said he had none and wanted none. He was told the court preferred all defendants to have legal counsel and was ordered to appear for plea tomorrow, either with an attorney or the public defender. The grand jury also convenes tomorrow.

COUNCIL ADOPTS SUBWAY PLANS OVER PROTESTS

Court Battle by Property Owners Expected.

The ordinance for the construction of a subway in State street was submitted to the city council yesterday and adopted over the protests of a large number of State street property owners who have urged changes in the plans to make the subway "suitable to the public needs." It was said that as a result of the council's action property owners will start court battle over the proceedings. The property owners are expected to pay 65 per cent of the cost. Their expected action may delay subway construction for a year.

The vote in the council was 40 to 1, Ald. John Coughlin [1st] alone objecting against hasty action. The vote was taken without any discussion of the ordinance, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] merely stating that the committee on local transportation and judiciary and special assessments had recommended its passage at a morning session. A few minutes after the vote the ordinance was signed by Mayor Thompson.

Coughlin Makes Protest.

In the morning session Ald. Coughlin charged that the property owners had not been given proper consideration in the preparation of the plans. He also charged that he, as alderman of the ward through which a large section of the subway will run, had not been consulted.

Then Ald. Coughlin asked for a period of at least ten days to give an opportunity for the property owners and the board of local improvements to come to an agreement on the plans. Ald. John A. Massen [48th] sided with Ald. Coughlin, stating that if the committees acted hastily the property owners could charge in court that the ordinance had been "railroaded" through the council. Their arguments were unavailing.

"We will continue our work to find out if we can do anything further," said William B. Hale, attorney for the State street property owners' committee, which is headed by John T. Pirie. "A meeting of the property owners will be called in a day or two to consider the situation and decide what our next move will be. A petition is being circulated and our action may depend on that."

Attorneys have pointed out that if 51 per cent of the property owners, who will be assessed for the subway, should sign a petition of objection and go to court the subway proceedings would be held over for a year. A petition may be filed, according to reports, as a result of the council's action in rejecting the property owners' pleas.

What Ordinance Provides.

The ordinance, the first subway ordinance adopted in Chicago, provides for the construction of a four track subway in State street between 18th street and Chicago avenue. A mezzanine floor will be constructed between Congress and Lake streets.

The estimated cost is $44,500,063, of which the property owners will be asked to pay 65 per cent or $26,745,000. The amount to be paid out of the transit fund—on public benefits on the subway and the cost of the tunnel under the river—will be, if the court approve the contemplated assessment roll, $17,755,000.

The assessment roll, according to Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, is nearly complete and will be filed within a few days. This roll will show the property owners who will be called on to pay the special assessment. A petition for spreading the roll will be filed in court today, according to Faherty.

Ask Changes in Plans.

In public hearings on the ordinance last Friday and Saturday the State street property owners asked the aldermen to send the ordinance back to the board of local improvements so that changes could be made in the plans. In general, they asked for savings in cost, with the mezzanine concourse made longer and the bore not placed so deep in the ground. The saving by changing the method of construction has been estimated at $4,000,000.

In asking that the ordinance be sent back to the board of local improvements the property owners in a statement said in part: "The statutes do not allow an amendment of the ordinance by the city council, and in our opinion the ordinance requires extensive amendment in order that it be made suitable to the public needs, be constructed at a reasonable cost, and be appropriate for the use of the abutting property owners."

Further consideration of the requested changes was shut off, however, in the committee meeting yesterday morning.

ATTACKS FINANCIAL PROPOSAL OFFERED IN TRANSIT MERGER

In a letter to holders of Chicago Railways company participation certificates, series one, Orville E. Babcock, chairman of the protective committee for those certificates, yesterday attacked the proposed financial plan offered for the consolidation of the surface and elevated lines.

"The allotment proposed for all classes of participation certificates is $3,372,232 of common stock class B (134,889 shares, nominal value $25 per share), earnings on which on the basis of last year's results are calculated at 1.39 per cent or a total of $46,874," the letter stated. "This compares with actual earnings of over $1,584,000 accruing for the certificates last year, under the provisions of the 1907 plan. On the other hand, securities entitled to large earnings, in effect mainly the earnings of Chicago Railways company, are to be given to holders of securities of the elevated for which in the past no earnings have been available."

ALDERMEN RAP PASCHEN; DELAY APPROPRIATION

Building Commissioner Paschen was criticized during the budget session of the council finance committee last night for the delay in getting the new building code before the council. To speed the work the committee agreed not to appropriate money to reimburse Paschen for what he has spent of his own money for work on the code until the entire ordinance is in the hands of the aldermen. The committee also took out $1,500 that Paschen requested for the maintenance of his automobile.

"By striking out the appropriation of $25,000 for the new code, $10,000 of which is to reimburse Paschen, we may get some action," said Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [42d]. "We'll send him a message that if the new code is in here before we finish the budget we may give him the appropriation, but otherwise he won't get any money."

After a tentative survey of five departments the committee added a total of $619,417 to the expenditures allowed for 1930 although the aldermen will have to cut 1931 appropriations $1,000,000 under this year's. The police, fire, building, boiler inspection and gas and electrical departments gained from the slight increases, although the committee did not add any new jobs to those departments. The request of Fire Commissioner Goodrich for 1,272 new men was refused.

FAMILY DICKERS FOR RELEASE OF ALKY DEALER

Negotiations were reported being carried on last night for the release of James Ward, reputed alcohol distributor of Chicago Heights, who was kidnaped by four men from his home Saturday evening. Ransom of $50,000 has been demanded, it is said.

Secrecy, however, on the part of the family guarded against any information being divulged bearing on Ward's possible release. Even Capt. John Costabile of the Chicago Heights force, and other authorities were denied confirmation of the negotiations reports. Previously members of the family conferred almost hourly with the police.

Ward, considered among the affluent bootleggers of Chicago Heights, was dragged from his car in front of his family. A 16 year old daughter sallied forth with a gun, fired a shot to halt the abduction, but was disarmed.

ALL SPAIN UNDER MARTIAL LAW AS AIR REVOLT FAILS

Strikes and Riots Flare; Report King May Leave.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(Tuesday.)—According to rumors in Paris early this morning, information has been received in official circles indicating that the Spanish republican rebellion is gaining ground and that King Alfonso may leave Madrid today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALGECIRAS, Dec. 15.—Eight hundred and fifty Spanish foreign legionnaires from Ceuta, Morocco, arrived at Algeciras tonight. They were entrained in a special express for Madrid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Dec. 15.—[Delayed and cut by censor.]—All Spain tonight is under martial law and telephone communications with all points outside of Spain have been suspended. All messages are being subjected to strict censorship.

Gen. Berenguer declared martial law shortly before noon today after 1,000 aviators, aviation privates, and workers, under command of Maj. Ramon Franco, the trans-Atlantic flyer, started a revolution just outside Madrid. Franco, with two companions, startled the population of Madrid by flying over the city and dropping leaflets stating that a republic had been declared. The leaflets asked all the people and soldiers to aid the republic. The troops were threatened with bombardment if they did not take up the Republican standard.

Seize Planes at Airport.

Maj. Franco, looking half starved, wild eyed and excited, arrived at the Four Winds airdrome this morning dressed in a military uniform after a week of hiding since his jail break. With him were Commander Reyes, a bigamist friend, who escaped jail with him, and a mechanic named Rada, a faithful friend of the major's.

They rallied a group of officers and men to their side. These followers locked up loyal members of the outfit in their barracks. Maj. Franco then armed soldiers, townspeople and any they could get, including workers, took planes out of their hangars, and painted the wings and tails red as a sign of the revolution. Three took to the air and flooded Madrid with pamphlets.

Meanwhile, regiments of Leon artillery from Madrid pulled into position. The battery got into range and about 12 field guns opened fire. About 100 shots were fired over the heads of the rebels before Gen. Quieto Llano, one of the leaders, saw that the revolters' position was hopeless and ran up a white flag.

Franco Flees to Portugal.

Meanwhile Maj. Franco and other leaders, seeing from the air what had happened, turned their planes went and flew to Portugal. They were seized by Portugal authorities and held in custody after questioning.

The government announced tonight that all is quiet in Spain with the exception of in the north, where strikes are holding sway over Santander, Saragossa, and San Sebastian. In the latter city rioters rushed the city hall. Two policemen were killed and five rioters wounded in what the government admits was a hot battle. Two persons were killed in Santander.

Madrid has taken the military law lightly, but civil guards and police and soldiers, all armed, are patrolling the city. The same is true at Barcelona and Valencia and all other larger centers.

Franco Charges "Double Cross."

LISBON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Twelve Spanish aviators, headed by the tempestuous Maj. Ramon Franco, fled Madrid in four airplanes today after the collapse of an air force revolt and landed in Portugal, where a puzzled government sought to determine what should be done with them. The flyers were interviewed by the war minister, and it was learned that he roundly chided them for placing his government in such a delicate position, since Portugal borders on Spain and is a friendly nation. Under the rules of international law refugees are permitted entrance to another country, but it is stipulated that they shall lay down their arms.

Officials said tonight the only thing certain was that Portugal would refuse extradition of the airmen if that were requested. How to treat them at present and what to do with their airplanes is the problem just now.

Maj. Franco said the revolt failed this morning because the artillery corps, after pledging support to the Republican movement, backed out at the eleventh hour and thus left the aviators high and dry.

"Nevertheless," he said, "nothing can arrest the republican movement which will soon swamp Spain. In one month a republic will be proclaimed."

Frontiers Are Closed.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—The Spanish frontiers were closed today to communications by telegraph and telephone, and even railway and automobile traffic is being held up at the boundary. Passengers from Paris to Madrid by way of Hendaye are being stopped at the frontier as no corresponding train is operated on the Spanish side. A difference in the width of the rail gauge requires transfer from all trains and it is impossible to operate through cars.

CRITICALLY ILL

POINCARE, FRENCH WAR PRESIDENT, FIGHTING DEATH

Report He Is Stricken with Partial Paralysis.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—Raymond Poincare, war president of France and twice its premier, is gravely ill at his home in Rue Marbeau at the edge of Paris tonight. Physicians are issuing bulletins twice daily as to the condition of the 70 year old statesman in his struggle against death. According to one report, M. Poincare, who has been confined to his bed for two days, is stricken with partial paralysis.

Dr. Louis Boidin, who has attended the colorful political figure for many years, was summoned to the Poincare home late tonight. This was his second summons of the day. As he entered the residence, he told newspaper men at the door that he would remain at M. Poincare's bedside all night.

Call Midnight Consultation.

Although statements of physicians merely chronicle the extreme weakness of the patient, it is no secret that Mme. Poincare and his intimate friends are extremely worried.

A consultation of physicians and professors was called for midnight.

The news of the former president's illness has caused great consternation in political circles, as government leaders consider him the only man who can solve France's ticklish political problems. Among the first to call today were Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Paul Doumer, president of the senate, and former Minister of War Andre Maginot.

Former Premier Andre Tardieu called tonight, but was declined admittance, physicians informing him that the residence had been closed for the night and that M. Poincare was asleep.

Taken Ill Dec. 4.

Friends insist that his political activities during the last cabinet crisis exhausted him. It is claimed that he first complained of feeling ill on Dec. 4 when he sat in the senate during the session in which Tardieu was overthrown. At that time he admitted having a chill.

Dr. Boidin had warned him against resuming political life within three years after a serious surgical operation in 1929. Last week and following the fall of the Tardieu government he was sorely tempted to assume power again. Majorities in the senate and the chamber of deputies pleaded with him to take the reins and he participated in several conferences. He finally renounced the post because of ill health when President Doumergue summoned him to Elysee palace.

M. Poincare is subsisting on a simple diet of milk, whole wheat toast, and grapes. Besides physicians, only his wife and pet Siamese cat are permitted to enter his room.

President Seven Years.

The stricken statesman retired from the presidency in 1920 after serving a seven year term. He has held an important rôle in French statesmanship since. He has held the office of premier twice. He also held both ministries of foreign affairs and finances and has served in the senate and chamber of deputies. In 1920 he served as president of the reparations committee.

3 DEAD, 3 OTHERS THOUGHT LOST IN MIAMI BOAT FIRE

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Federal and state investigations into the burning and sinking last night of the excursion boat Eureka II. were ordered today as authorities sought to establish definitely a list of dead, missing, and rescued persons.

Three were known to be dead and three were reported missing.

The three persons reported missing and not located tonight were: Frank J. Keefe, Providence, R. I.; J. S. Haeg, Pomona, Cal., and Mrs. Mary Holler, Milwaukee.

Managers of hotels where they were registered said the three had planned to go on the excursion trip yesterday and had not returned to the hotels today. It was not definitely known, however, that they were aboard.

Justice of the Peace Thomas S. Ferguson scheduled for Wednesday an inquest into the death of the three persons, H. C. Grimm, 60, McCook, Neb.; Mrs. Mamie Sawyer, 45, Miami, passengers, and Clarence Vine, 30, Haverhill, Mass., deck hand.

ARREST FORMER BANK PRESIDENT AS EMBEZZLER

Arvid L. Peterson, who was president of the Old Colony State bank, Clark and Division streets, before its consolidation with the Cosmopolitan State bank, about two months ago, was released on $10,500 bonds on three charges of embezzlement last night after spending six hours in custody at the detective bureau. Peterson is 43 years old and lives at 1039 North Austin boulevard.

The alleged acts on which the warrants were based are said to have occurred before the bank was taken over by the Cosmopolitan bank.

Theodore C. Fredrich, public accountant, in whose name the warrants were issued by Judge John H. Lyle, charged that at times Peterson's accounts were short from $50,000 to $75,000, but that examination of the books indicated that most if not all the money had been replaced.

ALDERMEN ADOPT PLAN TO CLEAR P. O. SITE TITLE

Refuse to Give Up Congress Easement.

Members of the council railway terminals committee yesterday refused to accede to the request of the government that the city give up its right to extend Congress street as a public thoroughfare through the property selected for the location of Chicago's new postoffice. At the same meeting the committee took action to speed work on the new Illinois Central suburban station at Randolph street.

The city has been requested to give up the Congress street easement so the government can get a clear title to an air right site for the postoffice, in return for which the government will build an arcade through the building for the street.

Decide on Their Stand.

Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th], chairman, and other members of the committee, argued that the city's right to Congress street would not be safeguarded if the easement is surrendered. Instead the committee adopted the policy that the city will surrender the easement to the Union Station company so that the government can get a clear title, providing that the government will agree to give the city a perpetual easemen after the site is acquired.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson was directed by the committee to draft an amendment that will carry out the committee's policy.

Speed I. C. Station.

The committee also approved an order, which was passed at the afternoon council session, which provides that the commissioner of public works issue permits to the Illinois Central for the construction of the new suburban station and the new Randolph street viaduct. The railroad company already has started work on the projects.

Under the lake front ordinance the work cannot be started until the government establishes a new harbor line. As this may take as long as two years, the railroad asked the committee for authority to proceed with the projects now.

DOG TRAPPED 4 DAYS IN A ROCK CAVE IS RESCUED

Bingo, Whipped by Coon, Heeds Master's Call.

Mount Pleasant, Ia., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Bearing the scars of an underground battle with a raccoon, Bingo, a fox terrier, was released this morning from a cave that had been his home for four and one-half days.

Weak from loss of blood and lack of food, Bingo was lifted from the pit into which he had dropped and his master, Lawrence Mills, carried him from the underground chamber.

Bingo chased the raccoon into the cave last Wednesday and dropped into a pit out of which he could not climb. The 'coon, taking advantage of the situation, whipped Bingo and scampered out of the pit.

Mills, waiting at the entrance for Bingo to come out, heard his whines and started to investigate. He could not get into the cave far enough to lift the dog from the pit. Two score men worked until last night to enlarge the entrance of the cave.

A blast of dynamite cleared his last obstruction, but Bingo "high tailed" for a burrow leading from the floor of the pit when the blast echoed through the chamber.

This morning he became hungry. Hesitant at first, the dog finally overcame his fears and he limped into the pit within reach of his master's rescuing hand.

It was the second disastrous blaze in less than a year at the fashionable resort and the loss was estimated by fire officials at $800,000. A previous fire destroyed nine homes.

The brisk offshore breeze which threatened to spread the flames throughout the mile long row of more than 100 homes was blamed for starting the fire. Officials said it snapped a high tension wire, which fell on a tank of gasoline in the home of J. B. Fredericks, real estate executive, causing an explosion.

Many Homes Were Vacant.

Most of the homes were vacant, the owners having moved to Hollywood for the winter. Among the film people still occupying homes were Marie Prevost, actress; Dave Butler, film director, and George De Sylva, song writer. De Slyva said he lost original music scores valued at $25,000 and diamonds valued at $75,000.

Occupants Flee Before Flames.

The fire raced quickly from house to house. The crackling flames awakened the occupants and they fled to safety in the early morning cold. Only a small amount of fire fighting equipment was available.

Twenty-four hours before the fire preparations had been started to provide adequate fire equipment for the section. Hose had been distributed to each house, but only one hydrant had been completed.

Still User Suffocated by His Own Apparatus

Thomas Hollingsworth, 64 years old, a hoisting engineer, was suffocated in his room at 815 West 34th place early this morning when two gas burners on a stove over which he was operating a small still exhausted the oxygen in the room. Attracted by feeble knocking, other tenants battered down the door and found his body. Hollingsworth, according to the police, had sealed the door and windows to prevent the escape of alcohol fumes.

ADMIRAL FAVORS SMALLER PLANE SHIPS FOR NAVY

Lexington and Saratoga May Go in Reserve.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The Lexington and Saratoga, giant aircraft carriers that cost the United States a hundred million dollars, may be eliminated from the peace time fleet within the next few years and replaced with smaller plane carrying units, Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of operations, told the house naval committee today.

While stating that the vessels which form the backbone of fleet aviation would prove of "enormous value" in war time, the admiral disclosed that the navy department was considering placing them in reserve as soon as sufficient smaller carriers are completed for training purposes. The large carriers would be kept available for war duty, while 13,800 ton carriers of the type the navy is beginning to build, would be utilized in fleet training.

If the plan outlined by Admiral Pratt is followed, the navy would build up to its 135,000 ton treaty limit in small carriers not exceeding 13,800 tons each. The navy then would save 66,000 tons of big and 69,000 tons of small carriers. The big ones would be placed in reserve until an emergency developed or they reached the age of replacement. The small ones would operate with the fleet.

Admiral Pratt's testimony was given at the third session of the committee's hearings on the $83,000,000 naval construction bill submitted to congress by the navy department as a part of its new $134,000,000 warship construction program for the next fiscal year. Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] plans to report the bill to the house probably Wednesday. The measure represents the smallest warship authorization program offered to congress in fifteen years. It carries one aircraft carrier, four submarines, one 6 inch gun cruiser, and one 6 inch gun cruiser with flying deck. Chairman Britten plans to eliminate the ordinary 6 inch gun cruiser.

Flying Decks Advocated.

In addition to outlining the navy's attitude toward the big carriers, Admiral Pratt urged the advantages of the 6 inch gun cruiser type equipped with flying deck. The admiral admitted in response to questions that even if the United States built all warships permitted by the London treaty, this country would not have equality in sea power with Great Britain.

The Lexington and Saratoga represent a part of the aftermath of the Washington naval treaty. Originally designed as battle cruisers, they were redesigned as carriers when the United States sacrificed its potential world battleship supremacy. These vessels each have a displacement of 33,000 tons. They mount 8 inch guns. Admiral Pratt said the navy is considering replacing the 8 inch guns with five inch anti-aircraft weapons.

New York Bridge Puts Autos Into Grooved Traffic Lanes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—An important experiment in bridge traffic is being worked out for the span that links Manhattan to Long island just west of lower Central park. Three sets of grooves in which automobile wheels will run are being built in the pavement of the upper deck roadway which is to make Queensboro bridge a two level highway. The top roadway will not be ready until next spring, but blueprints of the traffic innovation were available today.

If the "buried track" idea is successful the scheme may be put into effect on the new Hudson river bridge when its roadbed is put down a year hence.

Will Keep Cars in Line.

The grooves on the upper level of the Queensboro span will have a twofold purpose. They will eliminate traffic accidents caused by wet weather skidding and they will control the driver who refuses to stay in line. The tracks will be two inches deep and set sufficiently far apart to insure safety. There will be four roadways on the second level, three of them grooved and carrying eastbound or out of town traffic. The other roadway will be used as an overflow lane for cars going either way, the traffic policemen to open and shut the flow.

The lower level now being used as a two-way bridwe will carry four lanes of westbound, or into the city traffic. A fifth lane will serve the same purpose as the overflow roadway on the upper level. More than 100,000 cars pass over the bridge every 24 hours.

Expect to Cut Accidents.

The grooved runways were designed by Chief Engineer Edward A. Byrne of the department of plant and structures after he had made a study of bridge accidents and found most of them had resulted as cars pass one another. He is confident the grooved lanes and one-way traffic will show a much reduced accident record.

"This device costs no more than an ordinary roadway," said Mr. Byrne, "and it puts the motorists and his car under rigorous control as soon as the automobile enters the roadway."

When Mr. Byrne was consulting engineer in the construction of the Holland vehicular tunnel he tried to have the groove system installed there, but the idea was not accepted.

All the steel work required for the approach to the new upper level on the Manhattan side has been completed. A forty-five foot roadway has been cut through 300 feet each side of Second avenue to provide another approach. An overhead driveway over 59th street will speed traffic considerably.

On the Long Island side a viaduct is being constructed which will carry motorists over one of the most congested plazas in Greater New York.

The approach to Queensboro bridge on both the Manhattan and Long Island side has been a traffic problem for many months. On holidays and at times during the rush hours it has been almost impossible to move the heavy flow of traffic. Engineers now estimate that the upper level lanes will sped up east and west bound traffic as far across town as 5th avenue at Central park and will relieve the congestion in Queensboro plaza at least thirty per cent.

MRS. BUSSE ASKS RIGHT TO MOVE MOTHER'S BODY

Mrs. Josephine L. Busse, 427 Melrose avenue, widow of the late Mayor Fred Busse, filed a suit in the Circuit court yesterday for permission to remove the body of her mother, Mrs. Emma Lee, who died Dec. 4, 1903, from its grave in Mount Greenwood cemetery to Los Angeles, Cal., to be buried beside her husband. The petition is directed against the cemetery and a brother and three sisters.

Mrs. Busse declares that before her father, Edward H. Lee, died last March 20 he requested in writing that the wife, "with whom he had lived a love story for 23 years, be buried at his side." Mrs. Busse declares that she secured the consent of two sisters, Mrs. Emma Lee Johnson and Mrs. Marjorie Lee Colf, both of Los Angeles, to the proposed removal, but Edward H. Lee, 7039 South Oakley avenue, and Mrs. Mary Mueller, 1305 Touhy avenue, have refused to give their consent.

FIRST WIFE OF COLOSIMO SEEKS TO DIVORCE MATE

Mrs. Victoria Colosimo Villano, first wife of "Big Jim" Colosimo, vice boss and night life chieftain who was slain in 1920, filed suit for divorce in Los Angeles yesterday against Antonio Villano, her second husband.

She charged cruelty, specifically alleging he flourished a gun and threatened to slay her and her sister. In answer Villano denied the accusations and declared his wife was habitually intemperate. More than five years ago Mrs. Villano instituted divorce proceedings against Villano, charging mental cruelty. The action apparently was dropped.

The former Mrs. Colosimo was married to Villano three months after "Big Jim's" assassination. Incidentally, musty records mention that Villano had been sought for questioning following Colosimo's killing. Mrs. Colosimo was divorced by the café owner several weeks before he married Dale Winter, cabaret singer. One theory of the murder, at the time, was that it was prompted by Colosimo's casting aside of the woman who had been his wife 15 years.

GANGSTERS RAID BENTON AND FIRE UPON CITY HALL

Benton, Ill., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Reminiscent of the hectic days of gang terrorism in southern Illinois, county officials today are scouring the countryside for the gunmen who swooped down upon this city in automobiles twice in the early hours of the morning to riddle the city hall with bullets from a machine gun.

Windows in the building were shattered by the bullets. George Gammon, a policeman sitting at a desk, barely escaped injury when one of the shots passed within inches of him.

The first attack occurred at 3:30 a. m. when the gunmen, following a street which circled the city hall, sent a fusillade into the building. Shortly before daybreak they struck again, sending more bullets into the structure.

DEATH CLAIMS IKE BLOOM, OLD RED LIGHT HOST

Noted as Proprietor of Freiberg's Dance Hall.

Isaac Gitelson, who, as Ike Bloom, ruled in Chicago's old redlight district when the Al Capones, Jack Guzikses, and other vice lords of today were waiters or runners, and who was reckoned a power in politics when mayors were to be made and unmade, died yesterday in his home at 3520 Sheridan road. He was about 65 years old.

Death came after an illness of nearly two years, during which it was necessary to resort to frequent amputations to keep Bloom alive. While nothing definite is known about his financial affairs it was the popular impression that during his illness, and even before it, the fortune he was once believed to possess had disappeared.

Of Bloom's antecedents little is known. He first came into prominence shortly after the opening of the present century as the lessee and later as the owner of Freiberg's dance hall, 18 East 22d street, then in the old redlight district.

Originally a German weinstube, this place was transformed by Bloom into a dance hall which became the headquarters for the denizens of the district and attracted visitors to town and after theater slumming parties much as the Moulin Rouge did in Paris. The real gaiety did not begin until after midnight and it was easily the most popular of the resorts that were open in the early hours of the morning.

A Stickler for Propriety.

Bloom insisted upon outward respectability and propriety. The young women who frequented the place and swelled its receipts were compelled to behave with the utmost outward decorum. Intoxication was punished with expulsion from the hall and styles of dancing which are now seen in every ballroom in the city were rigorously barred.

Under the surface, the hall did a thriving business on the drinks sold to the girls, a percentage of the money paid to nearby hotels, and a share in the profits of tradesmen who supplied the expensive costumes which the young women were compelled to wear.

Crusading against "Freiberg's and its 'dance of death,'" as it was called, was a frequent activity for reformers in the early part of the century. The result was that from time to time the license was revoked or the sale of liquor was stopped after 1 a. m. Little attention was paid to these spasmodic closings, the influence of Ald. Kenna and Ald. Coughlin, the backers and friends of Bloom, always sufficing until the last term of Mayor Carter H. Harrison.

Lid Is Clamped Down.

Then for the first time the lid was put down. Kenna and Coughlin thereupon led the rebellion which resulted in Harrison's defeat in the 1915 Democratic primary. Although Thompson was elected mayor, Freiberg's managed to run in one way or another for several more years. Meanwhile Bloom spread out, opening the Arrowhead inn in Burnham, which blossomed out as a redlight colony. The venture did not succeed and the inn was sold to James Colosimo, later slain in his Chicago restaurant, just around the corner from Freiberg's hall.

The police also became somewhat more strict and the profits at Freiberg's grew smaller until in 1924 Bloom announced that he was retiring from there. He later opened a downtown cabaret in Randolph street, known as the Deauville, but was in constant trouble with dry agents, the police, and even holdup men. He finally abandoned the venture and since then he had been in retirement.

Bloom took a leading part in First ward Democratic politics, always delivering his precinct by pluralities of from 200 to 300 votes and seldom allowing the opposition any votes. In spite of many efforts to catch him at election frauds the ballots in his precinct always bore out the story told on the tally sheets.

Bloom is survived by his widow, his brother, Sam, who was his assistant at Freiberg's hall, and a sister, Yetta. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 4911 Broadway. Burial will be at Waldheim cemetery.

JUDGE WILLIAMS WITHDRAWS FROM SANITARY CASE

Accepts Statement by Northup as Apology.

The fight over a judge to preside over the sanitary district case in which Timothy J. Crowe and other former officials of the district are defendants for conspiracy appeared certain to drag over a period of months as Judge Charles A. Williams yesterday relinquished his right to act as the presiding judge in the trial.

Judge Williams, who was declared unfit by First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup because he sponsored his son, Willard Williams, to a sanitary district job, sent the case back to Chief Justice, John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court after the prosecutor issued a public statement, which the judge said he considered tantamount to an apology. Mr. Northup, however, declared he did not apologize.

Statement from Northup.

The statement issued by Mr. Northup recited that a certificate of prejudice was filed by the prosecution because Judge Williams was contemplating an extended trip to California for his health.

The concluding paragraph of the statement said:

"I will add that I had no thought of questioning the integrity or of impugning the good faith of Judge Williams in what he did. I regret very much that any unpleasantness may have arisen out of this matter, and as far as I am concerned, I hope it will not be regarded in any respect as personal."

New Controversy Begins.

The issuance of the statement and the withdrawal of Judge Williams, however, only brought on a new controversy between the defense attorneys and the prosecutor. The defense attorneys put into evidence that Prosecutor Northup himself has sponsored seven men to sanitary district jobs.

It was pointed out, however, these men were put on the district pay rolls after Crowe left office as president, although some of the trustees under indictment were still on the board and had to sanction the employment of the men under the Deneen-Democratic patronage division which existed at the time.

Northup Accuses Defense.

"Attorneys for the sanitary district defendants are trying to muddy the waters and deceive the public by reason of the fact that I recommended seven persons to appointment in the service of the district during the last two years, and long after the close of the Crowe régime," said Prosecutor Northup.

"As I have always understood, these men were employed to perform services for full time, and I am sure that they have done so.

"I challenge any one to show that I have ever recommended a man to a position who did not perform full service and give value received for his salary.

Hits at Rival Attorneys.

"Neither at any time have I represented as attorney or been connected with any corporation which has benefited by swindling contracts, directly or indirectly, with the sanitary district of Chicago, which cannot be said of all the attorneys who appeared in court on this matter."

Prosecutor Northup said he would not mention at this time which attorney he had in mind, but that he is ready if called on by the lawyers to give a bill of specifications.

He indicated that he would fight against the case being assigned to many of the present judges in the Criminal court. Those he would be willing to accept, he said, probably would not be acceptable to the defense.

Long Fight Is Predicted.

Inasmuch as the law allows a defendant a change of venue for each man in the case and the prosecution can use the certificate of prejudice without limitation, attorneys point out that the fight over a judge may continue for months.

Chief Justice McGoorty said that if the attorneys cannot agree on some judge, he has no alternative but to keep assigning the case in rotation as any other case would be assigned. The defense attorneys say they will not agree on a judge.

The case was continued for one week to see if the lawyers will change their attitude. Judge Joseph Sabath is next in line in the regular assignment and the case will go to him in the event no agreement is reached.

JUDGE WILL TRY FOLEY TODAY ON LOTTERY CHARGE

Delay Denied, Defendant Waives Jury Trial.

Matt Foley, accused of operating a fake lottery on the Kentucky derby while he was employed as an assistant circulation manager of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, waived a jury trial yesterday in Judge Joseph Sabath's Criminal court after unsuccessful efforts to obtain another continuance of his case. Judge Sabath will try the case today.

Attorney Benedict J. Short appeared yesterday to represent Foley. The attorney asked for a continuance, saying that he understood the prosecution was disposed to allow some leniency to the co-defendants, Leo H. Schoemer and Hyman Goodman.

"We are going to grant separate trials to the other men," said Assistant State's Attorneys Walker Butler and Ross Lee Laird. "They were the tools of Foley in this lottery scheme, and if they testify for the prosecution we shall naturally allow them separate trials. We object to any further continuance of this case."

Attorney Short then talked of a reassignment of the case to some other judge without the necessity of filing a change of venue petition.

"I have tried over 20,000 cases in the last four years and have never had a change of venue taken from me," replied Judge Sabath. "If you want a change of venue you will have to file a petition the same as would be done in any other case. However, I do not believe you conscientiously think I could not give the defendants in this case a fair trial, but are seeking delay."

Foley finally agreed to waive a jury trial. Then the witnesses were sworn and the case technically put on trial.

The prosecution will proceed on the charge of possession and sale of lottery tickets, which is punishable by a fine of up to $2,000.

Richard Sullivan and Frank H. Bell were refused new trials yesterday by Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court and were sentenced to death in the electric chair on Feb. 13. They were convicted several weeks ago of the murder of Christ Patras, manager of the Villa Rica café in North Clark street. The killing occurred on June 16.

Sullivan was the first to be sentenced. When the judge asked him if he had anything to say as to why he should not be sentenced in accordance with the verdict of the jury, Sullivan remained seated in his chair and replied "Naw." He smiled as the judge read the death setence.

Bell Hears Sentence.

Bell jumped to his feet when asked if he had anything to say and replied quickly, "No, sir, I haven't." He resumed his seat and listened to the same statement as had been read to Sullivan. Part of the time his face was white and at other times he smiled.

Bell had tried to escape the extreme penalty by confessing before the trial. He exposed the escape plot of William Lenhardt, who was executed last week. He also charged that Sullivan went to Patras to collect the reward for the murder of Alfred Lingle and that when Patras failed to keep his agreement he was murdered by Sullivan.

Call Confession False.

Assistant State's Attorneys Walker Butler and Ross Lee Laird said, however, that Bell's confession was false and was made only for the purpose of escaping punishment. They proved that the murder was caused by Patras' refusal to submit to robbery.

"The judge could have picked some other day except the thirteenth of a month," commented Sullivan. "However, I don't care as long as Bell gets the same medicine I do. I hope that squealer goes to the chair first so that I can hear him holler."

The men have been bitter towards each other since Bell's efforts to place blame for the crime on Sullivan.

10 was agreed upon as a date for answering of the rule to show cause why Capone should not be held in contempt of court and Jan. 19 for arguments or trial. Not until this latter date will the gang leader be forced to appear. Three policemen waiting to serve him with a vagrancy warrant yesterday said they would be back for the future hearing.

Sam Battaglia, west side gangster recently acquitted of the holdup of Policeman Peter O'Malley, chauffeur for Mrs. W. H. Thompson, made the mistake yesterday of telling a judge and policeman that he couldn't be put in jail. He was in a cell last night.

Battaglia was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct before Judge Jonas. The judge told the arresting policemen to charge Battaglia with vagrancy instead.

"Can't Be Put in Jail."

"You can't arrest me again," Battaglia protested. "I'm out on bond. You can't put me in jail."

"Lock him up," ordered the judge.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

He then issued a warrant charging the gangster with vagrancy and fixed bond at $2,500. The case will be heard today.

William [Three Finger Jack] White appeared before Judge Joseph Sabath to answer a charge of murdering Patrolman Edward Pfiaume in a roadhouse several years ago. The charge was resurrected by the state's attorney's office in its efforts to send known gangsters to prison on old charges which had been dismissed with leave to reinstate.

White said he was satisfied to be tried by Judge Sabath and the trial was set for Jan. 12.

Eight men, all well known to police, were seized last night in a raid on an alleged gambling house at 141 North 20th avenue, Melrose Park, and taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning in connection with the shooting on Oct. 30 of Sergt. James McBride of Bellwood, chief witness against White in the Pfiaume murder.

A ruling in the habeas corpus hearing to determine whether Danny Stanton, south side gangster, should be extradited to Delafield, Wis., to stand trial for the murder of Jack Zuta, is expected next Friday. Testimony was completed yesterday in the hearing before Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

Joseph (Pepe) Genaro, public enemy, was arraigned before Judge John H. Lyle as a vagrant. He obtained a continuance until Friday. Vagrancy charges against Anthony (Red) Kissane and Jack Barry, labor racketeers, will be heard today by Judge Justin McCarthy.

Judge Lyle held Gordon Bennett, 26 years old, 1114 Winona avenue, Oak Park, to the grand jury on charges of bigamy. Two women testified that Bennett had married them. They were Elinore Mahoney, 138 South Clinton avenue, Oak Park, and Evelyn Knittle, 24 years old, of Waukegan.

CLAIM ARGENTINA RESTLESS UNDER GRIP OF URIBURU

Situation Tense as Revolt Leader Loses Popularity

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 15.—A somewhat tense political situation has arisen in Argentina, according to travelers arriving from Buenos Aires and later telephonic reports from the same source. Judging from these reports the Argentine provisional government, despite its cleaning up of the chaos left by deposed President Hipolito Trigoyen, is nevertheless fast losing its popularity.

Recent arrivals are, however, at a loss to explain the reason. Some of them believe that the maintenance of martial law, however benevolently enforced, is proving irksome to the Argentine republic.

Nipped Recent Plot.

In Argentine circles here it is an open secret that Gen. Joe Uriburu's government nipped a counter revolutionary movement in the bud last week when it arrested half a dozen army generals, headed by Enrique Mosconi and Alonso Baldrich.

The government's subsequent arrest and then release of Bario Bravo, Socialist and former senator, is looked upon as a sign of weakness. He was released despite the fact that he virtually told his captors to go to the devil when ordered to stop his outspoken criticisms.

In addition the Uriburu government's drastic order prohibiting any sort of political meetings is also viewed as the act of an administration that is none too sure of itself.

The attitude of Argentines here, discounting the rumors put out by disgruntled Yrigoyenists in exile in Uruguay, is that Gen. Uriburu, though he may have the backing of the business world, has not got the wholehearted support of the masses.

Politicians Spurn Uriburu.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 15—The national democratic federation—which is a coalition of political parties, including the radical party—opposed to Yrigoyenism, desisted from attending a scheduled conference with Provisional President Uriburu this afternoon "in view of the terms of the president's address at the military college" yesterday.

In this speech Gen. Uriburu had declared that the country was indebted to a group of military officers who have staked everything in order to overthrow an "inept and corrupt regime." He also hinted that in the near future he would mince no words in stating what this obligation is and how the military government expected it to be repaid.

The government tonight issued a communique expressing its intention to call electons as soon as it has completed a revision of the voting lists. It is expected that this will be finished early in next March.

SHOT SIX TIMES; POLICE BELIEVE HIM AUTO THIEF

Wounded six times in the arms and body, Robert J. Emmett, 18 years old, 628 South Hermitage avenue, was taken to the Bridewell hospital last night in a critical condition. He refused to talk, but Policemen Steve Simpson and William Burak of the West North avenue station said they believe he is the youth whom they fired at with shotguns after he had left one automobile and driven off in a car parked at Leavitt street and Austin avenue early yesterday.

The policemen said the license plates of the abandoned auto had been issued to Emmett. He denied he had been shot by the policemen and that he had been stealing an automobile.

Branch of Aimee's Church at Pasadena Secedes Again

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The Pasadena branch of the Rev. Aimee McPherson's church chain seceded today for the second time within a year. The Rev. H. E. Alford said. "We were deceived by Mrs. McPherson and our church twice was stripped. We collected $3,500 toward a building fund and when our treasurer went to the bank only $35 remained." When the Pasadena congregation voted to secede earlier this year Mrs. McPherson won her flock back in a personal plea.

"ACIDINE HAS NO EQUAL FOR INDIGESTION, GAS"

"I have used ACIDINE for indigestion and gas pains and find that it has no equal. It is classed alone. Nothing can compare with it," says John D. Gates, 360 E. Garfield Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

PETITION FOR REHEARING SHOWS TRIBUNE STAND IN EXPERT FEE SUIT

SUPREME COURT DENIES PLEA BUT REVISES OPINION

Changes Concern Use of City Bond Funds.

line are omitted from the modified opinion. The first opinion was written by Justice Warren H. Orr, but yesterday Justice Oscar Heard handed down the modified view of the court.

In still another place in the original opinion the court said:

"The city beautiful bond ordinances thus constituted an appropriation of bond funds for payment of the cost of real estate valuations, and no appropriation by the city council in the 1920 annual appropriation bill was necessary to authorize the payment of the three experts 'bills out of the bond funds.'"

The opinion also said that "the bond funds were in the city treasury available for the payment of expert fees."

Again the court said: "The record speaks for itself and unmistakably shows that these bond funds were legally appropriated for each of the improvements by a vote of the people, and that the city council, in the exercise of its supervisory powers over all corporate expenditures, authorized the payment of 1 per cent fees to these three experts for the year of 1920."

Previous Statements Omitted.

All three of these last quotations, and others about them, have been omitted from the modified opinion. In lieu of these three quotations the Supreme court inserted some different ideas into the modified opinion. It now says that supplemental action by the city council was required on the bond funds. The insertion of the court reads as follows:

"The city beautiful bond ordinances were approved by vote of the people and effected a setting aside of public revenues for certain specified purposes. These ordinances, however, were not exclusive or self-executing. To carry their provisions into effect requires supplementary action by the city council. Even after city funds have been voted by the people for public improvements, the city council is charged with general supervisory powers over their appropriation and expenditure.

Fund Method Explained.

"The annual appropriation bill for 1920 designated the funds to be expended in making the five street improvements. Funds set apart for different purposes were given certain account numbers, as 450 A-1, 450 B-7, etc. The same ordinance fixed the rate of pay for the real estate experts on the basis of 1 per cent of the value of property and $50 per day for testifying in court.

"Under each of these five improvements the city council designated certain '450-S' accounts, being the title of a general fund into which the largest part of the bond proceeds was apportioned, for instance, in the Ogden avenue improvement bond fund the following appears: '450-S-12—for such other expenditures in connection with this improvement as may be ordered by the city council, $3,606,814.'

"In the other bond funds the wording is the same as above stated, the only change being as to amount and account numbers. The experts were paid out of these general funds designated as the 450-S accounts at the rate of 1 per cent of the value of property appraised. This rate of pay was specifically provided by the appropriation bill and fell within the description of the 450-S accounts as such expenditures had been 'ordered by the city council' on Feb. 5, 1920, and March 10, 1920. Such payments were therefore legally made."

The original opinion said that the city treasurer had signed the warrants used in payment of the experts. The error was corrected in the modified opinion.

REHEARING PETITION

Following are excerpts from the petition for a rehearing on the experts' suit which was filed preceding the modification of its opinion by the Supreme court:

Thompson and Harding benefited by these excessive payments.

"At the outset we quote an erroneous statement in the opinion, page 34: 'There is no evidence whatever that Thompson and Harding received any of these fees.' The opinion in other places clearly proceeds on the mistaken theory that Thompson and Harding received none of the benefits. We shall later discuss their knowledge of the diversion of funds and their participation therein, but we shall first show how Thompson and Harding profited thereby.

Lower Court Cited.

"The opinion is silent as to evidence which sustains the following findings of the chancellor:

"'In addition to the amounts above found to have been contributed by the experts for the political purposes of the Thompson-Lundin machine and for the purpose of enriching members of the Thompson-Lundin machine [referring to $130,638.57 paid to Brautigam, Koch and Richert, over $70,000 paid to Coffin, and $80,168.94 paid to Nichols (our brief, page 81)], the three experts also contributed to the said Thompson-Lundin machine 15 per cent of practically all moneys received by them from the S accounts [i. e., 15 per cent of $1,573,397.61 or $236,009.64].

"'During the years 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921 said Thompson-Lundin machine engaged in city, county, and state primary campaigns and elections, and incurred heavy financial obligations in the conduct thereof. Said machine was in constant need of money to meet said obligations and to pay the expenses of the campaigns in which it was so engaged and said machine was constantly pressed by its creditors for the payment of obligations so incurred.

"'The said William Hale Thompson was the head of the finance committee of said group or organization, and associated with him were the said George F. Harding, Michael J. Faherty, Percival B. Coffin, Ernest H. Lyons, one Frank H. Mesce, and others. Meetings of the said committee were held from time to time during the said years, at which meetings ways and means for raising funds were adopted and the sources from which such funds were to be obtained were determined on.

"'At said meetings said William Hale Thompson was always present and participated therein, and the said George F. Harding, Michael J. Faherty, Ernest H. Lyons, Percival B. Coffin, and Frank H. Mesce were frequently present and participated therein. Said Thompson-Lundin machine, during the period in question, was in quest of the control of city, county, and state offices, and required vast amounts of money to maintain said organization and for the prosecution of said several primary and election campaigns.

"'Said Thompson-Lundin machine, of which the said William Hale Thompson was the head, incurred heavy obligations in the premises and each member of said machine, and especially the said William Hale Thompson, was personally threatened with liability therefor. The said contributions for political purposes in this and preceding paragraphs mentioned were used to reduce substantially said obligations and thus benefited the members of said machine including said William Hale Thompson, George F. Harding, Michael J. Faherty, and the other conspirators.' [Decree, Abst. Vol. A, 340-342.]

A Personal Liability.

"In this connection it should be borne in mind that Thompson '[undoubtedly Harding also] was personally liable for campaign expenditures contracted by his organization. Severinghaus Printing company v. Thompson, 241 Ill. App. 35. Thus the contributions of the experts to the Thompson political machine reduced the personal liability of the defendants and therefore directly benefited them. [Chancellor's opinion, Addl. Abst., 201.]

The foregoing finding of the chancellor is amply and fully supported by the uncontradicted evidence in this case. [Our brief, pages 464-469, 792-796, 811, 823.] The evidence concerning these political contributions with Thompson's and Harding's knowledge was proved by complainant by witnesses naturally friendly to the defendants: Francis, Mulvihill, Volz, Severinghaus, Coffin, and Bither. All of these, with the exception of Volz and Severinghaus, were office holders under the Thompson administration and members of the Thompson-Lundin machine. Volz was secretary of the William Hale Thompson Republican club. Severinghaus was a political follower and intimate associate of Thompson, while Harding and Thompson were the recipients of these benefits.

Admission Overlooked.

"The opinion even overlooks the downright admission in Thompson's and Harding's reply brief, page 169, that 10 per cent of these exorbitant fees were contributed to the Thompson organization. Of course the record shows a much greater largess. Of this later. . . .

APPELLANTS ANSWERED

"Appellants say (Thompson's Reply Brief, page 169):

"'The largest contribution seems to have been that of Mr. Coffin, the partner of Mr. Lyons, whose contributions were less than 15 per cent of the amounts received by Lyons from the city.'

"But let us take Merigold, who, out of the $577,426.41 received by him for services rendered in the year 1920 paid out the following amounts for political purposes or to enrich members of the political ring: $130,638.57 to Brautigam, who shared one-third with his co-partner Richert, chairman of the committee on finance, whose aid was indispensable to enable these excessive payments to be made.

"That this was not done without the knowledge and acquiescence of the defendants is pointed out in our brief, pages 490 to 521. The corrupting of Richert is not considered in the opinion. $65,690.13, 15 per cent of every S warrant issued to Merigold from and after Sept. 14, 1920, was contributed to the Thompson organization for political purposes and some of which was paid over furtively beneath the stairway in the Fort Dearborn Bank building. (Our brief, pages 811 to 821.) This is testified to by Merigold himself and by his secretary. This is not mentioned in the opinion. $26,722.78 was paid to Nichols, a protégé of Harding. (Our brief, pages 762 to 792; abstract volume 3, exhibit 308, page 397.) This payment is uncontradicted. It is not mentioned in the opinion of the court.

Payments Are Told.

"Thus Merigold paid out for politics $233,052.48 or approximately 40 per cent of his fees. And he had an income tax of $164,222.11 to meet! (Abstract volume 3, 693.)

"Waller and Lyons, each of whom also received $577,426.41 for services rendered in the year 1920, likewise each contributed $26,722.78 to Nichols and in addition Lyons paid out over $70,000 to Coffin, former chairman of the civil service commission under Thompson. Coffin resigned from that position to go into Lyons' office immediately prior to the issuance of the first S warrants. He devoted practically all of his time to forwarding the interests of the Thompson organization. He was a member of its publicity committee and also a participant in the meetings of its finance committee. (Our brief, pages 671 to 695.) This is not mentioned in the opinion of the court.

"Neither Lyons nor Waller took the stand in his own behalf and it is a fair inference that their political contributions were not less than those of Merigold. (Our brief, pages 461 to 463.) * * *

CONFLICT IN DECISIONS

"A court of equity may inquire into reasonableness of fee."

"The opinion states on page 21:

"'While the fees were grossly excessive for the services rendered, the city council by unanimous vote fixed the fees to be paid real estate experts and directed their employment and payment. The city council had full authority to pass upon the question. Its action was legislative and is not subject to review by the court in the absence of any proof to establish the allegations of the bill that the city council was dominated or controlled by these defendants.'

"This statement is in direct conflict with the pronouncements of this court upon the subject from Sherlock v. Winnetka, 59 Ill. 389, in the year 1871, to the present time. However good or bad the motives of a city council, it may not make a gift. The amount paid to each expert was over $1,300 per day when the necessary real estate experts. This was effected and Harding, being charged with them warrants bearing their facsimile dicted proof shows that the services were worth not more than $50 a day. This is a donation of public funds to private individuals and is ultra vires. If a court of equity may not go behind such action the taxpayer is in a hopeless situation. (Our Brief, pp. 422-461, especially 431, 436.) See also Osborne v. Stone. (Our Brief, p. 329); Burns v. Essling (Our Brief, p. 331); Jackson v. Norris (Our Brief, p. 332). To pay out $1,732,279.23 for services proved to be worth only $45,000 ($50 per day for 300 days for the three experts) or $65,175 (for three experts paying their own bona fide assistants and all expenses, which were nominal in the case at bar) (Our Brief, p. 406 et seq.) is to make a gift of over $1,600,000. . . .

Decisions Are Cited.

"But whether the responsibility for this extravagance was that of the council or that of the executives, this court, we submit, could not have intended to abandon its long established jurisdiction to decree restitution when municipal funds have been given away or flagrantly squandered either by the legislative or executive officers. In the case of Sherlock v. Winnetka, supra, it was said at page 399 that a misappropriation of municipad property

"'. . . was a gross breach of trust, a fraud upon the law and the taxpayers of the village and a court of equity should take cognizance of the case by virtue of its inherent jurisdiction over fraud and trusts,'

"and again on page 403:

"'. . . that the appropriations of the private property of the corporation held in trust to the mere private uses disclosed by the bill, was a fraud and a breach of trust which calls for the interference of a court of equity; . . .'

"Thompson and Harding knew of the illegal expenditures and were members of the conspiracy.

"The opinion (page 22) treats Thompson's and Harding's knowledge of the excessive payments and their participation in the conspiracy as one subject, which we shall likewise do. The opinion, however, states that if Thompson and Harding knew of the illegal expenditures but received none of the benefits therefrom and did no affirmative act, even though it would have been their duty to have done an affirmative act, they would not be liable under the allegations of the bill. This will be considered in the next subdivision. We here point out the salient facts misapprehended or overlooked by the court in arriving at the conclusion that Thompson and Harding had no knowledge of the illegal expenditures and were not members of the conspiracy. . . .

Points Are Overlooked.

"Overlooked entirely—No mention is made in the opinion of the benefits received by Thompson and Harding through these exorbitant payments. This has been covered in subdivision I, supra. That Thompson and Harding benefited, colors every fact and circumstance bearing upon their participation in the conspiracy. As said in Kunnel v. Geeting, 2 Grant's Cases (Pa.) 125:

"'As men are not generally permitted to reap where they do not sow, their participation in the fruits of the enterprise, under the circumstances, was some evidence that they were engaged in it, and the declarations of one of them, while so engaged, were properly admitted.'

"Overlooked entirely—The opinion states at page 29:

"'Harvey's testimony, upon his direct examination in the trial of this case, that he spoke to Comptroller Harding about the vouchers is the only evidence in any way connecting the city comptroller himself with the matter or tending to show that the latter had any knowledge of these vouchers.'

Oversight Is Shown.

"This is clearly an oversight, for appellee filed an additional abstract (Addl. Abst., 105) in this case setting out in full the testimony of Nichols, said by Lyons before the grand jury to be Harding's man. (Abst. Vol. 1, 363, Rec., 1856.) Nichols' testimony and its importance is set forth in our brief, pages 773 et seq. He testified not only that he asked Harding to get him a job whereby he would be 'put on an even keel' with the three experts, but that Harding told him that 'he had consulted his [Harding's] personal attorney regarding the payment of fees to experts.'

"'Q.—Do you remember telling me in substance as follows: "Harding said in substance that he had noticed these payments were coming through in large amounts?" Do you remember telling me that?

"'I remember gossiping with Harding about that—now I remember he was careful in the controller's office evidently, and he was going to be careful about things. . . .'" (Our brief, 774.)

"Indisputably, Harding secured the job for Nichols. He was placed on 'an even keel' with other experts and received over $80,000 for four months' work.

"His testimony is not contradicted.

POINTS OVERLOOKED

"Overlooked entirely—In June, 1918, Merigold, a friend of Thompson of 15 years' standing, sought his assistance to secure employment as a real estate expert on Ogden avenue. Thompson told him it could perhaps be arranged. It was arranged. Merigold's conversation with the mayor was followed by an unbroken chain of events down to and including the order of Dec. 30, 1918. By this order Merigold as well as Waller and Lyons were employed on Ogden avenue at the rate of 1 per cent of the value of property. Merigold's income in 1918 was about $7,000 a year net. In 1919 his income reached the sum of over $23,000 from the city. In 1920 it reached the astounding and unheard of sum of $612,707.41 as follows: [Abst. Vol. I, 644 et seq.; Complainants' Ex. 183.]

Board of local improvements	$577,426.41
	$612,707.41

"As above stated, a fixed percentage of his receipts was contributed to the Thompson organization to reduce the personal obligations of Thompson, who had originally promised his aid in securing this same employment. [Our Brief, 477-481.]

"Overlooked—The unbroken chain of events which commenced with Thompson's interview and which led to the adoption of the order of Dec. 30, 1918, and ultimately in the adoption of the order of February, 1920, is as follows:

"[a] A series of interviews, in which Merigold, Lyons, Faherty and Brautigam participated, followed. They resulted in the corruption of Richert, chairman of the council committee on finance, which then had before it the fixing of the rate of pay of the through a division made of Merigold's fees with Brautigam, who in turn divided his fees with Richert, throughout the years 1919 and 1920. [Our Brief, pp. 422-521.] Richert was indispensable to the defendants.

"[b] Contemporaneous with the negotiations preceding the adoption of the order of Dec. 30, 1918, it was decided to abolish appraisals for the assessment rolls by capable, functioning, statutory commissioners and to substitute therefor appraisals by the three real estate experts and the two building experts at the rates of 1 per cent of the value of every parcel of land and 2 per cent of the value of every building affected by the five improvements. [Our Brief, pp. 525-532.]

Initiative by Thompson.

"[c] Thompson took the initiative in making this change as to commissioners. Seven days after the adoption of the order of Dec. 30, 1918, and on the very day of the public hearing on Ogden avenue, he requested Faherty to appoint Metzger, one of his henchmen, to act as commissioner on Ogden avenue. The request was granted. Thereafter the commissionerships were as a matter of common practice conferred upon wheelhorses of the Thompson machine, who for inconsequential service were paid $181,000 during Thompson's term of office, and whose work was entirely performed by the three real estate experts who were paid in 1920 over $1,732,000 and the two building experts who were paid over $1,063,000. [Our Brief, pp. 534-542.] [Chancellor's Op., Addl. Abst. 161-2.] The substitution of nonfunctioning political commissioners was the sine qua non of the payment of these fees.

"[d] The order of Dec. 30, 1918, was secured by false and fraudulent representations made in a letter by Faherty to the committee on finance dated Dec. 16, 1918. Faherty stated that 1 per cent of the value of property was but two-thirds of the Chicago real estate board rate when, as a matter of fact, as shown by the undisputed proof, the rate of 1 per cent proved to be over one and one-half millions of dollars in excess of two-thirds of the Chicago real estate board rate. [Our Brief, pp. 542-557.] * * *

"[i] In the latter part of December, 1919, or early January, 1920, Harding went to New York and sold $5,000,000 of the City Beautiful bonds, out of which $2,795,359.23 was paid and at least $1,616,353.02 more was to be paid to the three building experts and the two real estate experts for services rendered in 1920. [Our Brief, p. 404; Abst. Vol. 3, pp. 789, 791.] Standing alone the sale of the bonds might not be significant; but it becomes significant when taken in connection with the fact that the only reason for selling the bonds at that time was to pay for future services of the building and real estate experts, aggregating the monstrous sum of $4,411,717.25. [Our Brief, pp. 592-602.]

A MISAPPREHENSION

"Misapprehended—

"'The evidence shows that neither the mayor nor the city controller had anything to do with the passing of these vouchers or the issuing of the warrants.' [Opinion, p. 30.]

"Thus, in effect, the opinion affirmatively finds that Thompson and Harding had no knowledge, whereas their testimony alone could furnish such affirmative evidence. Neither Thompson nor Harding vouchsafed to testify as to the condition of their own respective minds. In fact, the opinion of the court goes further than Thompson's answer to the bill of complaint where he says: 'He [Thompson] has no precise knowledge of the exact amounts that were paid by the city of Chicago to said Waller, Lyons, and Merigold.'

"The evidence showed, as stated in the opinion, that it was the custom in the city of Chicago for the facsimile lithographed signatures of the mayor and the city controller to be placed upon the warrants. At page 31 of the opinion it is said:

"'* * * appellants cannot properly be charged with membership in or knowledge of a conspiracy to defraud the city because they followed this long established custom and practice.'

Contention Never Made.

"The complainant neither in its statement nor argument has advanced the contention that liability is to be predicated upon the slender premise stated in the quoted language. The complainant contends, however, that when they delivered their facsimile signatures to be printed on some half million warrants their duty under the statute was not at an end, and that there remained with them the duty to exercise supervision over the expenditures of funds committed to their care.

"Moreover, if they had knowledge of these excessive payments to the three experts they did have something to do with the passing of the warrants and the vouchers. They should have prevented the further use of their facsimile lithographed signatures; it was their duty so to do. They deliberately turned their backs to make proof of knowledge difficult. This under the authorities is not construed as mere neglect, but has been characterized by courts of the last resort as an overt act of fraud. As said in Kettlewell vs. Watson, infra:

"'* * * conduct which might be negligent, or which might be attributable to negligence, is really attributable to a design not to know any more, and is, therefore, an indication that you knew that of which you desired to avoid the evidence.'

"This will be taken up in the next subdivision of this petition. * * *

OTHERS ARE INVOLVED

"The employment of the three experts was not by the board of local improvements alone. Not only were these three favored above thirty-two other real estate experts hired by the board of local improvements at $50 a day, but they were made the beneficiaries of three other departments of the city during the same period that the Thompson organization was in pressing need of funds. They appeared on the pay roll of the board of education. They appeared on the pay roll of the corporation counsel. They appeared on the pay roll of the department of public works.

"Each received $577,426.41 from the board of local improvements. In addition, Lyons received $67,539.60 from the other three departments [Complnts. Ex. 182; Abst. Vol. 1, pp. 636-645]; Waller, $64,894.60 [Complnts. Ex. 181; Abst. Vol. 1, pp. 630-635]; Merigold, $35,281 [Complnts. Ex. 183; Abst. Vol. 1, pp. 644-645].

"The cooperation of these four departments in employing these particular experts can well be ascribed only to Thompson, who as mayor coördinated all departments.

"And lastly, no mention is made in the opinion of the fact that Thompson breach of trust did not take the stand to testify and to be cross-examined.

"As said in Giddings vs. Williams, 336 Ill. 482, 487:

"'There is no conflict in the evidence. No evidence was offered by defendants in error, and at the close of the evidence of plaintiffs in error the defendants in error made a motion to confirm the judgment. A motion for a finding or a directed verdict by a party who offers no evidence is in the nature of a demurrer to his opponent's evidence, and the rule is that the party resisting the motion is entitled to the benefit of all the evidence in its most favorable aspect to him and of all presumptions that may be reasonably drawn therefrom.'

THE LAW ON CONSPIRACY

"The court misapprehended the law of conspiracy in holding that the breach of duty by Thompson and Harding amounted to mere negligence or nonaction and that such nonaction did not amount to participation in the conspiracy.

"On page 33 the opinion reads:

"'The bill is based solely upon the theory that these defendants were parties to an alleged conspiracy and that they actively participated in carrying it out. It is based on the theory that these defendants were guilty of actual, intentional, wrongful acts. * * * Viewing the proof in its strongest light, it would only indicate that these defendants, after notice, should have known that a large amount of fees was being paid to the experts and that they should have taken some action to prevent further payments. The proof, therefore, amounts to nothing more than negligent nonaction on the part of these defendants—failure to do something to prevent further payments being made. Proof of this nature does not sustain the allegations of the bill. Allegations of wrongful, positive action are not proved by evidence of nonaction, whether negligent or otherwise.'

The Opinion Analyzed.

"The proposition amounts to this: Thompson and Harding, to say the least, knew in general of the objects and purposes of the conspiracy. They had furnished their signatures to the printer with authority to lithograph their signatures upon the warrants. Knowing that the warrants were being misused they took no steps to revoke that authorization. They had authorized the city treasurer to honor warrants bearing their lithographed signatures when countersigned by Gosselin.

"They did not revoke this authorization. It was the duty of both as trustees of public moneys to prevent misappropriation of city funds. Their failure to prevent squandering of the funds in their charge indicates assent of mind to the objects and purposes of the conspiracy and is not mere neglect or nonaction. It constitutes an affirmative, unlawful, wrongful act.

"Under the law of conspiracy the moment an official assents to the diversion of trust funds committed to his care, whether tacitly or expressly, he becomes a conspirator and not a mere bystander, and thereupon, under the elementary rules governing conspiracy, the acts of his co-conspirators become his acts. In this connection the court said on page 32:

"'These circumstances, taken at their highest evidential value, could at most only indicate that Thompson and Harding were guilty of negligent omission in failing to prevent the issuance of these warrants bearing their facsimile signatures in payment of the experts' fees.'

A Question to Court.

"Has not the opinion overlooked the consequences of the doctrine here stated? Assume that Thompson and Harding had full knowledge of all of the ramifications of a conspiracy to divert the funds committed to their care [and which could not be expended without their consent, either express or implied]; assume they permitted the continued use of their authorized facsimile signatures in spite of such knowledge, then, under the ruling of this court, they would be guilty of mere neglect; but if they had signed the warrants with their own hands after the acquisition of knowledge they would have committed overt acts rendering them guilty, not of mere negligence, but of actual malfeasance. If they sign in their proper hand, it is an overt act. If they have another sign for them, it is mere neglect.

"The opinion completely overlooks the authorities on this point cited in out brief, pp. 266-271, especially the leading case of Crane vs. Secoy, 102 Ohio St. 258, which we designated a leading case. The entire opinions of both the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of Ohio are set forth verbatim.

An Exact Parallel.

"The facts are on all fours with the case at bar, except that disbursing officers in the Crane case personally signed the warrants in blank and left them with the clerk, whereas in the instant case the printer, instead of the officers, placed the signatures upon the warrants with the consent of such officers. The clerk in the Crane case misused the warrants, as we pointed out, without the knowledge, consent or assent of such officers, but they were nevertheless held personally liable for funds misappropriated by the clerk, the Supreme Court of Ohio saying [Our Brief, p. 264]:

"'The evidence unmistakably shows, even in the majority opinion of the Court of Appeals, that there was a plain failure of the clear duty on the part of the board of trustees. The majority opinion uses this language:

"'In this case the township clerk misappropriated various sums of money belonging to the township. His misappropriation was accomplished by procuring the signature of the township trustees to orders upon the treasurer, which orders were left in blank both as to amount and as to payee. This method he had pursued over a considerable space of time, and had been able to conceal from the eyes of the state inspectors his wrongs until the last examination.'

"To say that this is negligence does violence to the simplest forms of English. It is malfeasance in office, undoubted dereliction of a clear public duty; and the fact that it had been going on for years does not make it any less culpable so far as the public interests are concerned."

"It is quite evident from the foregoing that the trustees knowingly and openly permitted and aided the township clerk in thus misappropriating public moneys of the township. That they should respond to the public for this disregard of plain public duty there can be no doubt.'

"To assert that Thompson and Harding in this case, when they permitted signatures to be used for illegal purposes, were guilty of mere nonaction or negligence is, in the language of the Crane case, 'doing violence to the simplest forms of English.'

Act at Their Peril.

"In our brief [pp. 247-286] we pointed out that, when public officers charged with the disbursement of public funds [or private trustees charged with the disbursement of private funds] permit others to perform their duties, they act at their peril and are responsible for any misappropriation of funds by such others. The instant case is much stronger than the cases there cited, for in the instant case the public trustees, Thompson and Harding, knew of the misapplication of funds by those whom they claimed were acting in their behalf.

"The anomalous doctrine that it is mere negligence for a public officer whose duty it is to conserve public funds to knowingly turn his back and allow others to filch those funds finds no support in the precedents cited in the opinion.

PLEADING AND PROOF

"There is no variance between the pleading and the proof.

"At page 23 the opinion states:

"'And this court in Evans vs. People, 90 Ill. 384, said, "To authorize a conviction for conspiracy there must be proved to have been more than one person guilty." [Citing cases.]'

"In passing, we point out that, in criminal cases conspiracy is the gist of the action; but it is well recognized that in civil cases conspiracy is not the gist of the action and the defendants are severally liable for their wrongful acts, even in the absence of proof of conspiracy. [12 C. J. 585, 581; Puterbaugh 10th Ed. 840; Doremus vs. Hennessy, 82 Ill. App. 391; affirmed, 176 Ill. 608].

"But the next statement in the opinion is of great importance in the instant case:

"It is said at page 33:

"'This rule has been recognized in a number of cases holding that a cause of action based upon active wrongdoing is separate and distinct from a cause of action based upon negligent nonaction.'

An Elementary Rule.

"Personal injury and other cases are cited. The rule of law is elementary but has no application to the case at bar. Mere negligence is not charged in the bill of complaint. As above pointed out, breach of trust, one of the most odious terms in the law, is not negligence; it is an affirmative wrongful act. After the allegation mentioned in the opinion, page 3, that each act of every conspirator was the act of every other conspirator, done with the knowledge and consent of all conspirators, the bill alleges [Addl. Abst., page 23]:

"'The warrants of the city were unlawfully and fraudulently signed and issued by the said William Hale Thompson and George F. Harding, unto three real estate experts.'

"Harding and Thompson authorized the printer to place their facsimile signatures on these warrants; this was a valid signing under the statute and had the same effect as if they had signed in their own proper handwriting. The authorization to issue warrants bearing such signatures was lawful so long as the warrants were lawfully used.

"But when they learned that the warrants were being unlawfully used, the authorization became unlawful. It was their duty to revoke it. By failing to revoke it, they became guilty of breach of trust. The permissive use of their signatures for the unlawful purpose was an authorization of their use for that unlawful purpose.

NOT APPROPRIATIONS

The B appropriations aggregating $210,000 were the only funds out of which the three experts could be paid. Bond ordinances are not appropriations.

"The opinion [which has been modified following the filing of this motion for a rehearing] states [p. 21]:

"The City Beautiful bond ordinances thus constituted an appropriation of bond funds for payment of the cost of real estate valuations, and no appropriation by the city council in the 1920 annual appropriation bill was necessary to authorize the payment of the three experts' bills out of the bond funds. These bond funds were in the city treasury available for the payment of the expert fees, and the designation of funds under the 'S' account in the annual appropriation ordinance could not in any manner affect the legal right of the experts to have their fees for services rendered in 1920 paid out of these funds, regardless of their designation. The designation of a certain 'B' account by the city council in its annual appropriation ordinance for payment of expert fees did not in any manner limit the right of the three experts to recover for their services out of said bond funds.'

"In other words, the opinion holds that the bond issues in this case constitute appropriations. Any other attempted appropriation by the city council was null and void. The executive officers were at liberty to spend the bond funds in accordance with the terms of such ordinances without let or hindrance by the council. This principle, we believe, is contrary to the long established practice in the city of Chicago, to Illinois and foreign authority, and would result in indescribable extravagance and chaos in municipal finances.

ARGUMENT ON STATUTES

"The opinion, in holding that the city council may not employ engineers and real estate experts, misapprehends the statutes.

"On page 20 the opinion states:

"'Under the statute the city council is vested with authority to determine the character and locality of the construction work in the proposed improvement, and while it had no authority to employ engineers and real estate appraisers or to control and direct court proceedings, it did have authority to determine the character and location of subways, pavements, and sidewalks and the manner of their construction.' [Italics ours.]

"The italicized portion of this quotation evidently follows the argument of appellants, first, that under the case of People vs. Faherty, 306 Ill. 119, the lawyers used by the board must be appointed by the law department but nevertheless must follow the instructions of the board with respect to court proceedings; and second, the further argument of appellants that section 83 of the local improvements act authorizes the board to hire appraisers.

"The first proposition is correct if it be understood that the council must appropriate for the salary of the lawyers and for the cost of court proceedings, although, after such appropriation, the direction of the litigation rests in the board.

Local Improvements Act.

"The second proposition is a misapprehension of the provisions of the local improvement act.

"Section 83 provides that the board may hire 'such assistant attorneys, engineers, clerks, inspectors, etc., etc., as may be necessary to carry into effect the purposes of this act.' The board of local improvements has no power to employ engineers, valuators, etc., etc., without prior appropriation by the city council, as has been decided by this court in the leading case of De Kam vs. Streator, 316 Ill. 123 [our brief, page 240], where the very question was involved. In City of Harvard vs. McCauley, 253 Ill. App. 218 [cert. den.], exactly the same question was raised and held adversely to defendants' contention here. [Our brief, pages 204-222.] Section 94 of the local improvements act [our brief, page 212] provides that "'The cost and expense of maintaining the board . . . and the entire cost and expense attending the making and return of the assessment rolls and the necessary estimates, examinations, advertisements, etc. . . . shall be paid by the city, village, or town out of its general fund . . .'

Provision Is Cited.

"The bond funds in the instant case filled the place of general funds usable for the purposes expressed in Section 94. [Our Brief, pp. 181-184; 220.] Since the expense of engineers and real estate appraisers and of court proceedings must be borne in the first instance out of the general fund of the corporation, such expense must necessarily be appropriated for by the council. This is expressly provided in Section 3 of Article VII., set forth in the opinion at page 18:

"'No expenditure for an improvement to be paid for out of the general fund of the corporation shall exceed in any one year the amount provided for such improvement in the annual appropriation bill.'

"The court has plainly overlooked the force of the De Kam case and the McCauley case and it has also overlooked the interrelation between Sections 83 and 94 of the Local Improvements Act and Section 3 of Article VII. of the Cities and Villages Act.

$50 a Day Provided.

"The order of Feb. 5, 1920, standing alone or construed with prior and subsequent legislation of the city council, provided $50 a day and not the percentage rate for the three real estate experts.

"Overlooked—As above stated, the opinion has held that the city beautiful bond ordinances were appropriations and that the city council had no authority over the hiring of the valuators; its attempt to exercise control by the B and S appropriations in the annual appropriation ordinances of 1920 was entirely nugatory. If this be true, there is no reason for the opinion to discuss any council action which purported to fix the rate of pay of the experts. The sum of $26,600,000 had been appropriated by the people to pay amongst other things for experts' services. According to the opinion this appropriation was for the executives to spend. The council's power was exhausted. Any effort on its part to retain control was nugatory. The order of Feb. 5 and the 1920 appropriation bill were void. On the theory of the opinion any discussion of the rate of pay fixed by the order of Feb. 5 is beside the point. The executives alone could fix the rate.

An Admission Made.

"It is practically admitted by the opinion [page 13] that the council in the order of Feb. 5 provided a rate of pay for Waller, Lyons and Merigold at $50 a day, for it is said:

"'The insertion of the words 'at $50 per day' after the names of Waller, Lyons and Merigold in the last provision of the order must have been through an inadvertence. . . .' [This sentence was left out of the modified court opinion, but the court still holds that the council fixed the rate of pay on a percentage basis.]

"But the authorities are legion to the effect that a legislative body speaks only through its enactments and that its enactments import verity. They stand unless amended by that body itself. The opinion overlooks the fact that a court may not declare a plain provision to be an inadvertence and substitute therefor that which it thinks the legislative body meant to enact. This is not even controverted by appellants. There is no evidence in the record that the council made a mistake. This is fully covered in our brief, pp. 372-7, 613-615.

Reasoning Analyzed.

"But let us see how the opinion arrives at the conclusion that the rate of $50 a day as provided in the order of Feb. 5 was an inadvertence and how the opinion arrives at the intention of the council and the conclusion that it really intended to provide 1 per cent of the value of property:

"It is said (page 13) that in the first part of the order of Feb. 5 the board of local improvements is authorized to employ the following: 'Real estate experts, 4 on the basis of 1 per cent of the value of property and $50 a day for testifying in court . . .' and says the opinion:

"'. . . it is further provided "that before retaining the services of any special counsel, real estate expert, building expert, rent expert, or engineer under this order the board of local improvements shall secure the approval of the committee on finance on the sum and the rate of compensation to be paid." This provision is in direct conflict with the second and last provisions of the same order, in both of which the council itself fixed the sums and rates of compensation to be paid. It would therefore not be within the power of a committee to override and in effect repeal the order of the city council by fixing any different sum or rate of compensation.'

"A Plain Misapprehension."

"This is a plain misapprehension. The order authorizes the board of local improvements to employ real estate experts on the percentage basis, provided the approval of the committee on finance is first obtained as to 'the sum and the rate' of compensation; but for the time being the order provides:

"'Ordered that the employment by the board of local improvements of . . . Edward C. Waller Jr., Ernest H. Lyons, and Arthur S. Merigold, real estate experts at $50 per day. . . . be and the same is hereby approved.'

"The approval of the percentage rate by the committee on finance would not be, as stated in the opinion, 'in effect repealing the order of the city council by fixing' a different rate of compensation. How could the action of the finance committee be contrary to the terms of the order when the order itself expressly conferred the authority upon the finance committee to take such action? Would the committee on finance be repealing the order if it changed the terms of compensation in compliance with the terms of the order itself? . . .

SOME INCONSISTENCIES

"Inconsistencies within the opinion itself.

"That the court must have overlooked and misapprehended the contentions of complainant is shown by the following inconsistencies which are to be found within the opinion itself:

"It is said on page 20:

"'Under the statute the city council is vested with authority to determine the character and locality of the construction work in the proposed improvement, and while it had no authority to employ engineers and real estate appraisers or to control and direct court proceedings, it did have authority to determine the character and location of subways, pavements and sidewalks and the manner of their construction.'

"While on page 21:

"'While the fees were grossly excessive for the services rendered, the city council by unanimous vote fixed the fees to be paid the real estate experts and directed their employment and payment. The city council had full authority to pass upon this question.'

A Missouri Case Cited.

"On page 20 the opinion quoting with approval a Missouri case says:

"'This court held that no appropriation in the annual appropriation bill was necessary, since by the bond ordinance "and the vote of the people held under the same, the proceeds of these bonds were put beyond the control of the common council either to apportion or appropriate."'

"While on page 21 it is said:

"'Its [the council's] action [in fixing the rate of pay] was legislative and is not subject to review by the court, in the absence of any proof to establish the allegations of the bill that the city council was dominated or controlled by these defendants.'

"If the control of the proceeds of the bonds was put beyond the control of the council, how could its action in trying to control those funds be anything more than a mere nullity? If the executives had sole authority to hire the experts, how may they escape liability through any act of the council?

Construing Council Order.

"'Any reasonable interpretation of these successive and concurring acts of the finance committee, board of local improvements and city council, both prior and subsequent to Feb. 5, 1920, all fixing their pay on a percentage basis, when considered together, as they must be, produces the inevitable conclusion that long practice and definite authority were combined in the action of the board of local improvements in its employment of the three experts, Waller, Lyons, and Merigold, on a basis of 1 per cent of the value of property plus $50 per day for testifying in court in behalf of the city.'

Circumstances Excluded.

"But while discussing the knowledge of Thompson and Harding and their participation in the conspiracy the court excludes from consideration all facts and circumstances occurring prior to April 6, 1920, the date of the first newspaper article, saying, page 28:

"'As above stated, these newspaper articles are referred to for the purpose of charging both Thompson and Harding with knowledge of the alleged unlawful acts from the time the articles appeared. In other words, these articles are relied upon as constituting notice or warning to Thompson and Harding that others were unlawfully diverting moneys of the city. This is, of course, inconsistent with the theory of the bill that Thompson and Harding were parties to the conspiracy from its inception and were active in carrying out its objects.'

"'but for these alleged notices or warnings appellants would have known nothing of the alleged conspiracy and unlawful diversion of funds.'

"No such 'tacit confession' or 'belief' could have been predicated upon anything except the misapprehension of the court aforesaid.

Justice Marshall Quoted.

"We cannot conclude this petition with more appropriate and pointed language than that of Justice Marshall of the Supreme court of Wisconsin, whose opinions on the responsibilities of public officers constitute landmarks in this field of jurisprudence, in the case of Northern Trust company vs. Snyder, 118 Wis. 516, 39 N. W. 460, 471:

"'A state of ignorance, we are told, is a state of bliss, but it is not one of security in a legal sense, for all are presumed to know the law, and that needs to be applied with consid

The True Story of the Fish That Walked on Land

"Tell me a fairy story," the child says.

"Well, my dear," we begin as we take the little one on our knee, "once a long time ago there was a— a—," and here we start racking our brains for the most impossible thing we can think of, never for a moment realizing that if we wanted to build the most amazing fairy story ever told, all we should have to do is relate the story of ourselves.

"There was a— a— fish," we could say (unless we chance to be fundamentalists) "who one day decided he would like to get out and walk on the land."

Whereupon, amidst the child's giggles, we could begin the true story of the greater part of the whole development of what biologists call the cortex, or new brain, the brain that they say helps us to modify conduct, or adapt ourselves to new conditions, or suddenly change our methods or our actions to get out of tight places; the brain, in fact, that has come all the way up from the backbone of the fish until it has settled above the eyebrows of the man.

Or, if we chance to be fundamentalists, we need only go back a few thousand years and say, "Once, my dear, there was a tribe of people in a land where there was plenty to eat, but everybody wasn't getting it. The game was scarce and scary, and they couldn't catch it. Then, one day, a man who was sitting on a log suddenly got up and tied a string to his rock and whirled it around his head and threw it at the game. And he got enough to eat. And they called him a genius—or they would have called him a genius, if they had known how to say it—and then they all tied strings to their rocks and they all got enough to eat. Yes, my dear, that was what they called a sling shot, the same kind of weapon with which little David slew big Goliath."

Or—"They were in a boat, a little thing made out of bark that they were pulling around with oars. And there wasn't enough trading where they were and there was plenty of good trading in the land nearby. And the wind was blowing and the boat was rocking. And then suddenly one man stood up and spread out his goatskin coat. And the wind caught it and pulled the boat along. And they called him a genius—or would have, you know—and then they all stood up and spread out their coats, and they all found bigger and better markets of trade because they did something differently. And that was the beginning of sailing boats and ships and travel to far lands. Yes, that is even why you are here tonight in this far land, called America, and sitting on Daddy's knee."

The cortex, the new brain---the tribe with plenty to eat but no way of reaching it, the modification of conduct---the man standing up in the boat, the readjustment to circumstance: what a fairy story, what a tale.

Then suddenly we sit up straight in our chair, and the child, real or imaginary, sees our mouth tight-set and our eyes far away.

"Why, that's our problem," we say. "Old order of things won't work, readjustment to circumstance, plenty for everybody, but everybody isn't getting it. Plenty of money but money isn't working. Must find new methods of approach. Must do new thinking. How can I iron out my production problem? How can I get my advertising dollar to go farther? Mass production. Mass outlet. I have the mass production. Why am I not getting more of the mass outlet? How are my people spending my money? Savings deposits increasing by millions and my sales going down. What's wrong with this picture?"

Whereupon we glance across the table at some headline and story which tells us in one way or another that "everything is all right, Mr. Manufacturer. Just keep on doing what you always have done. Your production is a little greater than consumption, that's all. You're a little in advance of your time. All you have to do is wait for America to catch up with you."

"Grrh," you growl. "The owners of canals and post roads waited for America to catch up with them. And they saw America go past them at sixty miles an hour on a railroad train. Hmmm, I guess the railroads are doing a little thinking, too, right now."

Gentlemen, we are no longer in an age when one genius affects an era with a goatskin coat. Ten thousand heads of American manufacture are adjusting the sails of their imagination to the new winds of trade; are trying to find new methods of locomotion, or promotion, or whatever you care to call it, that will move their mass of production to a mass of homes.

For mass production is your job and we can't tell you about that. Our job is mass outlet. And we can help you with that.

Here in True Story Magazine we have a great composite of America's wage-earning masses. An exclusive world of millions absolutely vital to the mass production by which you must carry on. Here is the field you must penetrate. Here's where your adjustments must be made. For here in True Story Magazine is the greatest concentration of wage earners that the world has ever known.

ORDER ALL LAND REASSESSED; TAX BILLS WILL DROP

for 1930, if they would keep their expenditures within their incomes. It would also reduce the income of the state.

Two-thirds on Land.

The county's current tax bill of $233,162,829 largely falls upon real estate, land, and buildings. While real estate pays from 82 to 85 per cent of the total, no recent compilation shows how much is paid by land and how much by buildings, but the real estate experts "guess" that two-thirds of real estate's totals falls upon land only. On that rough and admittedly inaccurate basis of reckoning a 30 per cent decrease in land values would save the property owners $46,632,000, while a 20 per cent decrease would mean a saving of $25,492,000. These estimates are 11 to 20 per cent of the total tax levy, and the aggregate tax incomes of the tax spenders will have to be reduced accordingly if the reviewers make their reassessment stick.

"It will be said that any reduction in taxes now made will cripple all local governments which levy and spend tax moneys," reads the reviewers' statement. Our answer is that if lower taxes produce lower revenues, then all such local governments must cut down their running expenses accordingly. If a private corporation must cut its expenses a public corporation must do likewise.

Budgets Could Be Cut.

"We suggest that if all of the municipal corporations would make a complete audit—the same as private corporations—they could quickly ascertain how much tax money has been misspent through waste and other causes and by drastic economy could find the way to cut 25 per cent of their own running expenses.

"The time for action—not talk—has now arrived. This board will take the responsibility for assessing values on real estate in Cook county that will be fair and just to every property owner. It will take time, but it will be done. In the meantime, we are open to all suggestions that will expedite this tremendous work."

The statement of the reviews, "To the Property Owners of Cook County," is reasonably comprehensive. It starts with the state constitution guaranteeing equity and uniformity in taxes. It sets forth the duty of the assessors and reviewers to value each tract and lot "at its fair cash value, estimated at the price it would bring at a fair, voluntary sale."

Reviews 1928 Reassessment.

The statement summarizes the reassessment of all real estate ordered by the state tax commission. It says that it was estimated that this job could be done in four months at a cost of $800,000, but that it actually took 16 months at a cost of $8,000,000.

REASSESS PERSONAL PROPERTY IN COUNTY, PLEA OF BOARD

A reassessment of personal property under a revision of the present methods of levying the tax and reform of the board of assessors and the board of review is advocated in a report of the joint commission on real estate valuations. The report, prepared by John O. Rees, director of the commission, was presented to the county board yesterday by George O. Fairweather, chairman of the commission.

The report points out that approximately $300,000,000 in tax paying personal property has slid off the assessment roll in ten years. In 1918 the full assessed valuation of tax paying personal property was $704,000,000. It dropped to $521,000,000 in 1927 and will not exceed $400,000,000 in 1928, the report states.

The absence of uniformity in assessing items of personal property is held to be more aggravated with less justification than was discovered in real estate assessments before the reassessment. The personal property tax has been ignored by the two boards as though it were a festering sore, the report states in discussing an ostrich like attitude toward this phase of taxation by the public and tax officials.

As the report was delivered to the county board Reviewer Edward R. Litsinger started hearing complaints of personal property assessments. Before plunging into the 225 complaints before him Reviewer Litsinger warned that any revisions might be subject to a revision under a possible personal property reassessment order by William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, which is to hold a hearing tomorrow.

That was a reassessment as of April 1, 1928. Against that reassessment result the board of review received 10,000 complaints.

Continuing, the reviewers say: "We started to review such complaints as quickly as possible, but soon found it was physically impossible to finish the work and deliver the books in time to collect the 1928 taxes by July 1, 1930.

"It now appears that since July 1 only about two-thirds of the total 1928 taxes have been paid, that about one-third is now unpaid and in default, and that the county treasurer filed an application in the County court to have a judgment entered against such property, and sale be made of all delinquent taxes.

"On Dec. 4 THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE stated that out of the total taxes of $233,000,000 levied in 1928, $51,000,000 or 22 per cent were still unpaid; that a large percentage of the $51,000,000 will actually be lost, so that there will not be sufficient funds to pay the running expenses of local governments this year."

Other Reasons for Action.

In citing other reasons for the reassessment, the statement continues:

"It further appears that real estate values fluctuated widely between 1927 and 1930; that prices were highly speculative; that the 1928 assessment was made when prices were highest, and that by 1930 a large percentage of these values dropped from 10 to 50 per cent. It is also known that on account of the depression millions of dollars of real estate mortgages are in default or under foreclosure. Also tha the 1929 tax rate has been increased, so that on a piece of real estate of the same value in 1929 as in 1928, the taxes for 1929, payable April 1, 1931, will be about 20 per cent higher. Therefore if all the 1929 values remain the same as they were for 1928, every taxpayer will have to pay 20 per cent more on April 1, 1931, than he paid last July.

Delay by Assessors.

"The board of assessors should have delivered to this board of review the revised assessments for 1929 on Aug. 12, 1930. But again there was delay, and those books were not delivered until Nov. 7. In the meantime more than 80,000 complaints have been filed against the 1929 values. Again it will be a physical impossibility for this board to review all such complaints in time to allow for the collection of 1929 taxes by April 1, 1931.

"These desperate conditions caused this board to make a most careful study of the entire assessment and tax question as it affects property values, as well as the welfare of the citizens of the entire county, and to determine on such action as justice and equity do require.

"To that end—in conjunction with our land committee and such real estate authorities as will give their help—we have decided to revalue and reassess all real estate in Cook county as of April 1, 1929. We will take up one township at a time, starting at the farm lands and working toward the center of Chicago and assess such new values as under the law may be fair and just.

Building Values Too High.

"Aside from the values assessed on land alone, we have considered the values assessed on buildings and improvements. We find that under the reassessment the assessors based their values and assessments on improvements on the cost of construction as of April 1, 1928—being the highest cost in the history of the United States. It now appears that such costs have dropped about 20 per cent in the last two years. On that basis the present assessment on buildings in the county may be 20 per cent too high.

"We would like to review such building values also and make an equitable reduction for 1929; but the task is so great and the time is so short that it is a physical impossibility to do do so. If the attempt were made it might involve more costs, bond issues, and confusion than the saving affected. However, we are hereby serving notice on the board of assessors that they must revise their assessed values on buildings and improvements for the year of 1930 and adjust the same to the present market cost or else this board, on its own motion, will do so as soon as the 1930 assessments are delivered to us."

AUDITOR SAYS COUNTY FACES $3,500,000 DEFICIT

County Auditor Lee J. Howard yesterday reported to the county board that the county is facing a deficit of approximately $3,500,000 at the end of its fiscal year of 1930 as a result of the reduction of the assessed valuation of real estate and an uncollected 18 per cent of 1928 taxes. The report was referred to the finance committee of the county board for action on Friday.

The net collection of taxes to Dec. 1 was $16,163,340 out of a total levy of $20,329,711. Michael O'Connor, clerk of the board, pointed out that the levy was based on an estimated assessed valuation of five billion dollars, while the valuation proved to be $662,000,000 lower than the estimate.

The county board was asked by Commissioner Mary McEnerney to halt the contract granted a nonunion printing company for the printing of 1928 real estate assessment lists and award it to a union company. It was decided to inquire whether such a move can be taken legally.

Watch Your Throat!

Don't Let it Get Sore or "Tight"!

A sore throat may be the start of something serious! Treated promptly and decisively a "sore" throat need not get really sore or develop dangerously. Get McKesson's Extol on the job as soon as you can. That's positively the best thing you can do. Extol will stop an oncoming sore throat in three garglings of one minute each. It's so highly germicidal and fast it's the "10-second antiseptic". Also, it's extremely penetrating, which is equally important. It penetrates the folds and crevices in the mouth and throat; also the mucous membrane, and reaches the germs that lie hidden underneath the outer layer of mucosa. Hence it clears up a sore throat, cold in the nose or head in a matter of minutes. If used daily as a preventive measure it will guard you through the Winter from infections. For all its germicidal strength, Extol is utterly harmless—and a most delightful and refreshing mouth wash. Makes other preparations seem insipid by comparison. BLAST ON FRENCH FLOATING PRISON KILLS 1, WOUNDS 1

LA ROCHELLE, France, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A blinding explosion shattered the bow of the floating penitentiary La Martiniere today, killing an engineer, severely wounding a fireman and giving 500 convicted criminals a respite of several weeks before they depart for Devil's Island.

The sinister red, black and yellow craft, built of iron and steel, was being overhauled in preparation for sailing Feb. 1 for the island when Ferdinand Cuissard, the fourth engineer, entered a forward cage bearing a lighted lamp.

Engineer Blown to Pieces.

There was a terrific explosion of gas which had accumulated in the hermetically sealed cage for weeks, and Cuissard's body was blown to pieces. Parts of it were found 150 feet away.

The fireman, Alphonse Lemichoir, was flung overboard into La Rochelle bay. He may recover. The entire forward deck area of the boat, an area 100 square feet, was wrecked and bolts in her steel hull were loosened, causing leaks.

The steel bars an inch thick on one of the cages reserved for especially bad prisoners were twisted. Two special cells, in which some prisoners are confined on bread and water, were undisturbed and undamaged.

Convicts Hear Blast.

The ship stood in La Pallice harbor—an American base during the world war—and the explosion was plainly heard by convicts quartered in the penitentiary on the Isle of Ré five miles away. Through underground channels the convicts knew within an hour what had happened and that their trip to Devil's island would be postponed for several weeks.

No tears were shed by the hard-boiled prospective passengers. A company of Senegalese soldiers mounted guard around the Isle of Ré tonight as a precaution against a possible outbreak.

The sinister old La Martiniere is the last convict ship of the twentieth century. Time after time she has put out of La Rochelle with a cargo of "lifers" sentenced to spend the rest of their days in the living death of Devil's island. She seemed a vessel out of the middle ages.

It was always a bitter day when she put out of this port, for the women who were bidding their men farewell would scream hysterically from the pier as the ship backed off. In the morning the prisoners would be trotted on to the ship between rows of soldiers with fixed bayonets.

Huddled in Steel Cages.

Once aboard the ship the men were huddled by the hundreds into steel cages. There was never a revolt, for ten pumps could pour hot steam into those cages at a moment's notice. For the persistent hotheads there was a "de luxe" stateroom, whose occupant had to squat half erect with both feet thrust through steel bars five inches apart. A real hard case would stand that for about an hour.

FINED AFTER GAMBLING RAID.

Philip Ferron, alleged keeper of a gambling house at 17 West Quincy street, in which 55 men were seized in a raid last Saturday, was fined $100 and costs yesterday in South State Street court. The others were discharged.

HURT IN AUTO

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER.

Count Felix von Luckner, famous German sea raider, who came through the war unharmed, was injured yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding with his secretary and two friends skidded on the snow covered highway north of Waukegan and overturned. He suffered a double fracture of his right collarbone, three broken ribs, and a scalp laceration.

His secretary, Mr. Englestrom, and Mrs. Rose Miller Moselle of Chicago were also slightly hurt. Mrs. Moselle's husband was not hurt. The party was returning from St. John's Military academy, where the count had lectured. It was said at the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan that the count may be confined to his bed for three weeks.

No auto deaths were reported yesterday in Cook county, the 1930 toll remaining 1,065.

A coroner's jury investigating the death of George E. Gallagher, 5529 North Christiana avenue, assistant secretary of the National Life Insurance company, 29 South La Salle street, who was drowned Sunday night when his automobile plunged into the lake at the navy pier, returned a verdict of accidental death. Mrs. Gallagher testified that her husband was in the habit or driving to the lake. She advanced the theory that he had been blinded by the driving snow.

HEAR INSURANCE PLEA OF LINGLE'S WIDOW TODAY

The Illinois industrial commission is scheduled today to hear the claim of Mrs. Helen Sullivan Lingle, widow of Alfred Lingle, who was slain by a gunman in the Illinois Central railroad suburban subway at Michigan avenue and Randolph street last June, for compensation from THE TRIBUNE. Mrs. Lingle bases her action on the contention that her husband was an employé killed in the line of duty.

The claim, brought by Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington, is for $4,250, which is the maximum allowed under the workman's compansation act in cases of Lingle's classification. Of the amount $3,750 is for death benefit and $250 each for two children. The hearing is to be called in the commission's offices at 205 West Wacker drive.

G. O. P. FACTIONS CAST ABOUT FOR MAYORAL 'ANGEL'

Fund Getter Is Wanted as Fusion Candidate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Brundage, Deneen, Snow, and Lundin Republican groups were casting about yesterday for a candidate to back in the Republican mayoralty primaries against Charles V. Barrett and Mayor Thompson if he runs. Among the names tentatively trotted out in various conferences and in the gossip were those of Thomas E. Wilson, the packer; Judge Walter P. Steffen; Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court, and Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago.

Senator Charles S. Deneen is expected home towards the end of the week. Conferences are expected upon his return with a view of uniting these groups, if possible, upon some candidate.

Some of the Brundage and Deneen leaders declared yesterday that what is really wanted by these groups is a third candidate and a Gabriel. The specifications are that he needs must be able to blow a trumpet blast in the primaries but must be an "angel" in the political sense of the word, able to evoke a campaign fund.

Finances Focus Attention.

The financial end of the situation occupied much attention. The group leaders argued that to get anywhere in the primaries organization is an essential. As they view it, the problem is to pick a man who, if unable to finance himself, has a public record that will summon him support in the shape of campaign contributions.

"An orgapization is requisite," said one Brundage leader, "first to get the vote at the primaries, and second, which is quite as important, to get the votes counted after they have been cast."

In the conferences yesterday Thomas O. Wallace, Circuit court clerk and a Brundage stalwart, appeared to have considerable support aa a possible candidate who might prove acceptable to the groups which are against Mr. Barrett, who is an avowed candidate, and the mayor or whomsoever the city hall picks.

Some Cool to Albert.

The Deneen committeemen last week picked Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] as their choice. The names of James Kearns, former chief clerk of the Municipal court, and Ald. John A. Massen [48th] were presented, and Mr. Albert was given the preference. Since then, however, it appears that other groups have not warmed up to Ald. Albert.

Reports in the various circles yesterday were that Col. Noble B. Judah was called upon by a delegation a few days ago, but reiterated that he would not run. Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, is also reported to have declined when approached by a group which had been grooming him. Howard Elmore, former president of the sanitary district, is still mentioned, but appears to have made little or no advance in the last two weeks.

In the political talk appeared conjectures from some of the leaders that Judge John H. Lyle might be the man Deneen and Brundage forces might support. At the end of the day, however, affairs were in what the politicians term "in statuary quo."

Eight Days Before Filing.

The day before Christmas is first day for filing, and the coming eight days are regarded as somewhat crucial on the Republican end.

Among the politicians appears a note of skepticism that the Brundage, Deneen, Snow, Lundin elements will be able to get together.

The return of Gov. Emmerson from Washington was followed by reports that some sort of understanding has been reached which may result in the reëlection of David Shanahan as speaker of the lower house of the legislature. Two weeks ago the Democrats were offered the votes of ten anti-Emmerson downstate Republicans and twenty Thompson followers from Cook county for Michael Igoe for speaker, but the proffer was rejected with an announcement that the Democrats wanted no bipartisan affiliation of that sort with the Thompson camp, which will be one great target in the fight over mayor.

STIMSON BLOCKS INQUIRY INTO RED ACTIVITIES

Forbids Visa Office Chief to Talk in Public.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Members of special house committee investigating soviet activities in this country bumped into a stone wall today when they attempted to compel an official of the state department to testify in public.

Summoned before the committee to talk about the passports of Russians entering the United States Anderson D. Hogdon, chief of the visa office, explained that Secretary of State Stimson did not wish him to testify except behind closed doors because it was "against the public interest."

Demand Stimson Be Censured.

Several committee members immediately demanded that Mr. Stimson be censured.

After several minutes of wrangling it was agreed that Chairman Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.] should write Mr. Stimson asking him to point out what parts of previous testimony by state department witnesses was "against the public interest" and explain why Mr. Hogdon shunned publicity.

Earlier in the day Boris E. Skvirsky, head of the soviet information bureau and representative in Washington of the Russian foreign office, submitted to a prolonged examination on the work of his mission.

Chairman Fish sought to draw the witness out as to whether he assisted Russians to get into the United States. Mr. Skvirsky said his only duty was to assist Americans to get into Russia.

10 Million Seizure Case Begins.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Seizure by the soviet government of the assets in Russia of the Equitable Life Assurance society amounting to $10,000,000 is one of the factors preventing the company from carrying out its contracts with Russian policy holders, according to testimony today in a test case involving claims against the company which may aggregate $15,000,000.

The entire day was taken up with the testimony of Prof. Alexander M. Sack, expert on international law and now teaching at Northwestern university. He was put on by the defense to explain the application of Russian law in the case.

Cites Russian Court Decisions.

Prof. Sack cited court decisions in which it was held that impossibility of carrying out contracts in Russia made such agreements void. He also said that contracts which became "purposeless" also became void under Russian law.

He also cited the fact that the action of the soviets seizing the Equitable company's assets, the Russian court decisions created a situation where the company could not continue its contracts. Counsel contended that such action by the soviets relieves the Equitable from any obligation to the Russian policy holders.

DIVORCE GIVEN TO MRS. HANELIN AFTER LONG SUIT

Mrs. Marian Hanelin, 4452 North Racine avenue, was granted a divorce yesterday from Dr. William B. Hanelin, physician with offices at 185 North Wabash avenue, before Superior Judge Rudolph Desort. The case was one of the most bitterly contested in the legal history of the county, having been heard by fourteen judges before Judge Desort ended the controversy.

The judge had heard the case intermittently since he took office fourteen days ago, in an attempt to bring about an agreement. The divorce was granted on charges of desertion after Mrs. Hanelin, who is an aunt of Robert Perbohner, member of the board of local improvements and a confidant of the mayor, waived charges of cruelty.

The Hanelins were married July 31, 1907, and separated Aug. 6, 1928. She brought her action in August, 1928. Since that time the files in the case have grown to a weight of 49 pounds.

THE TRACTION OUTLOOK.

The people of Chicago voted last July for unification of the surface and elevated lines of the city and for subways. In the last few days there has been considerable activity along both these fronts. Whether the activity is also to be regarded as progress is questionable.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., as reorganization managers, have prepared a scheme for the exchange of securities by which the elevated lines and the surface lines would be merged into a single company. This plan has already been accepted by a number of committees representing the senior securities. It is being opposed by at least one of the committees representing the junior securities in the Chicago Railways company and by a number of estates and individuals, including Judge Harry Hamlin. The objectors charge that the earning power and assets of the surface lines are being taken away from them and given to holders of elevated properties.

The objectors contend, for example, that earnings applicable to the participation certificates of the north and west side surface lines, which last year amounted to $1,584,000, have been reduced under the Halsey-Stuart plan to $46,000, while much of the difference has been transferred to the securities of the elevated to the great injury of the former and the great benefit of the latter. The accuracy of this claim is a matter which the courts may be called upon to determine and the determination may require some years of litigation. There is reason to fear that during that period construction of additional transportation facilities will be slowed up if not suspended.

We would regard that as a misfortune at any time, and particularly at a time like this when there is great need for construction to provide jobs for the unemployed. Unless the plan is materially altered it seems altogether likely that the delay will be forced.

In this connection it is certain that objectors will not fail to take advantage of the circumstance that the reorganization plan is the work of the Insull bankers. The elevated is controlled by Insull interests, while the surface lines are not. The objectors may be counted upon, also, to stress the fact that the attorneys for Halsey, Stuart & Co. in the drafting of the plan were Schuyler, Dunbar & Weinfeld, the firm in which Sam Ettelson, Mayor Thompson's corporation counsel, was formerly a partner and with which he may be presumed still to be on friendliest terms. Mr. Ettelson in the past has had occasion to prove his friendship for Mr. Insull. The fact that at every turn Mr. Insull's associates and friends are found as sponsors of the plan will bolster the claim that the plan is unduly favorable to his interests.

It is to be hoped that the conflict can be adjusted without the long delays caused by litigation. As matters stand we doubt if the effort thus far spent on the reorganization can properly be characterised as progress.

The same judgment, though in somewhat modified form, may be given with respect to the planning of the subway. Here the board of local improvements, headed by Mr. Mike Faherty, has prepared an ordinance for the building of the State street subway. The design is open to considerable criticism. Too much thought has been devoted to the housing of the utilities in it and perhaps too little to such matters as the comfort and convenience of the passengers who will ride in it. There is reason to believe that the utilities have been given a good deal more space than they will need, partly at the expense of the fare-payers. The passage of the ordinance by the council, however, may not have closed the door to modifications in the interest of the public. The possibilities of improving the design should be explored.

RUSSIAN TRADE RESTRICTIONS.

Our government has announced that it can no longer place confidence in the sanitary inspection of the soviet government and must henceforth insist that any sausage casings imported from Russia must be disinfected under American auspices before being sold to the trade. The disinfection is to be conducted at the importer's expense.

The effect of this regulation, of course, will be to hamper importations from Russia in greater or less degree. We suspect that was the object which the regulation was intended to achieve. Dealers in sausage casings in Chicago have frequently had cause to complain of the dumping of the Russian product in our market with resultant dislocation of domestic prices. Sanitary measures offer an easy, if indirect, means of protecting our market.

If the government has resorted to a subterfuge, as seems not unlikely, we think it a matter for [illegible] government has a duty to protect domestic manufacturers and dealers from unfair foreign competition. It would have been far better to act directly against the soviet government's trade practices as such rather than deal with them indirectly, if effectively, in other ways.

The longer the soviet government lasts, the more certain it is that the issue must be faced. The soviets have a monopoly of Russia's foreign trade. They are buying machinery and services in western Europe and America and must pay for their purchases with exports of raw materials and semi-manufactures like pulpwood and sausage casings. The soviet sales policy may or may not be deliberately calculated to disrupt our markets, but at any rate it has had that tendency. The issue should be faced directly, and, if there is not enough law on the books to prevent dumping in this country, congress should provide the needed fortification.

Meanwhile our position is ambiguous. Soviet propagandists may be expected to take advantage of it to create the impression that Russia is the victim of capitalist discrimination, when the fact is that Russia is guilty of trade practices outlawed by most nations and should not be permitted to evade responsibility for them.

A MANUAL FOR GENERALS.

The war department has prepared a "Manual for the Commanders of Large Units" which lays down the general doctrines which are to govern the leaders of divisions, corps and armies. Our army, perhaps because of its small size in time of peace, has never before had such a manual.

It is unfortunate that the manual cannot somehow assure that the commanders of large units in another conflict will be men of outstanding ability, thoroughly versed in their profession. In the last war too many of them had neither qualification. It was even more unfortunate that despite the manifest shortcomings of many generals they remained in positions of the utmost responsibility. They could do this because of the protection afforded them by the military hierarchies which have, no doubt, always existed in armies, but seldom have showed such power in preventing the advancement of brilliant men outside their groups as in the last war.

It is hardly likely that in another war the dominant politicians at Washington will prove as helpful in furthering this kind of stultification as they were in 1917 and 1918. Then the effort of the politicians was directed largely toward preventing the elevation of numerous distinguished soldiers lest they become presidential candidates. Even the successes and failures of the higher officers who were given commands in France were suppressed for fear they might capture too much public good will. Naturally, this kind of suppression played directly into the hands of the military cliques, which were also intent upon covering up the shortcomings of the incompetents.

In any protracted war it is unlikely that the original leaders will all justify the confidence originally placed in them. It is to be hoped that in another war the United States government will not interfere as it did in the last war with the natural processes of rejection of the unfit and the selection of the more fit to replace them. Though the probabilities are overwhelming that the test of battle will find some unsuited to command, it is well that those who will find themselves in positions of greatest responsibility at the outbreak of hostilities be men of at least average competence. In establishing this minimum standard the new manual may prove of great value to the country.

THE WASHINGTON DODO.

Representative Joseph W. Byrns calls attention to the fact that seventy-two and a half million dollars has been available in appropriations for federal construction since spring and that the money is idle now in the treasury. Mr. Byrns is ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee. As a Democrat he would bring this matter up, but that does not change the face of the facts.

The bureaucracy, that mass of government to which office is a vested right and procedure a glacial movement, requires generations for its decisions and centuries for its action. Private enterprise observes a need, prepares its plans, and the builders have it done while the bureaucracy is out to lunch.

The Chicago postoffice from the time a generation and more ago when the big dome of the present federal building was in the blue prints has been twenty-five years behind the requirements of the mails. This is only one instance and it is not government. It is travesty. The bureaucracy gets no change from the introduction of new blood. It subdues any activities which may be injected into it. It rules by inertia. Next year is its sprightliest conception of the immediate present and 1950 is its idea of a rush job undertaken in 1930.

THE MINNESOTA PRESS LAW.

It should be added to the comment upon the Minnesota press law case, which appeared in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, that THE TRIBUNE'S assistance in carrying the appeal to the Supreme court has received the approval of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, which will contribute toward the expenses of the proceeding. The press in all sections of the country, as well as many leading men of the law, have indorsed THE TRIBUNE'S judgment of the Minnesota law and of the importance of the issues of constitutional principle which it raises.

Editorial of the Day

[Decatur (Ill.) Herald.]

Within the year hundreds of thousands of Chinese in an interior province have starved to death while great quantities of soy beans and other edible grains were piled upon the docks and railroad platforms of Manchuria and the port cities. There was food enough to keep all alive, but the starving could not get it because China had no roads over which it could be transported.

With pity, of course, but also with a pronounced superiority we regard the plight of the Chinese, so backward after all their centuries of civilization that they have not yet created a practical system of transport. At the same time we may read that farm board agencies in this country hold 70,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat they do not know what to do with, while every large city in the country strives desperately to keep numbers of its people from hunger.

Our advantage over the Chinese, after all, is not as marked as we thought. China fails in the distribution of food for the lack of one sort of road; we fail for the lack of another sort of road—a road of credit, or economic distribution, that would enable the movement of foodstuffs to the individuals who need them. Our engineering brains have been equal to the creation of long trails of steel and cement for the one sort of road. We are still all too near the Chinese in the crudity of another [illegible]

TREATING EPILEPSY.

In the treatment of epilepsy the home and not the hospital really determines the ultimate success of treatment. Coöperation and intelligent appreciation of the problem by the family are essential. These were a part of the comment of Dr. W. P. Lucas in discussing a report on the ketogenic treatment of epilepsy made by Drs. Helmholz and Keith. In about ten years of experience with this treatment Dr. Helmholz has tried it with approximately three hundred children.

They have found that this diet is of material benefit in about one-third of the cases and it does little or no good in the remainder. They use the word "cured" in reporting 43 cases; "improved" with 32, and "definitely failed to improve" with 66. The treatment is more effective with children than with adults. They classify epilepsy into subgroups and report some groups more amenable to treatment than others.

The diet used is very high in fats and very low in sugars and starches. The object sought is to keep the epileptic always in a state of acidosis. It was in commenting on this method of dieting and general care that Dr. Lucas spoke of the importance of the family doing their part. Epileptics must get exercise, they must not become constipated, they must not overeat, and they must live on food that may not always appeal. If the parents understand the purpose of the plan the chance that it will be properly carried out is greater.

Dr. Lucas reported some cases of epilepsy where hives was a factor. When the foods causing the hives were dropped from the diet the convulsions stopped. Part of the report by Dr. Helmholz parents should know about. "With the freedom from attacks of epilepsy we see marked improvement in the behavior of children. An almost incorrigible boy will change within two or three weeks so that the parents will say it is surprising. Not only has he had no further attacks, but his demeanor has changed completely."

A part of the report related to drying out epileptics as a means of treatment. This is done by allowing but little fluids in the diet, not much soup and milk, and but little water. In order to facilitate drying the food is not much salted. This so-called dehydration treatment of epilepsy is being tried by many at this time.

POUNDING OF HEART.

Mrs. C. O. writes: Permit me to add to your reasons given to Mrs. K. C. for pounding of the heart. First, reaching the arms over the head. This is very bad. Even when combing my hair I just reach up with my hands and try not to raise my arms. Second, nervousness, as you say, but most likely caused by anger. Never get in a temper and keep the thoughts as pleasant as possible. Another reason is eating before going to bed. Never eat anything after 2 p. m.

THE HATLESS FAD.

M. P. writes: I have gone without a head covering since early last summer and would like to know if it is safe to continue so. My work keeps me outside all day and therefore I am anxious to know.

REPLY.

MAY INCREASE STRAIN.

Worried Friend writes: A young woman had one kidney removed because of stone. It is not quite a year since the operation and now she is pregnant. Is it dangerous?

REPLY.

People with one good kidney generally get along very well. Pregnancy increases the strain, but one good kidney can carry the increase easily. The lady should be under medical supervision.

TEMPERATURE AND COUGH.

F. M. S. writes:

1. Is it possible for a child to run a temperature of 100 every afternoon from diseased tonsils?
2. He also has a bronchial cough. What would you suggest for him?

REPLY.

1. It is.
2. Have your physician see if anything is needed.

WIFE BECOMES CITIZEN.

Chicago, Dec. 4. — [Friend of the People.]—My husband is a citizen of the United States. I have my first naturalization papers but wish to know if I have to have witnesses when I get my second papers. Mrs. S. F.

If the husband is a citizen no declaration of intention [first paper] is necessary, but the applicant must have two citizens vouch for her residence and character who must have known her at least one year. Application may be obtained at the naturalization office, room 776 Postoffice building.

PAY AS PER CONTRACT.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a person buys a used car and pays half of the purchase price and then finds himself unable to continue, can he return the car and thus cancel the debt? W. R.

Your contract is probably so worded as to entitle the seller to repossess the car, sell for your account and hold you for the balance.

HOW CAL WOULD HAVE DONE IT.

The "Playing Politics with Human Misery," which the White House tossed off last week, is still echoing, reverberating, and crashing up and down Pennsylvania avenue and around the great dome of the capitol. And, oh, the human misery it cost in the breast of the senate, at whom the shot was aimed. There's human misery, anguish, and horrible suffering all over the lot. Now, if Cal Coolidge had wanted to say the same thing he would probably have done so a little gentler—like this: "The heights by great men, reached and kept, were not attained by sudden flight, and long, long afterward, from beginning to end, I found the song in the heart of a friend." (33 words at 2 dollars per word and counting afterward as 2 words, total $66.00, while the "Playing Politics with Human Misery" thing would only bring 10 bucks.)

A LADY ARRIVES AT MIDDLE AGE.

I can see for myself that my beauty is fading,
With freshness no longer my chiefest of charms,
That cold cream and powder do little towards aiding
The illusion of youth to lure love to my arms.

I care not: For wisdom's more potent than beauty,
As rivers grow deeper the closer the sea;
As little streams make of the larger great waters,
Many lovers have made a great lover of me.

From each I have learned in an intimate hour
Some secret of passion the gods must have known;
And every new love is a brand new adventure,
For every new lover has tricks of his own.

Youth made the mistake of expecting affection
Begotten of blossoms deflowered in May.

THE PHANTOM LOVER.

THERE OUGHT to be a national commission to do it! Do what? Wait a minute, we're coming to that. "RED GRANGE," said Bob Zuppke, the coach of Illinois, and with Harry Woodburne Chase, the new president of same, sitting right next to him at the alumni dinner Saturday night, "did more for colleges in the three years he played football than all the college presidents combined." THE BIG BUTTERN EGG MEN, to say nothing of the Big Brandy and Gin Boys down in Cuba, are dissatisfied with martial law and street fighting. Even if the U. Cuba loves its revolutions, but it would be best to have them in July and August when nobody wants to go there anyhow and not in the winter time when thirsty tourists with their tongues out a yard are selling their shirts to buy tickets to Havana.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, after blowing bugles and sounding the timbrels and the tom-toms, announces it will go to work on reforming the calendar. Splendid! Not that they'll reform the darned thing, but we'd rather they'd muck around with the calendar than mess around in more serious matters.

FIVE OF THE USHERS at the wedding of Al Capone's sister were grabbed by the cops for carrying revolvers. London and the continent generally will wonder why. Over there they think that at all Chicago weddings the ushers are armed to the teeth and the priest is hidden under a bomb-proof altar while he shouts the marriage vows through a hole bored in the steel plating. The bridegroom they believe always wears the conventional bulletproof vest while the bride carries a beautiful bouquet of lilies of the valley and a gas mask.

LONDON.—The offensive movement of the French and British has become general and is being pushed with strong forces particularly in Flanders, the Argonne, the Woevre and Alsace. The French claim to have been successful at all points except at Steinbach in Alsace, but the German official report says that the allies' attacks have been unsuccessful at several places. The French report decided gains near Ypres. The fact that the allies are in possession of Hollebeke in Flanders and that heavy fighting was going on all day shows that they have made appreciable advance during the last few days.

ROME.—Relations between Italy and Turkey have reached an acute stage and only an immediate public apology by the porte for the Hodeida incident can avoid a further breach. The Italian consul at Hodeida has taken refuge on a warship. It was a violation of the Italian consulate there—which Turkish troops invaded to arrest the British consul—that led to the present situation.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States made further demonstration of its determination not to tolerate continued firing by the Mexican factions at Naco, Sonora, into American territory by ordering three more regiments of infantry and three batteries of artillery to Naco. The infantry totals 3,000 men and brings the American force at Naco to about 5,000.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

CHICAGO.—Porch climbers made an unusually daring raid on the home of Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, 3612 Grand boulevard, while the family was at dinner and escaped in a buggy with $400 worth of booty.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An engagement which, although not formally announced, is tacitly acknowledged by both families is that of Miss Vivian Sartoris, daughter of Nellie Grant Sartoris and one of the belles of Washington, to Timothy Nichols of New York City. Miss Sartoris' venerable grandmother, Mrs. U. S. Grant, is particularly well pleased.

LONDON.—Lord Kitchener officially reports that in the battle at Magaliesberg, twenty-two miles from Pretoria, on Dec. 13 Gen. Clements lost fourteen men killed, including five officers, and had 550 of his men taken prisoner. The Boer loss is reported as heavy.

CHICAGO.—John C. Dore, first superintendent of the city schools of Chicago, taking the office in 1854, is dead in Boston at the age of 79.

DECEMBER 16, 1880.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There is considerable dissatisfaction expressed by southern congressmen over the nomination of William R. Woods of Georgia, late of Ohio, to the Supreme bench as a representative of the south. They consider the place belongs to a southern man and not to an Ohio "carpetbagger," who had simply been boarding in a southern city, as they put it.

CHICAGO.—The police department completed arrangements for extending the police telephone system all over the city. Exchanges are to be established at the central station and the city will be divided into small districts, each of which will be equipped with wagons and horses for instantaneous answers to calls.

CHICAGO.—John R. Clarke, temperance lecturer, spoke before a large audience in the Eighth Presbyterian church, Washington and Robey streets. In his address he urged the bestowal upon women of the right to vote.

DUBLIN.—Parnell, Davitt, and Dillon have received letters threatening them with death. Great excitement was caused here by the news that orders had been issued by the war office in London to the Scots' Guards to proceed to Ireland at once. The battalion numbers 800 bayonets and instructions have been issued to bring the force up to 1,000.

Grinnell, Ia., Dec. 10.—As the Republican party is short of good advisers I offer my services. Facing the presidential election of 1932 the diagnosis of its case its complicated, the prognosis discouraging. In its long and prosperous career, the party has had but three distinctive major issues: Slavery, the tariff, prohibition. The first of these is obsolete. The second—well, you know what the tariff has been doing to us. The third, from the standpoint of cold blooded politics, has become a doubtful asset, if not a positive liability. Therefore when he is marshaling his forces for the campaign of 1932, this is the message which Secretary Mellon should pass down along the line:

"Boys, it's hard, but there is only one thing to do. Our chief by my appointment, has declared that prohibition is a noble experiment. We can only take the position that it has not yet had a fair trial and that we must give it our support for four years more. Of course, that will turn the government over to the Democrats. In their first term they, and the country, will find that it is a great deal easier to point out the evils of prohibition than it is to install a workable substitute. Taking advantage of their mistakes, we will be ready, by 1936, to go forward in any direction."

This is the best advice that can be given. The only other alternative means not only disaster, but disgrace. By all precedents Mr. Hoover is entitled to another nomination. If he abandons, or materially modifies, the prohibitory law, Pinchot will head an aggressive third party, and even Pennsylvania will go Democratic. Remember Mrs. McCormick. CHARLES A. MILLER.

THE LIFE OF A TAXI DANCER.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—When a group of taxi dancers get arrested, no matter how innocent they may be, how the papers love to print their story in bold type and spread their pictures all over the place!

I am a taxi dancer and have been the sole support of my mother for three years. Sometimes we accept invitations from men, but so do stenographers and bookkeepers. When we get through dancing we are so tired we are glad to go to bed and rest, so we can earn our money the next day. Taxi dancers do not go out on wild parties with any man who asks them. There are exceptions, of course, but don't condemn all taxi dancers and paint them with the same brush. I know that I am as clean and moral as any other girl in the city of Chicago. Making a living by dancing is no joke, but it beats standing in a bread line or accepting charity.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—While we are all thrilled at the courageous fight that some of our judges are making to rid Chicago of gangsters, what about the parasites who, under pretense of redistricting neighborhoods and having a big pull with the assessors, can have your taxes cut at so much, according to valuation? Several home owners have been robbed of their hard earned cash.

THE DOWRY OF AN OFFICER'S BRIDE.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—I have noted the Associated Press correspondence in today's issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE regarding the marriage of Italian army officers, and while such correspondence in itself requires no comment I wish that your readers be given the real facts concerning the laws relating to the marriage of the officers.

The first requirement for an officer in order to be married is the consent from his superiors, and this consent is only given when it is definitely proven that the prospective bride belongs to a respectable family and has the moral and educational requisites to become the wife of an officer.

This requirement is also in force in various other armies of European nations.

The second requirement of the law is that the prospective wife of an army officer, up to the rank of major, must have as her own, and which will remain as her own, about 3,000 lire, which is equal to about $1,500.

This second requirement is made in order that the prospective bride of the officer may live up to the social standard and dignity which is becoming to the family of an Italian army officer.

An officer whose rank is over that of major can marry by consent from his superiors without any dowry.

I will conclude by stating that the writer of the dispatch did not discover anything because the laws relating to marriage of army officers have been in force since the formation of the kingdom of Italy.

ASYLUM SOUGHT FOR POTENTIAL CRIMINAL CLASS

Crime Board to Put Bill Before Legislature.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

It is agreed by mental experts, criminologists, and sociologists that one of the causes of crime in Illinois is the neglect of the feeble minded problem.

In the opinion of these experts, there are approximately 2,000 persons in this state, both inside and outside institutions, who are potentially criminal in their weakness, or who have already exhibited delinquency. They are either at large or are improperly cared for, and constitute a menace. As a social problem they come between the insane and the mildly deficient.

The committee on causes of crime of the Chicago Crime commission, of which Dr. Edward H. Ochsner, chief surgeon of Augustana hospital and former head of the state board of charities, is chairman, has prepared a plan for submission to the legislature this winter which will take care of these delinquent feeble minded as a separate unit.

Want New Institution.

It is proposed to build a new institution for them near the Dixon hospital, although under separate management, where they will be confined for life under conditions which will keep them content, even happy, but remove them from all outside contacts. At present they figure in a large part of the many escapes reported from Dixon and other institutions.

No new law is needed to cover the situation, as the present law, according to Dr. Ochsner, is one of the best in the nation. It provides for commitments to an institution on petition of relatives or a reputable citizen of those mentally deficient from birth, who require supervision, and who are found dangerous to themselves or a menace to the community, yet are not classifiable as insane.

"This type of individual is the type generally at the bottom of our most hideous crimes, such as the murder of the school teacher at Evanston," said Dr. Ochsner. "There are approximately 2,000 of these, some in institutions, and many at large, who are a constant menace to citizens. The public pays dearly for this neglect.

"Some provision for the detention of feeble minded persons with strong criminal tendencies is one of the most urgent needs of the day. They should be separated from those of simple mental deficiency. Our hospitals are not equipped to handle them. They are a menace to the nondelinquents in the hospitals. An additional unit with service for 2,000 would relieve the overload in other institutions."

Backed by Crime Board.

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the commission, said that the report would go to the directors this week for action. The commission is now on record with a resolution to "create a state institution not necessarily penal but detentional for feeble minded persons with strong criminal tendencies."

The cost of the institution is estimated at $3,000,000 and the state department of public welfare is hesitating because of this.

This plan is in line with the new approach which medical science is making toward the aid of the law. It is part of the movement to weed out the mental cases through a psychiatric service at the county jail and the house of correction. With the aid of the health department and the schools many of these cases could be found and controlled before they got to the dangerous age. The Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene is conducting a campaign of education to teach the people to report such cases to the state and to give the state parental control.

PUTNAM'S

Cites Dwindling Stocks of Goods as Augury.

"Buyers' caution and hesitation of the last few months give the greatest assurance of a brisk demand for commodities—everything from furniture to motor cars, clothing to golf clubs—with restored public confidence," declared Theodore R. Gerlach, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, yesterday.

Mr. Gerlach's statement was in a most optimistic vein. "Business is on its toes, at the starting line," he said. "It is ready to spring forward in the prosperity race in 1931." Mr. Gerlach advocated a sympathetic, friendly attitude on the part of the national and state legislatures, with freedom from unsettling legislation, as a material aid to the situation.

"People have been making the old things do, but the desire to spend is inherent in American life and accounts largely for our high standard of living that is the admiration of the world," said another paragraph of Mr. Gerlach's statement.

Cites Diminishing Stocks.

Diminishing inventories were cited as an encouraging circumstance. On this point Mr. Gerlach said: "An important factor in the renewal of industrial activity is the shrinking stock of merchandise during the last year.

"Consumption in some lines has been greater than production. Naturally the goods on the shelves of retailers and warehouse stocks have been depleted. The same shrinkage applies to raw material. In many plants in Cook county, which uses about $2,049,000,000 worth of raw materials annually, a larger amount than any other county in the United States, I have been informed there is sufficient raw material for thirty days' ordinary operations.

"Manufacturers who have bought raw material for months ahead at relatively low prices, in anticipation of a lively business revival in 1931, are to be congratulated, in my judgment, for their foresight. Movement of raw material and finished commodities is certain to increase."

Points to Savings Gains.

A study of bank statements brought Mr. Gerlach to this conclusion: "Another sign for encouragement is found in the fact that savings deposits have increased all over the country. The money is in the banks awaiting only public confidence to be restored to the channels of trade—to resume the brisk normal buying that keeps people employed at good wages. Forty-eight savings banks in Illinois reported deposits on Nov. 1 totaling $439,244,445 as compared with $433,341,788 on Oct. 1 and $427,328,908 on Sept. 1.

Tells of Election Effect.

"With all these signs of returning prosperity in sight it must be admitted that there is one cloud on the business horizon.

"That every general election is accompanied by a serious dislocation of the business structure universally is recognized. In the campaign recently ended, however, there existed three unusual factors which tended to aggravate this customary disturbing influence of national campaigns. They were:

"First—We were in the midst of a depression of major proportions at the time the campaign got under way.

"Second—For several months preceding the campaign, business had been subjected to the misgivings and uncertainties that always accompany a general tariff revision.

"Third—At the time the campaign gained momentum there were visible signs of a business revival.

TANKER AND ITS CREW OF 39 SAFE AFTER ALL NIGHT FIGHT WITH SEA

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Thirty-nine men of the crew of the tanker Papoose came ashore at Stapleton, S. I., today, glad for the feel of land under their feet after a night of horror in which their vessel, its propeller gone, was blown about by a gale in mountainous seas.

For twenty hours the men and Capt. C. S. Hansen, the master, wondered if the Papoose would founder from shipping water in cross seas before the coast guard cutter Champlain succeeded in finding the drifting tanker, a needle in the watery haystack of the Atlantic, and towed her into port.

The tanker was en route from Trinidad, in the British West Indies, to New York when she ran into a heavy gale and the high seas on Friday night that carried away her propeller. Her master notified her agents, D. B. Dearborn & Co., of his plight, and they asked the coast guard to look for her.

By the time the Champlain found her the Papoose was 52 miles off her course and had been shipping water so heavily that it is believed she could have remained afloat only a few more hours.

BANKS GO OVER TOP IN DRIVE FOR RELIEF FUND

Expect Goal to Be Reached Soon.

The hope that during next week—Christmas week—the majority of the trade teams busy raising $5,000,000 for Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission will be "in the right column," was expressed last night by Chairman Philip R. Clarke. Yesterday's subscriptions were heartening, the banks team, led by Melvin A. Traylor, reporting in as the sixth group to go over the top.

The banks were asked to contribute $275,000 on the "day a month salary plan and this quota was met and exceeded by $2,107. The campaign force received another pleasant surprise as it was rolling down the desk tops to quit work for the day when Marshall Field & Co., the corporation and its employés, sent word that $65,266 had been pledged.

Expression of Good Will.

"Christmas week should find the great majority of our prospects in the right column," said Chairman Clarke. "Raising of the fund or the greater part of it would be a wonderful expression of good will to those who are needy and unemployed. Morever, rapid progress toward the goal, if not the actual reaching of it, would serve to lift much of the gloom that should have no place in the holiday period."

Two new soliciting groups were added yesterday—lawyers and auditors and accountants. The stock yards team, under the chairmanship of Edward F. Swift, is to meet today at noon at the Saddle and Sirloin club and some report of progress is expected to be made, Mr. Clarke said.

Some of yesterday's sizable subscriptions were: Sprague, Warner & Co., $10,000; Chicago Bridge and Iron works and employés, $6,632; Mars, Inc., $5,000; Edwards & Deutsch Lithographing company and employés, $3,206; and the Central Public Service corporation employés, $6,177.

The Cook county commissioners yesterday afternoon adopted a resolution introduced by Commissioner Amelia Sears, which lauded the spirit of county employés who are voluntarily contributing one day's salary each month to the unemployment relief, and authorized the county controller and county treasurer to deduct such contributions monthly when the employés so volunteer.

Rating of Groups

Following are listed the ratings of the various trade groups in Chicago, showing the percentage of their respective quotas so far collected in the drive of the governor's commission on unemployment for the $5,000,000 relief fund. Six teams have exceeded their quotas.

GOOD FELLOWS! MANY FACING HUNGER, COLD

Have You Done Your Part to Help?

Notwithstanding the generosity of thousands of Good Fellows, there will be many cold and hungry families in Chicago this winter due to the temporary employment slack. And there will be thousands of children disillusioned by empty stockings on Christmas morning.

Good Fellows, individuals and groups contributing toward the rehabilitation of destitute families now number 1,159. Some of these groups include a score of associates in an office, club, church, or factory. So there are many times 1,159 Good Fellows helping the helpless until they can help themselves.

Donations Now Total $78,144.

The donations and pledges, nine days before Christmas, total $78,144. The average family budget for the four winter months, allowing the minimum of shelter, food, clothing, and heat, is $400. The $78,144 will cover the budgets of 195 families.

In comparison with the 195 families that can be carried through the winter the Good Fellow headquarters has received 3,746 appeals for help for families. Investigations by social welfare workers show that about seventy per cent of these appeals are deserving of charity.

There are thousands of cold and hungry women and children, families of the unemployed, who need your spare dollar. If you have a job and it would make you happier to help those without a job, mail a donation or pledge to the Good Fellow, THE TRIBUNE, Chicago. There's a coupon in a nearby column for your convenience. Every penny will reach some worthy family. There is no overhead; THE TRIBUNE pays the expenses of administrating the Good Fellow fund.

Many Requests for Baskets.

The situation is little different in the Christmas activity of the Good Fellows, the delivery of baskets of holiday food and children's toys to homes of the poor on Christmas eve. There have been 675 families assigned to Good Fellows who want to play Santa Claus to some home where otherwise there would be no Santa Claus. There have been 2,316 letters received at the Good Fellow headquarters requesting a Christmas basket for the sake of child victims of poverty.

If you want to carry a basket of food and toys next week to a home where you'll be the only Santa Claus and the only source of Christmas cheer, the Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE offices at Dearborn and Madison streets will furnish you with the name of a family. The coupon printed on this page can be used in applying for names.

RELIGIOUS ROW AT INDIA PARLEY GROWS FIERCER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The animosity between the Hindu and Moslem delegates to the round table conference on the future of India is growing more and more bitter following the failure of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at Chequers yesterday to reconcile the two groups of religionists.

Competent observers believe that both sides are bluffing and are trying to force the British to make them take or leave some definite offer. They will then be able to go home and tell their followers that they have conceded nothing but were forced to accept terms.

The subcommittee on provincial constitutions issued its report late tonight. It recommends government by responsible legislatures, abolition of the present dyarchical system, and the appointment of provincial governors armed with suitable emergency powers. The governor would, however, be more of an executive official than a legislative officer. His appointment of ministers would be in accordance to the state of the parties. Nine Indian delegates dissented from the report, which will be discussed by the full conference tomorrow.

Eric Hall Reappointed County Board Architect

1,500 EXTRA P. O. WORKERS SPEED CHRISTMAS MAIL

The annual avalanche of Christmas mail and packages already has begun, Postmaster Arthur J. Lueder said yesterday, although it has not as yet assumed the proportions of other years. Fifteen hundred extra workers have been employed to help handle the holiday business.

Last minute rushes are certain to tax every capacity of the service, however, Mr. Lueder said, and he added that the necessity for mailing out of town packages as quickly as possible remains imperative.

Foreign packages still are being handled, although there is small chance that they will reach trans-Atlantic destinations in time for the holiday when mailed after Dec. 15. Domestic packages and cards should be mailed as soon as possible to insure delivery, he said.

Contractor on Depot Job Gets Threatening Letter

Albert Waters, superintendent of the W. J. Newman Construction company, which is working on the new Illinois Central depot at Randolph street and Michigan avenue, yesterday received a threatening letter demanding the discharge of all Italian and Negro workmen on the job. John Goodwin, general manager of the company, turned the letter over to the police. He said that all the men on the depot job are members of unions, although the company is now employing only 500 workmen, compared with 2,500 two years ago.

JOBS FOR FOUR MUSICIANS ARE FOUND BY SALLY

Reports Many Offers of Work for Jobless.

There are four jobs for musicians at the Illinois Free Empolyment service, 116 North Dearborn street. They are among the job offers received by Sally Joy Brown's bureau at THE TRIBUNE for the unemployed.

"Two men over 60 years old to play old time music on the guitar and flute," was the order of a school of music on North La Salle street. From Oak Park came a request for two girls to sing during the dinner hour in a tea room. The salary is $25 a week and the jobs permanent.

Gets Many Good Jobs.

"We received a large number of job offers yesterday, many of them really very good jobs," said Sally last night. "Among them was one from Mrs. S. on East Oak street, who wants a woman to go to the country with her to stay for ten days during the holidays."

Mr. O. on North Clark street asked for a stenographer to replace one ill until she returns to work. A drug store on Milwaukee avenue needs a cashier. The L. Motor company on West Lake street put in a call for a man to help move furniture.

Mrs. M., on East 74th street, wanting her house put in order for the Christmas holidays, called for a paper hanger. She said she would pay regular wages.

The H. restaurant on North State street wants a girl to make sandwiches and salads. The D. K. florist shop on Clark street wants a girl to make sprays. A high school in the city has a place for a cook. Mrs. A. on Kenwood avenue called yesterday to say that she will give a young woman a job to teach her auction bridge. The L. laundry on Stewart avenue must have a seamstress to do repair work.

The L. B. beauty shop, on North Central Park avenue, wants a beauty operator for permanent work. The S. D. laboratories on Diversey parkway called for a typist and promised that the job will be permanent. The N. S. company on West Adams street, has two packing jobs for boys at $18 a week and two for men at $25 a week.

All these job offers and more were sent by Sally to the Illinois Free Employment service. If you have a job for the unemployed call Sally at Superior 0100.

Crusaders to Place Wet Pleas on Many Autos

The war cry of the Crusaders, "Repeal the 18th Amendment," will be carried along boulevards and highways as the result of a new plan adopted by the organization. Under the plan the legend will be emblazoned on the spare tire covers of automobiles. Below the printed plea will be the equestrian figure of a crusader in armor. The plan was proposed by H. C. Glinn of the local division of the anti-prohibition association.

The Thomas' treatment aids nature by eliminating the baldness producing germ, then revitalizing the dormant hair "roots" so that a new growth of hair is visible generally within a few weeks. Let The Thomas' examine your scalp today, without charge or obligation, and start your scalp on the road to health by their own original fifteen-year proven treatment.

You, Too, Can Have a Good Head of Hair

Gentlemen:
When I started the Thomas' treatment my hair was falling excessively and becoming very thin. I was also troubled with itchy scalp and dandruff. Now my hair has stopped falling, the dandruff disappeared entirely and I am pleased to say a new growth of hair covers my entire scalp.
Yours very truly,

Canadian Court Gives U. S. Million in Alien Property

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15.—Denying the appeal of the Canadian government, the Supreme court of Canada today upheld the previous judgment of Chief Justice McLean of the Canadian exchequer court, giving the American rather than the Canadian government possession of about a million dollars' worth of alien enemy property, consisting of Canadian securities seized from German nationals by the American government on America's entry into the war.

CAPTAIN LOOKS BACK ON 46 YRS. AS A POLICEMAN

Recalls Haymarket Riot and Car Strike.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Sit and chat for 20 minutes with Capt. John E. Ptacek of the Lawndale police district, and you'll agree that in his line at least, the "good old days" are gone. Capt. Ptacek is one of two men who yesterday completed 46 years in the blue uniform of a Chicago policeman. He was spokesman for himself and Sergt. Thomas H. Moran of the Gresham station—two survivors of the department's famed "four horsemen."

Just about this time last year the other two of the four, Capt. James Gleason, who from 1913 to 1915 was chief of police, and Detective Daniel J. Kinnane, fingerprint expert at the bureau of identification, died within a few weeks of each other.

Out of 300 recruits who lined up in Battery D of the Exposition building at Monroe street in Grant park on Dec. 15, 1884, to be assigned to various stations, these two alone remain.

Captain Recalls the Past.

Shadows from Chicago's past hovered in Capt. Ptacek's office in the Lawndale station as he sat yesterday in the gathering dusk, reviewing old days and associations. The little band of bluecoats that swept into the riots that led to the Haymarket bomb throwing, was sent out by Desk Sergeant John E. Ptacek, who was on duty at the time. He recalls the wild hours of the street car strike of the previous year, 1885. The days of the lurid old Clark street levee district are vivid in his mind.

"Austin J. Doyle was chief of police in those days," Ptacek recounted, "and his headquarters were at Adams and La Salle, in the old city hall—a two story brick building on the southeast corner. Well do I remember the day we lined up in old Battery D. We had the long coats then that were so comfortable, and the same kind of helmets the English bobbies still wear. A man paid $25 for his coat in those days—now they want more than forty. Blouse uniforms could be had for $14. Now they cost $42.

His First Day on Duty.

"That was a terribly cold spell of weather we had then. Our first night on duty—I was assigned to 22d street and Wentworth—there was a terrible fire in what was known as the French flats at Van Buren street and Wabash avenue. It was an awful blaze—it must have been about 28 below zero—and I remember the firemen frozen to the ground, fighting it.

"We had our times, all right. There was the trouble culminating in the Haymarket riot, for instance, and I can tell you now the men that were on duty there and who sent me the first riot call. There were John Egan and John Haynes, in citizens' clothes, and two men in uniform, Jacob West and Tom Condon. Sergt. John Enright happened to be in the station when the call came in, and he took ten men, all there were in the place, loaded 'em into one of those open wagons and dashed across into the middle of things. They got inside the McCormick factory, and already they had been fired on. Enright told me afterward he thought my pistol saved his life. I gave it to him as he ran out.

Tells of Haymarket Bomb.

"That was on May 3, 1886. It was the next day the Haymarket bomb was thrown. But before that we had had some excitement in the street car strike—in 1885, the year before. That was when I got my first promotion. Four men were assigned to each car, and another car—a jail on wheels—used to follow us around to pick up the strikers we arrested. We were coming downtown and another car was going west on Randolph street, and we got through all right, but the other got tipped over by the strikers. The guard of the other car was discharged—as we'd been warned would happen if a car was tipped over—and I was promoted to desk sergeant at Hinman station by Chief Doyle.

"We had an awful time with that strike. One day we left the Western avenue car barns on Madison, and coming east we found they had torn up the paving stones and piled 'em on the tracks. We police had to get down with shovels and shovel away the stones, while they pelted us from a distance.

"But those were the days when a policeman ordinarily didn't need to go armed. People weren't as vicious as they are now. In our raids no one ever fired at us, but if we stop a fellow on the street now he's as liable as not to knife or shoot us. Yes, times were better then."

The deadline for payment of the last quarterly installment was last midnight. All checks mailed on or before midnight will be accepted without penalty.

Income tax collections for the Chicago district since Jan. 1 have shown a decrease of $34,311,628, as compared to the collections during 1929, when the final figure was $226,142,075. A total of $37,352,475 was collected from Dec. 1 to Dec. 15 inclusive this year, as against $45,292,514 for the same period last year, Mrs. Blacklidge said.

THELMA PADDOCK

REM adopted by whole family

The Paddock family of 322 Glider St., Buffalo, N. Y. were visiting friends of theirs one winter when one of the children developed a bad cough, the result of a cold. Her friends suggested to Mrs. Paddock that she try REM, and that's what she did. "We got some at the drug store," says Mrs. Paddock, "and it stopped the cough right away. I was so well pleased with it that I've never been without it in the house since. It only takes a few doses of REM to check a cough and that's one of the nice things about it. Thelma and Herbert--in fact all of us--have used it at different times." Once a member of a family tries REM, it's the family cough remedy from then on, just as in this case. Be sure to get REM--the blue package with the orange circle. Every druggist has it.

MERCURY USED TO TREAT WIFE, SHEPARD SHOWS

Doctor Says Mouth Wash Contained Poison.

Kansas City, Kas., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Some of the prosecution's own witnesses were turned to the defense of Maj. Charles A. Shepard in his trial for the alleged poison murder of his wife today and testified it was possible Mrs. Shepard died from medicine prescribed by another army medical officer.

When court adjourned the records contained testimony that in Mrs. Shepard's fatal illness at Fort Riley, Kas., in June, 1929, a solution of bichloride of mercury [the poison which the government contends caused death] was used as a mouth wash at the direction of Maj. M. A. Rose, a dentist.

Maj. G. R. Callendar, an army pathologist, contributed the statement that Mrs. Shepard could have absorbed enough of the mercury from the mouth wash to cause death.

"Possibility" of Suicide.

It was further testified it was possible Mrs. Shepard may have swallowed some of the mouth wash through carlessness and it was intimated there was a possibility she may have used the medicine to commit suicide.

Both Maj. Rose and Maj. Callendar were called by the defense, although subpoenaed as prosecution witnesses. The prosecution did not call either of the officers.

Opening up its medical testimony, the defense immediately began to blast away at the circumstantial case presented by the government, which alleges Shepard poisoned his wife so he would be free to wed Miss Grace Brandon, young stenographer of San Antonio, Tex.

Through cross-examination by District Attorney Sardius M. Brewster, in charge of the prosecution, however, the defense scored the most telling blows.

It was in answer to Brewster's questions that Maj. Callendar stated that the mouth wash—compounded of bichloride of mercury and alcohol—could have caused Mrs. Shepard's death.

Again, in examining Maj. Rose, who testified that he had prescribed the solution in treating trench mouth infection which Mrs. Shepard suffered, Brewster let the jury hear a hint that Mrs. Shepard may not have died at her husband's hands as charged.

Wanted to Die, He Says.

Maj. J. C. Dye of Fort Riley, Maj. Rose and Maj. M. A. St. Peter of Omaha testified to statements by Mrs. Shepard that indicated she wished to die during her illness and it was brought out the mouth wash was within her reach at the bedside.

A half dozen witnesses, all attached to the army medical corps, testified that Mrs. Shepard's condition indicated alcoholic poisoning, or that they had seen her drink, or observed her under the influence of liquor.

There was some question at adjournment whether Maj. Shepard would take the stand tomorrow as originally planned.

Says Mrs. Shepard Drank.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Dec. 15.—The Court of Appeals here today decided against the American architect, Whitney Warren, in his suit to replace his inscription, a hymn of hate against Germany, on the façade of the Louvain library, which he designed for rebuilding after it was destroyed by the Germans in 1914.

Mr. Warren's inscription, "Destroyed by Teuton fury; restored by American generosity," was objected to by the university authorities on the ground that it tended to recall war hatreds, and was removed more than a year ago and replaced by another balustrade.

Mr. Warren instigated a suit for breach of contract, declaring that his assignment carried with it the acceptance of his plans. In his first hearing before a lower court his claim was sustained. But the higher court decision today apparently disposes of the case, and the alleged offensive inscription will be kept off the library balustrade.

PLEDGES POLICE PROTECTION FOR UNION ELECTION

The coal drivers and teamsters' union, recently under the control of George [Red] Barker, who was returned to Joliet prison six weeks ago for violation of parole, will hold its next election under police protection provided by the state's attorney's office. This was assured last night by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Duffey, to whom 25 members of the union appealed in the fear that gun gang tactics were to be tried by the Barker faction.

"A date for the election has not been set," Mr. Duffey said last night. "But if protection is needed the union will have it."

Identifies Slain Holdup Man as Milwaukeean

Joseph Ervin, 34 years old, 3347 Kinnickinnic avenue, Milwaukee, who was shot to death on Sunday night when he tried to hold up a policeman, was identified yesterday at the county morgue by his brother, Robert. Ervin was shot when he accosted Policeman Nicholas Distledorf of the Woodlawn station in the rear of his home at 6000 South Bishop street. At the inquest Robert Ervin testified that his brother had formerly been a respected business man, but had begun drinking heavily a year ago after a separation from his wife. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

ROBT. B. PEATTIE DIES; ON TRIBUNE STAFF FOR YEARS

News was received in Chicago last night of the death in Tryon, N. C., of Robert Burns Peattie.

Mr. Peattie was for many years a noted newspaper man of Chicago. A large part of the time was spent in the service of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. His wife, Ella W. Peattie, was famous as the author of numerous books and writer of short stories. She also was on THE TRIBUNE for years as a literary critic. She and two sons survive.

Mr. Peattie was born in Waushara county, Wis., on Oct. 5, 1857. He married Miss Ella Wilkerson in 1883. Four children were born.

Pens His Own Obituary.

Mr. Peattie's career probably is best told in the following "obit," written some time ago by himself:

"As a totally unprepared youth I broke into journalism in 1880 on the old Chicago Times, still run by Wilbur F. Storey. In 1882 I joined the staff of the Chicago Herald, then a four page paper. There were only six reporters and no telegraph franchise.

"I became later the exchange editor and afterwards 'did' the theaters. I use 'did' advisedly. I was one of the staff when the entire outfit walked out one night and went to work for Mel Stone on the Morning News. On both the evening and morning editions I reported, was exchange editor, editorial paragrapher, and dramatic critic at various times.

"About 1887 I went back to the Times, and also worked on the evening edition—the Mail. In 1888 I went to Omaha as managing editor of the Herald and when it was bought by the Evening World I continued as managing editor of both editions.

Reported Dead in Omaha.

"It was there after a severe illness I died [according to the A. P.] and had the pleasure of reading my obituary, which was quite flattering, although it might have gone into more detail about my many virtues. Later I buried two men who had kindly offered to be my pallbearers. Brief services on the Denver Sun and the Council Bluffs Nonpareel [as they called it] were followed by a year in New York on the Tribune and the World.

"In 1896 I returned to Chicago as correspondent of the New York Times, holding the place for ten years and working also on the Chronicle and THE TRIBUNE, joining the latter in 1901.

Writes Book Reviews.

"I started the news bureau, served the New York Times, wrote book reviews and made up the literary page all at the same time. Later, when I dropped the Times' work I successively [at that right] served as exchange editor, editorial writer, conductor of the Voice of the People, the Friend of the People, and general housework.

"In order to hire two or three men to take my place, THE TRIBUNE sent me to New York in 1917 as its correspondent. That is the sad, sweet story of my life."

Mr. Peattie served THE TRIBUNE in New York until he retired in 1920. Since then he had lived at his place, "Dunwandring," in Tryon.

Never in robust health, Mr. Peattie became seriously ill a year ago. The funeral will be held in Tryon today and burial will be there.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Stopped Cold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Within less than five years the American wheat problem will be solved by putting the crop on a domestic basis, in the opinion of Alexander Legge, farm board chairman.

This prediction was made by Mr. Legge today in discussing the farm board's objective in the wheat situation and the success of measures taken during its first year. Although he admitted jokingly that "overprediction sometimes is as bad as overproduction," he expressed faith in the future of wheat.

"If anything comparable to present conditions continue we will have wheat on a domestic basis within less than five years—possibly within two years," he declared. "For 62 consecutive months prior to November, 1930, the visible supply was larger every month than the corresponding month the year before. Last month the tide turned. Both the world and North American totals showed substantial reductions."

Sees Further Acreage Cuts.

In the spring wheat area last year there was an acreage reduction of 5 per cent, Mr. Legge said, and there should be a 5 per cent reduction in winter wheat acreage this year, with another 5 per cent cut in spring wheat planting next year. A total cut of 20 per cent would wholly wipe out the surplus, he said.

Mr. Legge based his argument further on estimates that farmers this crop year will feed 236 million bushels of wheat to live stock as compared to 90 million bushels last year. Together with exports to date and the usual domestic requirements this increased feeding, he said, indicates that the carry-over into next season will be naturally reduced.

"Exporting wheat is not our solution to the wheat problem," Mr. Legge continued. "We've got to thresh the thing out here in our own country. The key to the problem is to even up production with consumption, and that is what we are working for."

Work Would Be Ended.

Mr. Legge was asked what will be left for the farm board to do if that goal is achieved in two or five years.

"Pack up and go home," he replied. "Nothing would please us more than to have to start looking for new jobs because we finished this one."

MAYOR'S COUPON PRIZE SCHEME AVOIDS RADIO BAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Radio advertising for Mayor Thompson's coupon prize scheme, which has been stripped of any of the elements of a lottery, will meet with no direct interference from the federal radio commission.

James W. Baldwin, secretary of the commission, following a meeting of the group today, notified Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, that it had denied his request that Chicago broadcasting stations be warned against permitting the advertising to go on the air. Col. Randolph had assumed the plan to be a lottery prohibited by a federal statute.

Col. Randolph in his appeal to the radio commission attacked the prize proposal not only on the ground that it was a lottery, but also objected to it in principle, asserting that "the burden of the enterprise will fall on the small merchant and retailer who is not organized and who has no means of protecting himself against it."

Attorneys said that it leaves $5,000 to his divorced wife, Mrs. Loretta May, $5,000 to his mother, Mrs. Anna Maggio Tripoli of Italy, $2,000 each to two brothers, Oscar and Peter Maggio, 602 York place, and the balance to his sister, Mrs. Anna Maggio Vito, 1656 Dayton street. The will was executed before the birth of his children, Eugene and Francis.

LOUVINA ROSS
1638 Arthur Ave., Chicago.

Medicines win friends and fame by what they actually do; not through promises and claims. All that is asked for Konjola, the new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, is that it be given a test, no matter how severe that test is. But right now read the words of this nurse:

"For seven years I suffered with stomach trouble. Cramps were severe and at times the food felt like a rock in my stomach. I have used seven bottles of Konjola and the results are fine. Pain has left me; my appetite is so good that I can hardly get enough to eat. I have sent Konjola to friends in Decatur, Ill., and their troubles were completely rectified."

ALBERT M. COIT, BROKER, FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Albert Merrill Coit, 50 years old, secretary and treasurer of Baker, Fentriss & Co., 208 South La Salle street, investment bankers, was found dead yesterday afternoon in his home, 453 Deming place, apparently a victim of heart disease.

Mr. Coit returned home at 11 a. m. and informed members of the household he would bathe before luncheon. At 1:30 p. m., Miss Ellen Conway and Miss Mary Bednarek, maids, called and became alarmed when they received no answer. They called a brother, Robert Coit, who in turn notified police.

Mr. Coit was found in the bathtub with his head submerged. Efforts to resuscitate him were unsuccessful and he was pronounced dead by Dr. Ernest Nora of the Columbus Memorial hospital. Mrs. Coit, the former Eleanor Babcock, was shopping at the time. The three children, Betty, 16 years old; Eleanor, 15 years old; and Celia, 13 years old, were in school.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night. Mr. Coit was a graduate of Phillips academy and Yale university. He had been connected with the Baker-Fentriss house for twenty years. He was a member of the University, Harvard-Yale-Princeton, and Palette and Chisel clubs.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visiting at their estate near Ittlal, in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Marya Salin, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, stating that she dare not come. Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince they must enter the country in stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed by foot. A peasant, named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them over the border by a secret path. They reach the home of Marya unseen and learn from her that she sent no message and that she plans to drive to Austria that night. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them within the prince's dominion they are preparing to flee with Marya when the prince arrives. The men hold the prince and his servants at point of gun and escape in the royal car. They find the border so closely guarded that hope of crossing is abandoned.

Chandos remembers Ramon, who lives in the nearby town of Gola. They seek him for aid. He agrees to hide Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Hanbury join a traveling circus, where they feel fairly safe from discovery. They are planning to desert the circus and return to Gola when Carol reaches them with a car to take them to Bariche, across the border, where he says Marya is waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Bariche they receive another message from Marya, stating that she is to be pardoned on condition that she remain in Reichtenburg, and that she does not communicate with them and that they must never enter the country again.

Realizing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made an arrangement with Grieg, to which they could never consent, they return and attempt to cross the border at a different point, Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is apprehended and taken to jail. Chandos identifies himself to the inspector and proves that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg, who has learned of the arrest, arrives. He orders two detectives from Vigil back to prepare a cell for Chandos and takes his prisoner alone in his car. Chandos realizes Grieg intends to kill him, and, although handcuffed, manages to reach his own gun and prevents Grieg from carrying out his intent.

INSTALLMENT XX.

A TIMELY RESCUE.

That Grieg's race was undoubtedly run afforded me great satisfaction, but it was galling to reflect that, having got so far, I could not go one step further and save myself.

I could, of course, have bade him order the chauffeur to drive elsewhere, but had I done so I should have wasted my breath. The fellow would have laughed in my face. He knew that I would kill him if he moved or cried out, and so he did neither. But force his hand I could not—he was not that kind of man. But for my handcuffs I could have taken the trick. As it was, I could not disarm him, and so long as he had his pistol I dared not lose sight of his hands for one moment of time. If I was to keep him covered, I could not even open a door. In a word, I was a one-armed man.

Suddenly the brakes were applied and the car came to rest.

Not daring to turn my head, I strained my ears.

I heard a door open and one of the police descend. He shut the door behind him and walked ahead.

The next moment a windlass creaked.

We had come to a level crossing and, since there was no keeper, the man was raising the bars.

The creaking stopped, and I heard the man walk on to the farther bar.

I had expected to hear the farther windlass, but, though my ears were pricked, I could hear no sound but the steady mutter of the engine and the hurried slam of my heart.

So for perhaps two minutes. Then the second policeman alighted and followed the first.

As I heard his footfalls retreating, I knew that this was my chance to leave the car, but the moment I moved I saw Grieg's left hand quiver and, inwardly raging, I held my pistol still.

Then the second windlass creaked, and almost at once the returning driver's footfalls made themselves heard.

My chance had passed.

I had expected that, once across, we should wait till the bars were let down, but, whilst we were moving, the second man stepped aboard and a moment later we were again under way.

As though to crown my discomfiture, it became immediately clear that the check had put Grieg's injunction out of the driver's mind, for, instead of proceeding slowly, we now began to go like the wind, and the chance of overtaking the detectives once more lifted its head.

Grieg was laughing softly, and the blood came into my face.

I could of course have shot him, and that would have left me free to deal with his men; but, though I knew that he would have done it to me, I could not bring myself to take the man's life in cold blood.

So I sat, pressed against him, staring at the white of his hands and wondering what I had done that fortune should have me in such derision.

We had covered another ten miles, or so I judged, when again the car slowed down and came to rest.

This was natural, for, as I have often observed, where a road follows a railway they cross again and again.

Then both of the doors were opened—the doors, I mean, that served the back of the car—and a torch blazed over my shoulder to light Grieg's face.

Though we did not then waste time by telling one another our tales, I think it will here be convenient to show how George came to be there and to strike, like a man in a play, when my need was most sore. And since his style is far more lively than mine, I will do my best to recapture his very words.

"When Rowley told me you were taken, that sinking feeling I'd heard of became an accomplished fact. The illusion of stomachic subsidence was quite startling. I actually felt myself to make sure there was no protrusion which hadn't been there before. Then we joined the crowd to see what we could. This wasn't much, until you came off the bridge. We were up on some steps by then and we saw you go by.

"Well, we clung to the side of the crowd and hoped against hope. But the farther you went, as you know, the bigger it grew. It was then that I thought of a distraction. The crowd must be distracted. The trouble was that it mustn't be attracted to me. Whilst I was flogging my brains I fouled a dust bin. I think the pain gave me strength. I emptied it out, of course. Even void it was heavy enough. I was sorry about the victims of the prospective outrage, but I daresay they deserved it. The only fear I had was of hitting you. When it was over and I saw you standing still behind the worry I could have yelled with delight. Once you were clear of the press . . . then the police reinforcements arrived and tore my dream.

"Act two. We followed you to the station and watched you in. For a long time I considered a frontal attack, and I'm not sure now that we mightn't have brought it off. What frightened me off was the thought that you might be locked up in a cell. If you were, we were done—obviously. Shock tactics are all right, but you mustn't meet any wire. I therefore withdrew in good order and tried very hard to foresee what the night would bring forth. The exercise was fruitful. I perceived at once that Sallust would telephone to Vigil and that Vigil would send detectives to bring you in. Very well. Your transfer from Sallust to Vigil would give us our chance. All Rowley and I had to do was to find a suitable place at which we could hold up the car.

"The Sallust police favor the cycle. What's more, they keep their scooters in a rack by the side of the jail. The thing was too easy. Before choosing a mount I asked the way to Vigil. Five minutes later we were pounding along the road. I suppose we'd done twelve miles when a car which was coming from Vigil went by all out. The detectives, of course. Well, that was all right. We were between them and Vigil. All we had to do now was to pick a suitable place, shove some obstruction in the road, and sit down and wait. We rode on, peering. Of course no place presented itself. And no obstruction, except the trunk of a tree which weighed about twenty tons. I began to get uneasy. Then, three miles on, we came to a bullock cart. This was empty and standing to the side of the way.

"What it cost us to get that wagon across the road won't go into any words that I know. At first I thought the brakes must be on. Then I found it was weight—sheer dead weight. Well, we got it into position, staggered to the side of the road and lay down to die. It didn't seem possible that the body could survive such a hideous output of strength. After about one minute we heard another car coming, going the same way as the first.

"If you can guage our emotions, you must have an expansive brain. Instinctively we knew—I believe the correct word is 'sensed'—that this was the car that mattered and that the one which was gone was of no account. Well, there you are. If we left the wagon where it was a thousand to one the police would fail to move it and have to turn back. If they were able to move it, what do you think they would say when, on returning, they found it not where they had left it but once again in their way? Exactly. Something would tell them that it hadn't moved on its own. I mean, there was no wind."

Good morning!

"Odette," adapted from novel and play by Victorian Sardou is a "silent" melodrama made in Biarritz, France—and well made.

The somewhat hectic story is acted simply and with good taste by a caste of foreign players; direction is shrewd and artistic; sets and costumes have a casual lavishness that is ingratiating and there is some glorious scenery that the camera has done well by. There are not many subtitles, and no more are needed, for continuity is good and the pantomime eloquent.

Odette,—Countess Latour—and mother of a little daughter, Jacqueline, is a victim of circumstances. A one time lover forces his way into her boudoir and, while she is struggling with him her husband comes upon the scene. He believes the worst, will listen to no explanations, orders the countess out of the house and spirits her child away so that the unhappy woman may not see her again.

Odette rushes down to the sea and is about to drown herself. The child, Jacqueline, is brought up to believe her mother dead. Fifteen years later when the girl has become engaged to the young Vicomte de Meyran, the countess reappears in Biarritz as mistress of a notorious gambler. Her life again touches that of her husband and child and—see the picture for the rest.

Here you have "Within the Law" of stage and "silent" fame, displayed as an altalker with Joan Crawford in the featured rôle of Mary Turner.

Miss Crawford's personal popularity is drawing fans to see a picture that is neither better nor worse than the ordinary run of underworld thrillers. I couldn't quite see her as Mary—she seemed to me like a little girl making believe—, but I liked her just the same. Here is the secret of Joan's pull. No matter what her rôle you always do like HER. —"As who could help—! her adoring husband, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., would probably say.

Marie Prevost, portraying the heroine's girl friend, Agnes, nearly steals the picture. Marie has a fierce time in a part where she's supposed to be refined, but just hand her a loud and juicy "moll" bit such as she has here, and she's a riot. She hings true in every line, every gesture, every expression.

Other players do well. Robert Armstrong's rôle doesn't fit him, but that's not his fault. He's like Joan—he makes you like him even when you don't. I overheard a maid remarking that he "has more 'IT' than any other actor on the screen!"

You know the story? A girl unjustly sent to prison for a crime she didn't commit comes out determined to get even with the world—and the law. She's done some heavy thinking during her three year stretch and has discovered that, by working WITHIN the law she can defy the law and still get hers. (At least that's the way she has it figured out.) She becomes the brains of a gang, to the members of which she is introduced by her former jail mate, Agnes. Much happens.

The picture boasts some suspense, a bit of love interest—though one doesn't care much for the youth poor Mary falls for—and a number of laughs, for which Miss Prevost is largely responsible.

You won't go crazy over "Paid," but you'll probably think the piece is entertaining.

MRS. BESSIE LASKY'S FIRST POETRY BOOK OFFERED TO PUBLIC

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Bessie Lasky, wife of Jesse L. Lasky, motion picture magnate, became a published poet today. A collection of her verse appeared entitled "And I Shall Make Music."

Already a painter, Mrs. Lasky began writing verse about a year ago. Mother of three children, she personally looks after the family homes on 5th avenue in New York and in Santa Monica, Cal. One of her poems speaks of:

Idle fingers that do no work—
Mold clay, turn soil.
Idle minds that do not think—
Dream dreams, speak forgiveness.
Idle arms that carry no burden—
Produce no labor, offer no love—
O, the futility of idleness.

Mrs. Lasky's paintings were exhibited in several cities last year and will be shown again in New York in April. Her poems are dedicated to her husband, whom she met when he had a seven piano act in vaudeville. She then was Bessie Gaines of Boston and was studying to become a concert pianist.

The Lasky's eldest son, Jesse junior, also is the author of a book of verse, "The Heart of a Boy," written several years ago. Now 21 years old, he has charge of foreign versions of talking pictures produced in his father's studios. He studied languages at the University of Dijon, France.

Einstein Urges Two Methods to Block Wars

Go to Jail First; Use World Peace Fund.

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Prof. and Mrs. Albert Einstein went motoring into the country with friends today.

With them went Dr. Walter Mayer, the physicist's scientific assistant, and Fraulein Kudas, his secretary.

The Belgenland left at midnight and is scheduled to reach Havana Dec. 19 for day and a half stay and to arrive in Panama and go through the canal on Dec. 22.

Prof. and Mrs. Einstein and their fellow passengers will spend Christmas day on the Pacific. The boat will touch at San Diego Dec. 31 and arrive in Los Angeles on New Year's day.

Speaking last night Dr. Einstein advocated a war of militant pacifism to end all war. He talked before the new historical society at the Ritz Carlton hotel.

"In our political situation," he said, "it is the duty of man to commit crime in the name of his state or his country. It seems to me that it is more his duty to free mankind from this sort of thing.

"There are two ways in which this can be done. The first, which has already been practiced in many countries, is to refuse military duty in time of war. If only two per cent of the men liable for war service were to refuse, there would not be enough jails in the world to take care of them."

The second method, he said, lies in the formation of a "war resistance fund," with pacifists from all nations contributing. The money would be used to defend imprisoned objectors and to strengthen the feeling against armed conflict the world over.

"A real initiative in one or both directions," he concluded, "would bring results. But you must show courage and you must show patience. Otherwise you will remain just pacifists."

His remarks were translated from the German by Mrs. Rosika Schwimmer. He was preceded on the program by Miss Helen Keller, blind author.

Woman's Symphony Orchestra Plays, Hilda Burke Soloist

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra gave the second concert of its season at the Goodman theater last night, again with Max Bendix appearing as guest conductor in the absence of Ebba Sundstrom. The symphony for this program was Henry Hadley's geographical work, which bears the title, "North—East—South—West," one movement for each point of the compass.

It is an infrequently played work. Mr. Stock conducted it sixteen years ago, but there is no record of its having appeared since. It is a sprightly, melodious, and briskly rhythmic piece. The orchestra attacked it with spirit and most of the time with good tone, though there were passages that sounded as though another rehearsal or two would have made them more fluent.

Hilda Burke, soprano, came over from the Civic Opera company to act as assisting artist. She was heard in "Pace, pace, mio Dio," from Verdi's opera, "La Forza del Destino," an aria in which she was thoroughly at home both as regards her fine voice and dramatic manner.

Maxim Karolik, tenor, who is credited with having once appeared with the Chicago opera, gave a song recital at Orchestra hall last night. His voice is light of texture and pleasant of quality, and he has the habit of assisting its use with gestures after the fashion of Chaliapin. These were, no doubt, expressive, but even they and an English translation of his songs were hardly enough to clarify the meaning of the Russian language in which he was singing when Orchestra hall was visited.

Hoover Invited to Rededicate Lincoln's Springfield Tomb

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 15.—(AP)—President Herbert Hoover, invited to rededicate the tomb of Abraham Lincoln in this city, on Lincoln's birthday anniversary, Feb. 12, 1931, today acknowledged the invitation, promising a definite answer later.

Rededication of Lincoln's tomb is necessary because of its complete dismantling, by provision of the last general assembly, due to deterioration of sub-surface masonry work. It is being put back exactly as it was, but more substantially, to stand the wear and tear of time.

The chief difference there will be after rededication will be inclusion within the tomb of twelve of the most noted statues of Lincoln, for which niches will be prepared.

Sorority Christmas Party.

THE STAGE

AFTER "Young Sinners" at the Apollo comes "Bad Girl," which seems to be a natural sequence in title and theme. The former play will end its engagement, after having reached 150 performances, Saturday night, Jan. 3; the latter will march in the next night, with a satisfactory New York run to justify its existence.

"Bad Girl" is a dramatization of Vina Delmar's novel. Sylvia Sidney, who played the heroine in New York, has been coaxed into a cinema contract, and she will be replaced by Claiborne Foster, who is well known here from the long runs of "Apple Sauce" and "The Patsy." Buford Armitage will have the rôle of the young man in the case.

The play called "Jonesy," which was expected to arrive at the Playhouse on Christmas night, has postponed its premiere a few days. Its engagement will begin Sunday night, Dec. 28. Thomas W. Ross will head the company, with the following auxiliaries: Lelia Frost, Percy Helton, Jules Bennett, Ann Thomas, Cordelia MacDonald, Harry O'Brien, John Charlton, and Miller Davies.

From the Chicago headquarters of the Shubert Theatrical corporation comes an announcement that economists in search of evidence concerning the much discussed business cycle should receive with cheers. For the first time in years the "lay off" week before Christmas finds every Shubert theater in Chicago open for business and prospering. There are six theaters under this management and they thrive—the Great Northern with "Three Little Girls," the Apollo with "Young Sinners," the Grand Opera house with Ed Wynn in "Simple Simon," the Harris with "Michael and Mary," the Garrick with William Hodge in "The Old Rascal," and the Majestic with "Lysistrata."

The first Shakespearean production of the Theater Guild—"Much Ado About Nothing"—will come to its New York premiere Monday night, Jan. 12, at the Martin Beck theater. Lynne Fontanne will be the Beatrice, and Alfred Lunt the Benedick. Its performances will alternate with "Elizabeth the Queen," also with Miss Fontanne and Mr. Lunt in the leading rôles, for a period of six weeks.

The "Second Little Show" expired abruptly last fall after giving the ditty called "Sing Something Simple" to the radio audience. But its producers have faith in their trade-mark, and therefore the "Third Little Show" is announced for spring production.

The latest play by Philip Barry, author of "Hotel Universe," will soon be placed in rehearsal by Gilbert Miller. Miriam Hopkins will have the leading rôle. The title, which will probably be changed, is "Hail and Farewell."

Chicago Pupils, Teachers Give $102,510 Fund

Christmas Spirit Reaches Out to Needy.

The Christmas spirit is abroad in Chicago's public schools this year, perhaps as never before. Time was when a special program of songs and recitations sufficed. This year, to the general Christmas program has been added the keynote of charity.

Pupils and teachers of the schools have contributed to date $102,510 to the School Children's Aid society, 840 South Desplaines street, so that unfortunate children may be supplied with new shoes and clothing. That was revealed yesterday. This is $25,000 more than previous offerings, Mrs. George Allen MacCorkle, president of that society, said.

"Since the school semester started we have provided clothing for nearly 15,000 needy public school children," she continued. "During one day last week the eight workers at the headquarters here personally outfitted 500 who waited in line. We are delighted with the response of the school children and teachers in helping meet the added burden this winter caused by unemployment."

Junior high schools	11,391
Elementary schools	68,564
Continuation schools	999
Harrison-Lindblom football game	5,400
From employes, Administration Bldg.	214
Total	$102,510

*Including $3,227 from senior evening high schools.

More than 5,000 Christmas baskets of food are to be distributed to the poor through the schools. Many schools, both elementary and high, plan special programs followed by the distribution of gifts, to be held in cooperation with various organizations.

Baskets of food for about 50 families will be distributed by the boys of Lane Technical high school. At Senn high school preparations are being made on a large scale for the distribution of food, clothing and gifts at the Northwestern university settlement house, the Soldiers' home at Elgin as well as among many destitute families. Three trucks will leave the school on Friday afternoon.

A special luncheon for 450 boys of the Montefiore school, 481 North Sangamon street, will be given on Friday by members of the Chicago Woman's club. Each boy will be given a Christmas stocking. A party for 930 pupils, part of them cripples, of the Jahn school, 3149 North Lincoln street, will be given tomorrow night by the Lakeview Kiwanis club.

More than 1,000 students of junior and senior high schools will take part in musical programs. Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra will give a concert tomorrow night, Friday and Saturday nights, and Dec. 29 at Orchestra hall. On Dec. 28 and Jan. 2, special performances are to be given by the Chicago Civic Opera company at specially reduced rates for pupils. On Dec. 19, 20 and 29 about 400 students of the eight junior high schools will present a cantata at Orchestra hall in conjunction with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Miss Esther Nelson, soprano of the San Carlos Opera company, will be the guest artist of the Lindblom High school, 6130 South Lincoln street, at the Christmas exercises Thursday. The annual Christmas festivial and pageant of the Chicago Normal college, 4300 South Stewart avenue, will be presented tomorrow evening with 300 students and teachers participating.

Harkness $125,000 to Help Restore Conqueror's Castle

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Trustees of the $10,000,000 Pilgrim trust, established last summer by the American philanthropist, Edward S. Harkness, today placed £25,000 [about $125,000] at the disposal of the committee for preservation of Durham castle. The castle was erected in 1072 by William I. [the Conqueror]. In 1928 it was reported that the structure was in danger of collapse. A national appeal was made for £150,000 "to save the castle from falling into the river."

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE!

"Have You Colored Hearing?" Latest of Scientific Questions

Boston, Mass., Dec. 15.—(AP)—If you "see red" when some one makes the sound of "s," you have "colored hearing," a sign of development.

Evidence of unexpectedly widespread colored hearing was made public today at Boston university, where Dr. Howard Kingsley, professor of psychology, reported it probably is as common as color blindness. Its scientific name is chromoesthesia.

"S" is not the only letter associated with colored hearing, nor red the only color that "s" suggests. Any sound may produce a sensation of seeing red or any other color in the rainbow.

An interesting point is that for the same person the same sound produces the same color, although it may mean a different color to some one else. Frequently those who have colored hearing, said Dr. Kingsley, are reluctant to talk about it, and for this reason most persons without this sense are ignorant of its existence.

"Chromoesthesia," he said, "is due perhaps to two causes. Heredity is thought to play the larger part and child experiences a lesser part. Perhaps a child has played with colored blocks or a highly colored book of letters. In no case have I found a complete explanation.

"Chromoesthesia is not a freakish condition or a defect. As a matter of fact it is a condition of high development, and the person who finds himself in the described condition has something in addition to the normal person. Knowledge of this condition is not new to science."

Strong Arm Tactics Needed for High Handed Woman

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Suggest something for me to do. I've been married thirteen years, have three children and ever since my wife brought her family to live with us, all she does is to buy clothes and go on whoopee parties till all hours of the night. If I say anything, she threatens me with a divorce.

"In the eight months since her mother has been with us, I've been treated like a boarder. She hands me a measly sum to buy breakfast and dinner with. Before her mother came we worked hand in hand and got along nicely. A HUSBAND."

Mother seems due for a lift out the front door with the parting injunction never to return. But what would the mother's object be, unless she has the money to take over the supporting of the family?

What I suspect is that you lack the stamina to assert your rights, consequently you don't get any and never will 'till you make the lady in the case come to her senses. A famous woman author, just returned from abroad, recently gave out an interview to the effect that what most women want more than anything else is a "sock in the eye."

Now, far be it from me to advocate it for your particular woman—but that dame needs somethin' more forceful than a quiet talk about her duties. Maybe you're not the man for the job. And maybe, again, that's what's the matter.

Why let her hand out the measly dimes for dinner and breakfast, if you're bringing home the bacon? Hold out on the money until you see your money's worth in home cooked food!

There's one thing surer about woman than any other one thing and it is that she abhors a weakling. I never saw a man yet who let his wife walk all over him, but his weak conduct made him worthy of being walked on. He might be a reprobate, he might be a scoundrel, but a man who makes his authority felt has a better chance of decent treatment from a woman than one who hasn't the nerve to cross the witch.

Of course, that divorce threat is terrifying, since a woman's story to the judge usually earns her the pity and the alimony. It looks as if man had only one resource and that is to revert to such strong arm tactics as I don't care dare prescribe in a nice family newspaper.

Food Talk.

Prohibition in the United States has not cramped the style of chefs and epicures in any serious way. We continue to find their creations just as distinctive and ravishing. And it would take one whose memory antedates the passage of the Volstead act and one who had a carefully cultivated taste for the fine old wines and brandies to get all the difference between the sparkle of the old and the new way of wine flavoring in sauces, puddings, and cakes.

Some of the famous old vintners have solved the problem of wines for cookery. A legal sherry, claret, etc., bottled and with the real bouquet, may be bought in any full line grocery. But these wines are undrinkable—they are often mixed with salt and sometimes with pepper and spices. These flavorings are sold in two forms. The first group is made up of wines seasoned and flavored in the proportions used in the preparation of certain well known sauces.

The second type of wine flavoring is the group of concentrated flavorings—port, sherry, cooking sherry, etc. These must be used sparingly. When they are used skillfully the result will be a dish with the composition and the natural characteristics of those old and well known ones. Then the most critical will be supplied with a flavoring that is beyond reproach. Not quite so much sugar is necessary in preparing foods with these sweet wine flavorings.

The taste of these wine flavorings is one that does not tempt the drunkard. They serve the purpose for which they were intended—that of adding delightful flavors to cooked foods.

The following recipes prove that delightful flavor may be secured in foods where the flavor of wine is desirable:

CREOLE SHRIMP.

1 teaspoon curry powder.
Dash of cayenne.
1½ cups milk.
1½ cups shrimps.
Toast or rice.
Chopped parsley.

Melt butter; add flour, curry powder, salt, paprika, and cayenne. Stir in milk gradually. When thick and smooth add catsup, sherry, and shrimps. Serve on toast or cooked rice. Sprinkle with paprika or chopped parsley.

Yield: Six servings.

PLUM PUDDING.

1 cup currants.
½ cup crystallized fruit (pineapple and cherries).
¼ cup sweet sherry flavoring.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
2 cups brown sugar.
¾ cup butter or
1 cup shredded suet.
4 eggs.

Cut fruit and combine with sweet sherry flavoring and lemon juice. Cream, sugar, and butter. Add well beaten egg, jelly, spices, and crumbs. Sift together flour and soda several times and add to creamed butter and sugar mixture. Add fruits. Pour into oiled and floured molds. Adjust cover and steam 1 pound molds for 3 hours and large ones for 4 hours. Turn out of molds when done. Serve with hard sauce. If desired, pudding can be replaced in mold when cold to be stored until needed, when it should be reheated for 1 hour in the same manner as before.

SWEET SAUTERNE SAUCE.

2 egg yolks.

Cream together sugar, butter, and egg yolks; place over boiling water and stir in sweet sauterne flavoring gradually. Stir until as thick and smooth as rich cream. Serve hot.

SHERRY NECTAR.

1-3 cup tapioca.
1 cup apricot pulp.
Grated rind and juice of ½ lemon.

Add sugar and water to sherry. Add tapioca and turn into top of double boiler and bring to boiling point. Place top of double boiler in lower portion and cook until tapioca is clear. Add fruit pulp with lemon juice and rind. Remove from fire. Serve thoroughly chilled with whipped cream.

Yield: Six servings.

Beauty Parlors Observe Rigid Rules of Hygiene

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Since all women visit beauty parlors at one time or another, it may interest them to know about the processes observed to maintain a high standard of hygiene and sanitation. Incidentally, it may serve as cue about which shops to avoid, for some certainly do not measure up to the high standard so obviously necessary.

One learns from the Beauty Specialists' manual (Howell Publishing company), a little book for the trade compiled by Dr. Horace J. Smith in collaboration with his wife, Genevieve Fitzgerald Smith, that in several cities, notably New York, sanitary regulations pertaining to beauty parlors and beauty parlor work have been put in force by the local departments of health.

New York City regulations state that operators shall be garbed in clean uniforms or coats. They shall wash their hands thoroughly before and after attending each patron. In washing the hands, tincture of green soap and running water are employed.

If a patron has any skin disease, after washing the hands with the green soap they must be rubbed with alcohol of 60 per cent strength.

Implements and instruments must be thoroughly sterilized, the desirable method for which is immersion in boiling water for twenty minutes. If this is not convenient, a disinfectant solution must be resorted to, as alcohol, 95 per cent for all metal instruments; carbolic acid, five per cent solution, or lysol, 10 per cent.

Not only clean towels, but sterile ones must be used. A cabinet sterilizer, having airtight compartments and the employment of the fumes of formaldehyde gas which act as active germicide and disinfectant, must be used. Head rest covering must be changed after each patron, and may be either a sterile towel or clean paper toweling.

Combs and brushes must be scrubbed thoroughly after each using and a germicidal solution used. Hair clippers, scissors, nippers and buffer covers shall be cleansed in gasoline, benzine, or ether after using and must be kept in sanitary, dustproof containers.

Tweezers, files, cuticle looseners and blackhead removers must be thoroughly cleansed in soap and water after using, boiled for from 5 to 10 minutes, dried and kept in dustproof containers.

Any article dropped on the floor or otherwise rendered unsanitary must not be used until it is sterilized. Powders and fluids must be applied by means of cotton puffs which must be destroyed after using. A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Man Is Without Overcoat.

"Like a great many other people I am out of work and can't buy the clothing I need. In this cold weather it's hard to be without an overcoat, and I wonder if you can get me one. I wear size 34. I also need a suit, size 32, and shoes, size 9½ or 10.

"G. T."

Child Gets Special Sort of Pleasure from Owning Books

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

There are books to read once,
There are books to borrow.
And there are books to own—books that you read again and again—books that you put away and take out again—books that you love because they're familiar—books that you find something new in at every rereading.

All that is possible only with a book that can stay with you as an owned book does.

If anything, young children need books that are their very own more than older children or adults do. The books they like, they want read to them over and over and over again. And when they can read themselves, there are books they will read and read again because in doing so they find either a familiar pleasure or a new delight. But they can get this kind of enjoyment from books only if they own them.

Either begin a little bookshelf for them or if you have already begun one, add to it this year. It is surprising and encouraging how quickly a small library will grow if people know that you and your children appreciate books.

It was my intention to list all the best of the new children's books this year, for holiday buying, but there are so many that I cannot go over them all and make a conscientious choice. So the best I can do is to offer once again my own list in the booklet called the Youngest Bookshelf. This contains a tried and true list, among which are many new and many old and many beautiful ones that will always be loved by children. It contains none of this season's books.

In choosing new books take time in the bookstore to look over text and pictures carefully. Avoid the ugly, the grotesque and the frightening, of which there are a number, ugly enough—and buy the gay and the funny and the beautiful and the wholesome, of which there are happily many.

The booklet, the Youngest Bookshelf, will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Strong Arm Tactics Needed for High Handed Woman

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Suggest something for me to do. I've been married thirteen years, have three children and ever since my wife brought her family to live with us, all she does is to buy clothes and go on whoopee parties till all hours of the night. If I say anything, she threatens me with a divorce.

"In the eight months since her mother has been with us, I've been treated like a boarder. She hands me a measly sum to buy breakfast and dinner with. Before her mother came we worked hand in hand and got along nicely. A HUSBAND."

Mother seems due for a lift out the front door with the parting injunction never to return. But what would the mother's object be, unless she has the money to take over the supporting of the family?

What I suspect is that you lack the stamina to assert your rights, consequently you don't get any and never will 'till you make the lady in the case come to her senses. A famous woman author, just returned from abroad, recently gave out an interview to the effect that what most women want more than anything else is a "sock in the eye."

Now, far be it from me to advocate it for your particular woman—but that dame needs somethin' more forceful than a quiet talk about her duties. Maybe you're not the man for the job. And maybe, again, that's what's the matter.

Why let her hand out the measly dimes for dinner and breakfast, if you're bringing home the bacon? Hold out on the money until you see your money's worth in home cooked food!

There's one thing surer about woman than any other one thing and it is that she abhors a weakling. I never saw a man yet who let his wife walk all over him, but his weak conduct made him worthy of being walked on. He might be a reprobate, he might be a scoundrel, but a man who makes his authority felt has a better chance of decent treatment from a woman than one who hasn't the nerve to cross the witch.

Of course, that divorce threat is terrifying, since a woman's story to the judge usually earns her the pity and the alimony. It looks as if man had only one resource and that is to revert to such strong arm tactics as I don't care dare prescribe in a nice family newspaper.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: I can't afford to take my girl out often, so I don't see her as often as I should. Please advise. "C. B."

If you will explain your position frankly, she'll be glad to have you spend some evenings in her home.

Church of England Year Book Lists 2,304,000

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The official year book of the Church of England, published today, shows the number of Easter communicants, was 2,304,000 in 1929, against 2,339,000 in 1928. These figures usually are accepted as a rough indication of adherents to Anglicanism. Infant baptisms totaled 417,000 against 433,000 in the respective years.

Society Often Welcomes the Stars of Stage

BY THALIA

IT SEEMS to be news to Variety—the theatrical weekly that is favorite reading for a lot of people—to discover how well Chicago likes to entertain theatrical people. It has a whole front page story telling about the "opening of the parlor door to once snubbed show people."

Well, Variety—not only is the door open, but it has been ajar for some years now, and it has a brightly glowing "welcome" sign on it. Most of the well known stars who come to town from time to time have sizable circles of acquaintances and more intimate friends in society here and would be lunched, teaed, and suppered to the point of nervous prostration if they should accept all of the invitations they receive.

Stage Guests Are Regarded as Life of the Parties.

The theatrical people are not necessarily expected to perform, mind you—in fact, it is only the more tactless hosts who ask them to do so. They are considered good company, and if they signify a willingness to perform, it is greatly appreciated.

The Ernest Byfields and Ben Marshall have reputations for giving interesting parties, because they know so many showfolk, and their invitations are always avidly accepted. Cyrus McCormick Jr. frequently has after the theater parties, and the personnel usually includes a currently popular night club entertainer, some of the Russians from Petrushka, and some representatives from the current plays.

The Richard Bennetts were entertained quite a bit during their last stay here, and the party they gave themselves in the Sherman bungalow was attended by a smart and distinguished group. Libby Holman and Clifton Webb of the "Little Show," Helen Hayes, Eugenie Leontovitch, Beatrice Lillie, Roland Young, Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley, Judith Anderson, Ina Claire, Philip Merivale, all of the Theater guild casts; Katherine Cornell, and scores of others have been popular during their various engagements here. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank has had Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne as guests at her Lake Geneva place, and Mrs. Lawrence Whiting has known the Duncan sisters so long and so well that they promised when her daughter, "Henny," was a little girl to be at her debut party, and they were.

Bewildering Array of Events After Christmas.

My, my, it's simply bewildering, the number of parties to be given the night after Christmas, when the Princeton Triangle club is in town with its annual show, "The Tiger Smiles," at the opera house.

The Cyrus H. Adamses have invited the whole club to the tea dance they're to have for Caroline Smith at the Casino and have already had 70 acceptances. The dinner parties before the play include the Harold Smiths for their sub-deb daughter, Joan; the John Paul Wellings, the James C. Hutchinses for their son, Chauncey; the James C. Ameses, the Alfred T. Cartons, the Frank Dickinsons, the John Payne Kelloggs (early, so the guests who are going to the play won't miss any of it). The Frederick H. Scotts at the Casino, the Edward Shumways, the Bryan Reids for one of their daughters, the John Stuarts for Jack, the Calvin Fentresses for the bridal party of their daughter, Emily, and Robert Stocking of Ithaca, N. Y., who are to be married the next day, and the Adlai Stevensons at the Casino, also.

Emily Otis Promotes Lectures About Indians.

Emily Otis will be disappointed this morning if she doesn't find something in the paper about the American Indian lectures that she "promoted." The second of four is to be given this afternoon by Prof. Robert Redfield of the department of anthropology at the University of Chicago, and will be on "The Folk Arts of Mexico." Native Cancioneros will entertain after the talk at Le Petit Gourmet. Dorothy Schmidt and Miss Otis, or Emma Schmaltz, as she prefers to be called, are to pour tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sudler of 70 Cedar street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Sunday at St. Luke's. Mrs. Sudler was Miss Mary Barnes, and the baby's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes.

They DO say . . . that Walter Frazer and Ned Platt are not in such good favor with a certain hostess, since they turned down a dinner invitation at an inconveniently late date last week . . . that Emily Bissell Cady is making quite a hit as saleswoman in one of the department stores, but that she was called down one day for chewing gum during working hours . . . that Florence Cremin is enjoying her florist shop job . . . that Mrs. Junkin's party was gorgeous, and quite long (the dance orchestra didn't begin to play until 1:30 o'clock in the morning) . . . that Emily Pope, Kathleen Bagley, Pawnee Myers, and Betty Williamson are now professional shoppers and will buy you anything from a pair of shoelaces to a grand piano, if you call any of them up.

Noted . . . that the George E. Marcys, who have been at the Drake this fall, left yesterday for their California winter visit and will spend their time between the Huntington in Pasadena and their ranch . . . that the remarried George W. Shaws (Loyda Smith) arrived yesterday from the east for a 3 weeks' stay at the Ambassador East . . . that Dr. and Mrs. Casey Wood and their niece, Marjorie Fyfe, who have been traveling and in London for the last year, are now settled for the winter at the Hotel Eden in Rome (Dr. Wood is working on a book and Miss Fyfe is studying Italian archæology extensively) . . . that Mrs. Frederic W. Upham of 209 Lake Shore drive has brought a co-op in the 1260 Astor street building, which is supposed to be ready next October . . . that Theophilus Noel II. got his wedding license to marry Laura Jacoby, daughter of Mrs. William L. Jacoby, yesterday, and that the wedding is to take place tomorrow . . . that Mrs. Barnes is to tell the how and why of "Years of Grace" at the Chicago Woman's club on Thursday instead of the Women's City club.

Holiday Spirit Brings Christmas Party Plans.

Since Christmas is upon us . . . the theatrical minded Howard Willetts, Jane and Howard Jr., send a pair of enormous cards with Christmas greetings, and invitations to their Christmas carol supper next Sunday evening "on the roof top" and an afternoon dance at the Opera club on the 23d. . . . the Chicago Wellesley club is having a Christmas masque and Christmas carols at a holiday meeting on Saturday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, at the Fortnightly . . . the junior class of the south side Faulkner School for Girls is to have a Christmas dance on Friday evening at the Shoreland to raise money for their year book. . . . the White Elephant's monthly dressmaker's sale is shoved ahead a week to this Thursday.

Press reports of Katrina McCormick's debut tea say that she had a gay time in spite of the fact that she had announced beforehand that she expected to be bored to death. She prefers the horse shows to fashionable teas, but after an hour of handshaking, she tossed her bouquet of gardenias away and danced vivaciously. There were four flower filled rooms and two orchestras for the party.

Society at the Opera

The size and enthusiasm of the smartly dressed audience that heard "Traviata" last night at the Civic Opera house would seem to indicate that the old favorite is holding its own with the startling modern operatic version of the younger Alexander Dumas' "La Dame aux Camelias," made into an opera by a Chicago composer, presented by Mary Garden and others last Wednesday night.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, wearing a gown of sheer gold lame, was hostess in her box to Mrs. Nevins Johnson, in white beaded chiffon, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Edwin D. Krenn. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick wore a lovely gown of delicate pink and gray flowered taffeta with an overskirt falling in three points.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift had with them Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry and Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift. The senior Mrs. Swift wore a red crêpe gown figured in Paisley design, Mrs. Henry a pale green metallic cloth with a double peplum, and Mrs. Philip Swift a green and gold lame dress with a Vionnet neckline. Mrs. Phelps Hoyt, in beaded black, and Mrs. Dexter Cummings in black crêpe with a waist length jacket of gold lame, came up from their main floor seats to join the Swifts' party during the intermission.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker, the latter in black satin; Mrs. Arthur Small, in black velvet with diamente trimming, and William B. McCluer were guests of the Frederick T. Haskells. Mrs. Haskell wore black velvet and lace and a crystal necklace and earrings. Miss Sarah Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. DeLong (Elizabeth Hinde), and J. B. Waller were with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dulaney, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Broeksmit, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid occupied Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed's box. Mr. and Mrs. William B. Storey, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring, and George W. Dixon Jr. were with George W. Dixon. With Mr. and Mrs. William S. Monroe were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Heaton and Mr. and Mrs. Rolin Strauer.

Mrs. Lansing B. Warner's guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Herdic, Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott Warner, and Lansing B. Warner Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Ericson were hosts in the Charles G. Dawes box to Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bartley, Miss Julia Ryberg, and Robert Wallace. The Edward Hines box was occupied by a group including Mrs. Frank E. O'Dowd, Mrs. Walter Purcell, Mrs. John Goodwin, Mrs. Clarence Marquardt, and Mrs. Thomas Cusack Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rafferty, Maj. A. R. Harris and Dempster Macmurphy were guests of the Martin J. Insulls. Mrs. John F. Jelke was hostess to Mrs. August Von Glahn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Pauling, and J. G. Skidmore. Mrs. William Burry, Mrs. Robert Newberry, Miss Helen Wadsworth, Miss Emily Larned, Frederick Tuttle and Robert Fernald occupied Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth's box.

Voliva, Part of Way Around World, Still Insists It Is Flat

SHANGHAI, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Rev. Wilbur Glen Voliva of Zion City, Ill., who believes the world is flat and is making a trip around the world to prove it, is seriously thinking of establishing a mission in China.

The general overseer of the Christian Catholic Apostolic church in Zion, founded by the late John Alexander Dowie, spent a week in Shanghai and two weeks in north China, studying the field. He believes the Dowie brand of religion stands a good chance of succeeding in this part of the world.

His attempts to prove to the Chinese press the world is flat were not very convincing, even to the oriental mind, but the papers devoted columns to his theories and his religion.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Emil Ludwig, German biographer, who has depicted the lives of Napoleon, Bismarck, the former Kaiser Wilhelm, and others, has just completed a play entitled "Versailles," the principal character of which is Woodrow Wilson, and the theme is Wilson's fight for his ideals at the Versailles peace conference—a conflict between the ideals of his fourteen points and the provisions of secret treaties contracted among the allies.

Miss Costello, in private life Mrs. John Barrymore, signed a new contract with Warner Bros. today on condition the picture work would not interfere with active supervision of her daughter's care and no location trips would take her from the city.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The upper part of the skirt of this smart frock in a curved hipline aids in giving a slender appearance, and the sections are circular in cut. The front buttoned closing of the bodice is a youthful detail and the tightened hipline gives emphasis to the basque effect of the bodice. A green wool crêpe, with white silk crêpe for collar and cuffs, will be a practical, useful choice, while wool jersey, lightweight tweed, Canton crêpe and a tweed printed silk crêpe are also suitable.

The pattern, 2650, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 5¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 39 inch contrasting and 3½ yards of binding.

Paris Chooses Jersey for This Smart Suit

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Jersey is more popular than ever in Paris fashions. Midseason collections are revealing more new, grand jersey weaves than we wot of in our philosophy.

Jane Regny is launching a jersey with a faintly boucle surface for her tennis frocks, yachting costumes, and cardigans, and she has some wool weaves that mysteriously resemble crêpe, jersey, and basket cloth. Jean Patou uses both thick and thin jersey for his new daytime costumes. His fine, closely woven, printed silk jersey with a satin surface is particularly smart in frocks to be worn with fine wool coat.

Martial et Armand use two jersey weaves for the sports ensemble, sketched above. The jacket and skirt of the frock are of suede finished brown jersey and the bodice is of a very fine, almost transparent jersey that resembles crêpe de chine.

The skirt is cut with a zig-zag hip yoke in back which runs down in front to the top of the two inverted plaits which give it fulness. It mounts in a front panel, cut in a chevron at the top, that buttons on to the fine jersey blouse just below the V shaped décolleté. To each side of this panel is attached the wide princess belt which buttons in back by tabs, as you see by our small figure.

GOOD appetites need good nerves.

And nerves, like other living things, need food. Calcium and Phosphates, the same elements which go into the making of strong bones and teeth, are known by modern science to be vital to the health of the human nervous system.

So mothers who have long known the value of milk and fresh vegetables (foods naturally rich in Calcium and Phosphates) are now adding more Rumford-cooked foods to their family's diet. For even an average Rumford biscuit contains four times the Phosphate and half the Calcium of a large glass of milk.

Order Rumford from your grocer today and start giving your family meals the advantages of baking and cooking with this pure all-phosphate baking powder.

BRUINS TO QUIT OR SELL, LEAGUE HEAD REVEALS

Says Basket Circuit Will Continue.

The Chicago Bruins either will withdraw from the American Professional Basketball league or be sold to other interests.

Persistent rumors that George Halas, principal stockholder of the Chicago team, was preparing to disband or dispose of the club were confirmed last night by John O'Brien of New York, president of the league. Halas previously had denied repeatedly that he was contemplating withdrawing the club from the league.

O'Brien, in admitting that Halas was seeking to sell the club, said, however, that regardless of the action of the Bruins' owners, the league itself will continue.

"Right now we have applications from Dayton, O., and from Utica-Mohawk, N. Y., for admission to the league, but there will be no immediate action," O'Brien said. "We desire, of course, to keep Chicago in the league, but we realize that the present owner of the Bruins, who also is handling the Chicago Bears football team, cannot devote the proper amount of time to basketball.

Negotiations Under Way.

"We should like to see other Chicago interests take over the team, and it is our understanding that such negotiations are under way, although we have not heard anything definite.

"If any new club is taken into the league it will not be until around Jan. 1, when the second half of the season starts. The newcomers thereby will have an opportunity to organize. But regardless of the outcome in Chicago, the American Basketball league intends to carry on."

Rumblings that all was not well within the league have been heard since the withdrawal of the Cleveland Rosenblums, world pro champions, who are said to have stepped out because of objections to the revised playing rules which were introduced to speed up the game and add more action. The disbanding rumor assumed greater proportions last night when the Bruins' management announced the release of two players, Charles Murphy, former star at Loyola university, and Red Skurnick, a veteran of the league.

Murphy Joins Cicero Team.

There were many followers of the Bruins who regarded the release of the two players as the first step in the collapse of the Bruins.

The league this year has not been enjoying the patronage of past seasons. The Bruins, using the Chicago Stadium, have been drawing crowds of about 400 paid admissions.

The same apathy is said to exist in other cities where the pro league quintets carry on. One of the principal reasons for Cleveland's dropping out, reports are, was that the attendance dwindled from 4,000 or 5,000 to one-tenth of that number.

Blame Expertness of Players.

Reports also had Fort Wayne, one of the strongholds of the league, on the verge of following Cleveland's example. But this was denied last night by officials of the Indiana club, who declared that, while business was not as profitable as formerly, the team was not entertaining ideas of quitting the league.

Promoters of the pro style of basketball say the game has failed to attract patrons largely because the players are too expert. The block plays were legislated against in an effort to speed up the game and provide more action. When this failed it was agreed that only three veterans might play at one time. The latter regulation was adopted this year, to the disappointment of the Cleveland club.

The Bruins received a franchise in the American league several years ago after Halas and Laurie Walquist, both of whom were then playing basketball, had organized a semi-professional team. Walquist and State Senator George Maypole, with Halas, own the greater part of the stock in the club.

Lane and Tuley split a pair, the former's heavies winning 25 to 18, while the Tuley lights won their fifth straight, 37 to 17. Weiss starred for the winning heavies while Capt. Silver scored 10 points for the Tuley lights.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER.

BALLOTS are now being cast by THE TRIBUNE committee of award to determine the Big Ten player most valuable to his team for the season of 1930. To the winner will be presented the seventh annual trophy, a sterling silver football, actual size. The committee of award consists of the Big Ten coaches, ten officials who acted in conference games, Commissioner Griffith, Wilfrid Smith, TRIBUNE football writer, and The Wake.

"Wesley Fesler of Ohio State is my first choice of the Big Ten players of greatest value to his team during the season of 1930. Fesler was played at end on offense and defense in the Northwestern and Michigan games, which were lost. He was moved into the back field on offense where he played against Wisconsin in a game which resulted in a tie, and against the Navy, Pittsburgh and Illinois, which games were won by decisive scores.

"Fesler not only was the spark of the Ohio offense, but he strengthened the passing offense, a department in which Ohio was notably weak in the early games. Further, his kicking was superb. In one game he kicked 500 yards on ten punts. Without Fesler in the back field on offense Ohio was a good team. With him in the back field Ohio had one of the best teams in the conference.

"For second choice I nominate Clarence Munn of Minnesota. Munn was not only the steadiest player in the Minnesota line, but his example, experience and leadership went a long way toward making the Minnesota line. Further, he was one of the best kickers in the conference and without him to do the kicking Minnesota's offense would have been much weaker than it was."

Con O'Kelly Wins Decision from Boston Heavyweight

Boston, Mass., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Though he apparently outpointed Con O'Kelly, Irish heavyweight, in nine of ten rounds, Al Friedman, Boston battler, lost the decision here tonight when two judges overruled Referee Johnny Martin. Several times during the battle, which appeared one sided at every stage, O'Kelly was on the verge of a knockout from Friedman's terrific body punches, O'Kelly weighed 191, a pound more than Friedman.

PURDUE WHIPS NOTRE DAME IN BASKET DEBUT

Wooden Leads Mates to 34-22 Victory.

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Displaying more power than had been anticipated, Purdue's basketball team successfully launched its season here tonight with a 34 to 22 victory over a Notre Dame five which was unable to stop the brilliant passing combination of Johnny Wooden and Harry Kellar. As far as scoring was concerned, it was a case of too much Wooden.

Sinks Nine Baskets.

Wooden looked even better than he did last season, flashing under the basket on break neck dribbles to sink shots. He sank nine field goals and three free throws for 21 points. Most of Wooden's shots were made when he was traveling so fast that he sprawled into the middle of the crowd behind the bank.

Kellar and Wooden both displayed finish in their passing and footwork, and it was their coolness that kept the Boilermaker quintet ploughing along for scores.

Purdue Leads at Half.

Purdue started out fast, with Wooden leading the scoring, and held a 15 to 11 margin at the half. A group of sophomores worked with the veterans during the greater part of the game and the performance of Parmenter at back guard was outstanding. Lineup:

BRADLEY, 17; IOWA, 16

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—One free throw, scored by a substitute on his second attempt in the last minute of play, gave Bradley Tech's basketball team a 17 to 16 victory over the University of Iowa's quintet here tonight. Grant, substitute guard, dropped in the winning point.

The game was ragged, particularly in the first half, when each team tallied only twice from the field. The Hawkeye had 24 shots and Bradley 32. Iowa held an 8 to 4 lead at the half, the margin representing its superior accuracy from the free throw line. Lineup:

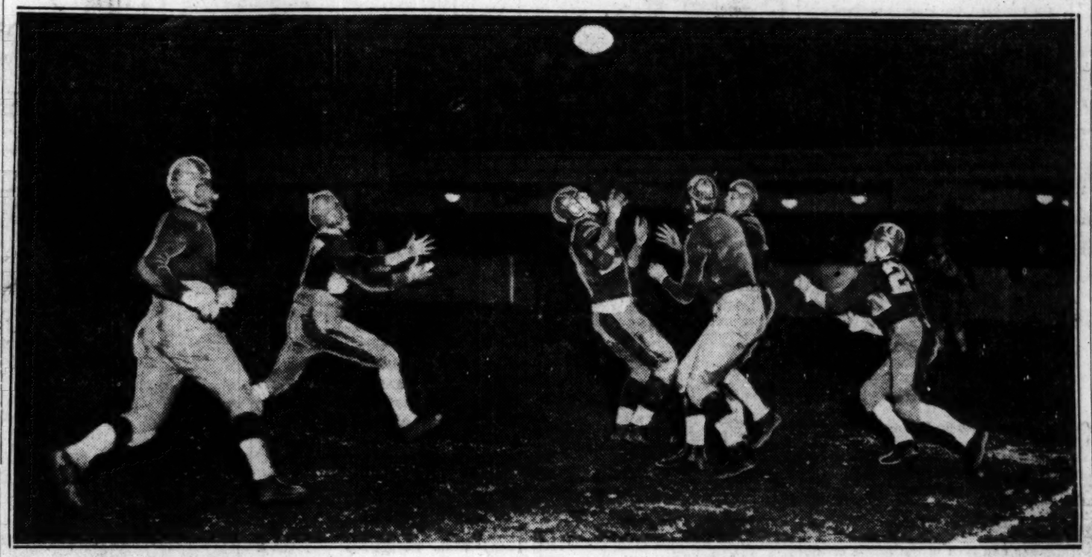
BEARS' PASS GOES TO CARDINALS



Players scrambled to get under the ball when Brumbaugh, Bears' quarter back, tossed a forward pass late in the first half of the professional battle at the Stadium last night. Erickson of the Cardinals, one of the men on the left, finally intercepted the throw, but it did the Cards no good, for the half ended shortly after the play. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Maybe Football Business Will Become a Sport Again

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 15.—The end of the football season finds the game in a curious situation, its desirability subject to doubts among the students for the first time in its history. Football has been reformed before, once at the vigorous prompting of the late Theodore Roosevelt, and the rules have been revised out of any but the faintest general resemblance to the original game, but, up to the present time, these changes have been effected by the elders.

This year the student bodies are beginning to assert an interest which presently will become an authority and if the undergraduates ever do obtain full control, it will be interesting to see whether youth is any more honest or any wiser than maturity and middle age. It is pleasant to think of youth as clear eyed mentally as well as physically, and comparatively sinless, but it is puzzling to reflect that the majority of the elders who have been mishandling the game in some respects are quite youthful themselves and recent graduates.

Grad Says Boys Can't Do It.

A graduate manager of athletics at one of the big universities, discussing the current agitation to give the game back to the boys, claims that the boys were unable to manage the game when they had it, adding that there were some deplorable discrepancies in the accounts of the gate receipts and expenditures in the days when the student managers handled the business affairs.

At Yale, just now, in response to the demand of some of the alumni for winning teams, an expression of undergraduates opinion perceives that Yale must either change systems and frankly go into the football business, or go even more amateur and withdraw into a select company of similarly minded schools.

The Penn Uprising.

At Pennsylvania the revolt against domination by the coaches has been directed particularly against one coach who is not a typical coach. Mr. Lud Wray, from all accounts, was a coach who could not lead this particular group of young men as Maj. Ralph Sasse and Knute Rockne lead theirs, and therefore was put to the unfortunate necessity of trying to drive them. So there was covert mutiny and spiritual sabotage in the team, and Penn had a miserable season, at the end of which Mr. Wray withdrew.

But it has not been made clear whether Mr. Wray was hired as an instructor or as a boss. If his players were strictly amateurs, paying their way at college, then he should have been regarded as an instructor, and in a sense the servant of the football squad. But if some of the players were receiving scholarships and other subsidies in return for their football, then they were employes of the school themselves, hired to play football, and I suppose Mr. Wray had a right to regard them as his subordinates.

Illinois Remains Loyal.

At any rate, the Pennsylvania case is not characteristic, for the football coaches, as a class, are interesting men who know how to appeal to the loyalty and other emotions of young athletes, and it is seldom that a football team repudiates the coach, even after a bad season. Illinois had a bad season, but I have been reading that the players presented Mr. Zuppke, their coach, with a round-robin parchment expressing their loyalty to him and their thanks for his patience with their shortcomings.

Last winter one of the coaches was discussing his literary practise, which has become the source of important unearned pickings for him, and he said:

'I know that as a writer I would not be worth more than $3,000 a year in any newspaper or syndicate shop in the land, but of course my football reputation sells my stuff and I earn many times $3,000 a year."

Coaches Become Showmen.

This consideration naturally tempts the coaches generally to ballyhoo themselves, exploiting for their own profit reputations which properly belong in large part to their players and the schools which they serve. So presently they become showmen. The teams are their teams and, like the more showy professionals in golf who hire out to show golf clubs, they fancy that they lend distinction to the schools which they serve, which is not the correct balance.

I make the point that the football coach should approach his job with something of the feeling of amateurism, and that he should not exploit his reputation for earnings which are gauged by his reputation, rather than by the actual value of the work. I realize that many of the coaches are actually worth considerably more than many of the professors, who regard the coaches' earnings with such envious alarm.

Perhaps Troubles Are Localized.

But I am not sure that there is really anything seriously wrong with football barring certain localized excesses. Father O'Donnell, the president of Notre Dame, holds that football has not been harmful to his school and that it will be soon enough to curtail football when the harm begins to show. The game certainly is show business now, and any school, which wishes to withdraw from the show business need only release the coach, deformalize the big shows, and reduce the game again to its original purpose, which was 60 minutes of strenuous exercise. But even the students, in their revolt against exploitation of the players' efforts and their own loyalties, will not go that far.

Princeton Bids Farewell to Coach Roper

Roper received two gifts, one an electric clock from the university athletic association, and the other a silver punch bowl from undergraduates.

"Tonight we are all saddened that we are met here to say good-bye to Bill Roper as head football coach," he said. "Through all the games he has won and lost he has brought his men to the scrimmage line with the finest spirit. This was largely inspired by his great personality."

Rudolph Takes Fifth Win in N. Y. Cue Meet

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Erwin Rudolph, Chicago, continued his spectacular march through the field in the world's pocket billiards championship tournament tonight, defeating Onoforio Lauri, New York, 125 to 124, in 21 innings. It was Rudolph's fifth straight victory without a defeat.

Rudolph's triumph left him safely enthroned in the lead, with the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf, second with four victories and one defeat. Lauri is third with four wins in six starts. Rudolph now has only to meet Arthur Woods, New York, and Greenleaf. A victory over Woods tomorrow night will assure him of no worse than a tie for the title.

Lauri gave Rudolph plenty of competition and just missed victory himself on his last turn at the table. With Rudolph leading, 124 to 112, Lauri stepped to the table and made twelve balls to tie the score. He lost position at this point, however, and missed a difficult cut shot for the side pocket. He left Rudolph a hard shot but the Chicagoan pulled off a daring try and pocketed the ball to win the match. Rudolph's high run was 36; Lauri's, 27.

Earlier in the day Greenleaf trounced Arthur Woods, 125 to 24, in 18 innings, and Pasquale Natalle, Chicago, defeated Thomas Bostman, 125 to 93, in 44 innings. The standings:

Erwin Rudolph, Chicago	5	0	67
Ralph Greenleaf, New York	4	1	104
Onoforio Lauri, New York	4	2	51
Arthur Woods, New York	3	3	63
Frank Taberski, Schenectady	2	3	46
Bennie Allen, Kansas City	2	4	35
Pasquale Natalle, Chicago	1	4	42

8,000 Watch Londos Throw Romano Twice

Jim Londos, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world in the eyes of the National Boxing association, took old Mike Romano for a couple of airplane rides in the feature act of Promoter Doc Krone's presentation at the Broadway armory last night.

The two falls which Jim required to dispose of Mike were defined as airplane spins by Referee Bob Managoff, but they looked like one of those adagio dance acts which follow the trained seal on a vaudeville bill. The only difference last night was that Mike landed very heavily on his back instead of alighting gently on his feet at the conclusion of the act.

Crowd, 8,000; Gate, $10,000.

The evening as a whole was very gratifying to Dr. Krone, for 8,000 witnessed the performance. The doctor beamed benignly when many congratulated him on their way out. He estimated the receipts for the show at $10,000, a figure which might have been exceeded had there been about 500 more seats, for the management was forced to turn that number away.

Londos, who scorned shoes for leather spats which allowed his toes to peek out, showed that he is a competent workman in eliminating Romano. He confined his histronics for the evening to a fierce glare and an occasional hurt look at Referee Managoff when Romano hauled off and cuffed him on the chin. Mike was forced to carry the burden of the vocal accompaniment for the match, and displayed a fine répertoire of grunts, sighs, and groans, many of which were doubtless genuine.

How It All Happened.

The first fall required 27 minutes and 48 seconds. Jim started the finish of his act by seizing Mike very firmly about the ears and then spinning him away. He repeated this operation seven times and then flitted the dazed Mike off the mat and over his head pirouetted several times and then flung Mike to the canvas, where he pinned him with ease. The encore on the act took 15 minutes and 50 seconds.

The preliminaries to the act also pleased the customers. Kola Kwariani dumped Jack Washburn to the mat with a body hold in 13 minutes, while Ray Steele threw Floyd Marshall with a crotch and half nelson in 17:27. Fred Grobmeyer disposed of Bill Nelson with a body scissors in 16:50.

SAFETY BRINGS VICTORY OVER CARDINAL TEAM

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Bears defeated the Cardinals, their rival professional eleven from the south side, for the third time this season at the Stadium last night, 9 to 7. Ten thousand watched the game, the first modern professional contest played indoors in the central states.

The Stadium gridiron measured approximately 80 yards from goal post to goal post, but the curved ends of the floor subtracted materially from this playing space. Miniature football apparently did not bother the players, although the spectators could not keep pace with the officials in the frequent subtractions of 20 yards, a special rule by which the ground to be gained was made equal to a regulation field.

Fans Seem Enthusiastic.

The proceeds will be donated to charity. Some of the spectators may have bought tickets last night because they were contributing to Chicago's unemployment campaign. Perhaps others attended because of the novelty of the contest. However, all seemed enthusiastic. The mezzanine and balconies showed few bare spaces when the teams started play.

Chief among the advantages was the nearness of the action. However, play along the sidelines was obscured from those seated directly over that side line. This was eliminated partly by moving the ball within the playing field without the customary out of bounds play.

The terrazzo floor of the Stadium was covered with six inches of dirt. Part of this was loam and offered fair footing, but the players frequently slipped in attempting a sharp cut or twist to avoid tacklers. It was announced last night negotiations were under way to bring the New York Giants here for a game with the Bears.

Score in First Period.

The Bears scored early in the first period, and with an additional two points on a safety when Nevers was thrown behind his own goal in the third quarter manufactured a lead which was large enough to win for them. The Cardinals plowed through for seven points in the last period.

The Bears' scoring opportunity came when Brumbaugh passed to Luke Johnsos on the Cards' 20 yard line. It was the same pass play which accounted for two touchdowns when the Bears won from Green Bay, the newly crowned professional champions. The Cards lost five more yards on offside. Then Joe Litzenich dashed inside tackle and was halted just short of the final line. Litzenich went over on the next play, and Luke Johnsos, kicking directly at the occupants in the first balcony, place kicked for the seventh point, with Brumbaugh holding the ball.

Nevers Thrown for Safety.

Nevers' safety came after Dick Nesbitt kicked 71 yards [by the announcer's measurement, since no lines were marked on the cardboard sides surrounding the gridiron]. Randolph passed wide to Nevers as he stood in the abbreviated end zone, and Johnsos tossed the Cardinal captain as he recovered the ball.

As the pistol shot ended the third quarter, Walter Holmer, who had replaced Red Grange at half back, cut through the Card line inside of right tackle and ran 45 yards before he was brought down on the south siders' four yard stripe. After the teams had changed goals, Holmer plunged within inches of the final line. On the next play Holmer crossed the goal line, but fumbled. The Cards recovered for a touchback and possession of the ball 20 yards out.

Cardinals March to Goal.

Shortly after this misplay the Cardinals unleashed their only sustained drive of the evening. Boyd started with a gain of 14 yards around end. This came after the customary 20 yards had been paced off by Referee Cahn, so the distance to the Bear goal line was actual and did not contain a mythical distance to be traversed twice. Nevers followed with three plunges at the center of the Bear line, advancing to within nine yards of a touchdown.

Gene Rose skirted the right end of the scrimmage line for four yards, and the hard hitting Nevers added the final distance on the next play. Nevers then kicked from placement directly at the world's greatest pipe organ, the bull's eye for the seventh point, and it was good, although deflected by Ralph Waldo Emmerson, the organist.

EASTERN GRID STARS WORK OUT AT N. U. TODAY

Leave Tonight for Game on Coast Dec. 27.

Twenty-two football players, representing 17 eastern and middle western universities and colleges, will assemble at Dyche stadium in Evanston today for their first workout as members of the all-star eastern team which is to play a western eleven at San Francisco Dec. 27.

The party will leave tonight over the Chicago and North Western railroad.

The game, which is staged by the Shriners of San Francisco for the benefit of their hospital for crippled children, will be the sixth annual contest. Senators Sell Muddy Ruel to Red Sox

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Muddy Ruel, once an iron man among American league catchers, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox by the Senators. Clark Griffith, president of the Washington team, announced the transaction today. The transfer was outright on a cash basis, he said, but he declined to disclose the amount involved.

For eight seasons, beginning with 1921 with the Red Sox, Ruel was behind the bat in more than 100 games a season. In 1924 he worked in 149 games, five short of a full season's schedule, and was credited with being a powerful help to the Senators in winning their first American league pennant.

For his entire big league career Muddy has hit an average of .282. His highest season's average was .316, in 1923. In the world series of 1924 he hit safely but twice. These blows came in the seventh game, one of them in the twelfth inning which started a rally that defeated the Giants.

Ruel started his big league career with the St. Louis Browns, who farmed him out in 1916 and 1917 to Memphis of the Southern association. The New York Yankees acquired him from that club in 1917 and after a year in the army he became their first string catcher in 1919 and 1920.

In the latter year he was sold to the Red Sox and in 1922 Washington bought him.

DIXIE SCHOOLS ORGANIZE NEW ATHLETIC GROUP

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The formation of a new conference within the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association was announced to the S. I. A. A. convention today by Dean G. W. Mead of Birmingham-Southern college.

He said Birmingham-Southern and Howard college of Birmingham, Southwestern of Memphis, Centre college of Kentucky, University of Chattanooga, Spring Hill of Mobile, and Mercer of Macon, Ga., have joined the new group, to be known as the Dixie conference. Dean Mead is president.

"We are still members of the S. I. A. A. and will continue to be," Dean Mead said. "These schools have found a common interest in scheduling games and feel they can work together for their own and the S. I. A. A.'s good."

Roy Peters, 27 years old, 1410 Irving Park boulevard, an Indian pugilist, had no defense when he faced Judge Leon Edelman in the Town Hall court yesterday. He took a fine of $25 and costs on the chin. Policeman J. P. Schiffer testified that he had to eject the boxer from the Sheridan road elevated station, where he was insulting persons waiting for trains Sunday night.

BOXING FANS TO SEE 60 ROUNDS IN CHARITY SHOW

The boxing card of sixty rounds for the charity show Friday night at the Coliseum under the auspicies of the managing committee of the Democratic party of Cook county, was completed yesterday by Matchmaker Jim Mullen and Promoter George Ferguson of the Coliseum club.

On the card, the longest professional program ever attempted, will be three eight round fights, four six round battles and three four rounders. It will be necessary to start the show at 7:45 because of the long program. The boxing commission consented to the 60 round card—40 rounds is the regular limit—because half of the receipts will go to charity.

Pantaleo Meets Neron.

Paul Pantaleo, Italian heavyweight, and George Neron, Greek champion, will meet in the eight round windup. Neron, who met Tuffy Griffith on his first Chicago appearance, thinks he can knock out Pantaleo while Paul feels that he can stop the Greek.

Ted Ross of South Chicago, and Gary Leach, another knockout puncher, will battle in a second eight rounder. Charles Retzlaff, the Duluth Dynamiter, and Antonio Mata, the Spanish bull fighter, are in a third eight rounder. Retzlaff, after a long string of knockout wins, lost recently to Mata on a foul in the first round.

Cancels Meets Lewandowski.

Ward committeemen and precinct captains of the city will canvass their districts and turn in the names of the deserving poor. Politics, race and creed will be no bar to the recipients of this charity, it was announced yesterday by Anton J. Cermak and Michael L. Igoe, members of the charity show committee.

STRIBLING MUST EARN TITLE WITH FISTS—CLINNIN

Young Stribling must fight for the world heavyweight championship after all—which is O. K. with the Striblings, according to Pa Stribling, father-manager of the Georgian.

Before Stribling's bout with Tuffy Griffith at the Stadium last Friday it was announced that the National Boxing association, of which Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission, is president, would recommend that Max Schmeling of Germany be replaced as titleholder by the winner.

Gen. Clinnin yesterday pointed out that at least two things must be done before the N. B. A. recognises Stribling. First, the body must vote to oust Schmeling for failure to defend the title within six months and, second, Stribling must defeat the next ranking contender.

SMITTY—THE WATER HAZARD

I FOUND A LITTLE CHRISTMAS TREE GROWING ALL ALONE IN AN EMPTY LOT— IT'S A DANDY LITTLE TREE, TOO
I'VE GOT AN IDEA IT WOULD LOOK SWELL IN OUR HOUSE ALL DOLLED UP WITH LIGHTS, COLORED BALLS AND THINGS— I WONDER WHO OWNS IT?
THERE IT STANDS ALL ALONE—NOBODY BOTHERS OR CARES ABOUT IT— I HOPE NOTHING HAPPENS TO IT BEFORE CHRISTMAS COMES

Bocaratone Whips Skirl at Jefferson

New Orleans, La., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. W. J. Potter's Bocaratone, carrying 109 pounds, scored easily in the Bayou Rigaud purse, feature of the Jefferson Park card here today. He led C. V. Whitney's Skirl to the wire by a length and a half. George Collins' Thistle Fyrn was third. The race was at a mile and 70 yards and the time of 1:44 1-5 was two seconds slower than the track record.

Skirl, with Russell up, got away fast and the boy let him step the half in :47 3-5. Skirl appeared to be going easily while Bocaratone was third. Skirl attempted to draw away on the turn but could not shake Bocaratone.

They drew away from the rest of the field and in the stretch Bocaratone, when called on, drew out to win.

Lena M. led the field to the far turn where she gave way and Hula, taking up the running, drew away to win by three lengths. Play Ball beat Mary Dale half a length for the place. The winner paid $7.60.

FOSTER, HERO OF NEGRO BASEBALL LEAGUE, BURIED

Andrew [Rube] Foster, founder of the Negro National Baseball league and noted colored pitcher, was buried at Lincoln cemetery at noon yesterday. The North Star lodge of Masons conducted the rites.

Foster was buried as he lived—the hero of thousands on the south side. Throngs on Sunday paid their last respects at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church, 50th street and Wabash avenue, where the Rev. John B. Redmond delivered the eulogy.

The auditorium was packed, while outside 3,000 stood in the snow and rain. Representatives of the Negro National league, the Umpires' Protective association, owners of various semi-pro ball clubs, and men and women from all walks of life attended the services.

The altar and each side of the huge bronze casket were banked with flowers.

NEW BLACKHAWK WING

Hawks Seek Second Victory Over Ottawa

The Chicago Blackhawks, tied for the American division leadership with the Boston Bruins in the National Hockey league race, will meet another strong Canadian sextet at the Stadium tonight when they cross sticks with the Ottawa Senators.

It will be the first appearance of the Senators here this season and the game promises to be a battle, as the skaters from over the northern border are smarting over the 3 to 0 beating the Hawks slipped them at Ottawa.

Ottawa's Front Line Strong.

Tonight's clash will give Chicago hockey fans a glimpse of the game's greatest forward line—Hec Kilrea, Frank Finnegan and "Bad Joe" Lamb. Last season this trio, which is skilled in every department of the game, pressed the Boston Bruins' stars, Wieland, Clapper and Gainer, for high scoring honors. If it had not been for the Ottawa policy of playing defensive hockey after getting the lead, they probably would have led the league. They amassed 143 points.

In front of the nets the visitors will have the famous "Ice Man" Connell, who has participated in 38 shutouts in the last four years.

Cripples Say They'll Play.

The Senators recently purchased the services of Leo Bourgault, defense star, from the New York Rangers. His mates in the defending zone will be Alex and Art Smith and Harold Starr. Len Grosvenor, Bill Touhey, Danny Cox, Art Gagne and Erie Fettinger will be worked in regular shifts on the forward line.

The Blackhawks' hospital list includes Miller, Adams, Somers, Wentworth, Gottselig and Graham, but all of them say they will be in there tonight, as will Eddie Vokes, young left winger, a new arrival from the Oakland team of the California league. Vokes probably will be teamed with Capt. Duke Dutkowski and Mush March.

TULSA TIES SHAMROCKS

Over the week-end the Tulsa Oilers moved into a tie for first place with the Shamrocks in the American Hockey league race, and now threaten to displace the Chicago sextet before the week is ended.

The only game booked for the Shamrocks this week will be against the Kansas City Pla-Mors, Thursday, at the Stadium, while the Oilers are carded for two engagements with the low flying St. Louis Flyers.

The Pla-Mors will bring a string of stars here to meet the Shamrocks, including Paddie Burns, highest salaried goalie in the league; Pete Mitchell, center, and Slim Halderson, defense and captain.

The Shamrocks are at Ann Arbor, working out on the University of Michigan's rink. Capt. Flash Dennenay is working out at Ann Arbor with the expectation of being in the lineup against the Pla-Mors.

The American league schedule for the week:

Tonight—Buffalo at Minneapolis.
Tomorrow—Buffalo at Duluth.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR TRAPPERS TO SET OUT SNARES

Fur Harvest Begins with Snowfall.

BY BOB BECKER.

With winter well under way and a blanket of snow covering many thousands of miles of timberlands and lowlands in North America, trappers have flung their lines of snares, deadfalls, and steel traps over wide areas. Although certain sections of the country are studded with sets to catch furbearers, there is one thing forest travelers and hunters can be thankful for.

The woods are not filled with gun sets placed along trails to kill large game, but which may go off and fill a fellow's legs with slugs in case he should trip the string attached to the trigger. Such is the situation in eastern Siberia, according to William Morden of Chicago, big game hunter, world traveler, and scientific collector for the American Museum of Natural History in New York who, in the course of his address before the Camp Fire club of Chicago a few days ago, told of this hidden shotgun menace on Siberian game trails.

Hunted Tigers in Siberia.

Morden was in eastern Siberia hunting big tigers of that region. In the timber where he and his party were trying to secure several beasts the trails were so infested with gun sets that the white hunters did not dare travel through the timber without the aid of natives, who knew where these dangerous weapons were placed.

If the deer, elk, bear, or small game hunters in this country had to contend with loaded guns of this type, cocked and ready to go off as soon as anything touched a string stretched across the trail, hunting might soon go into a decline.

Most of these gun sets were out to get wild boars for the native Russian hunters. The boars weigh several hundred pounds and are fine eating, so they are wanted for the table.

Employ Gas Pipe Weapon.

When the natives do not have muzzle loading shotguns to rig up along the trails they load a chunk of gas pipe with powder and slugs and slay the boars with that primitive outfit.

The most interesting gun set which Morden showed his Chicago audience was one which utilized a bow and arrow as well as a muzzle loading shotgun. A string across a trail released the bowspring to send a blunt arrow on its short flight. The arrow hit the hammer of the shotgun, which exploded a cap, which set off powder, which hurled slugs to kill the boar or the tiger. It looked as crazy as one of Rube Goldberg's cartoon inventions, but worked to perfection.

COLISEUM MAT CARD THURSDAY WILL AID NEEDY

Don George, who recently defeated Gus Sonnenberg, will make his first appearance in Chicago against Dan Koloff. George is training at a loop gymnasium.

Everett Marshall, who will meet Frank Judson in the semi-windup, also has arrived. Marshall has victories over Ed [Strangler] Lewis and Joe Stecher, both former champions.

Net proceeds will be turned over to Gov. Emmerson's unemployment committee.

Bourbonnais, Ill., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—After electing Ken Clothier of Bloomington captain, the St. Viator college basketball team defeated De Paul university of Chicago, 13 to 12, tonight. The game was marked by close defensive work. De Paul led at the half, 6 to 4.

Catholic Cage Teams to Play for Charity

The Notre Dame basketball team will meet a picked team of stars from the Knights of Columbus Basketball league in Chicago's first charity cage program tomorrow night at the Coliseum. The proceeds of the program, which also includes games between De La Salle of Chicago, Catholic high school city champions last season, and De La Salle of Joliet and between St. Patrick and Aquinas, will go to Cardinal Mundelein's fund for the Associated Catholic Charities.

The intermissions between the basketball games will be enlivened by musical programs by the bands of De La Salle institute and the Auburn Park Lions' club.

On the Notre Dame team which Coach Keogan will bring to Chicago will be Frank Carideo and Marchmont Schwartz, back field stars of the Irish football team. Coach Keogan has promised to use the two players in the Notre Dame lineup, both playing guard positions.

Spectators Choose Team.

The K. of C. quintet was chosen Sunday by popular vote of the spectators at the various divisions, the fans selecting the players of greatest merit. Final choice will be made from the following:

Kurka, Lafayette; Rakowski, Washington; Mahoney, De Soto; Kluchinskas, Damen; Mehelek, Marquette; Cunningham, Hemingway; F. Dindell, Ketteler; Lewis, Setters; Hookem, Marquette; Skonieczny, Sherman; Mangan, O'Connell; King, Feehan; Carraro, Cardinal Bestwick, Ravenswood; Salvino, Carroll; Hustield, Hughes; Bandy, University; Dunn, Barry; Colovitz, Oak Park; Flood, De La Salle; Dillon, Hildebrand; Brown, Bowling; Ivers, Madonna; McCarthy, Englewood; Murphy, Damen; Zukor, Santa Maria; Connolly, Loyola-Ryde Park; and Wallewski, San Salvador.

The encounter between De La Salle of Chicago and De La Salle of Joliet with the same players who won the championship of the national Catholic tournaments in 1928 and 1929, looms as one of the best of the evening.

Teams in Shape.

Coach Jimmy Groark of De La Salle of Chicago reports that his 1929 champions are as powerful as when they won the national title. De La Salle of Joliet's 1928 titleholders also are rounding into form.

The St. Patrick-Aquinas game will be another battle. Aquinas team fans still are of the opinion that St. Patrick's one point victory which gave them the championship over Aquinas in the Knights of Columbus league last year is not a true indication of the respective merits of the two contenders.

CAPT. CAMPBELL SEEKS NEW AUTO RACING RECORD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British automobile racer, in a letter received today by the American Automobile association, said he probably will arrive in the United States Jan. 27 for another campaign to raise the world's speed record for the "flying mile."

He will bring a specially built racer, with parts from the machine he piloted in 1928 to a record of 206.95 miles an hour, and probably will make his trials at Daytona Beach, Fla.

His goal is 250 miles an hour, though he has said the car may develop 270 miles an hour on a perfect course.

AFTER '30 EXIT SLOW RECOVERY IS SEEN AHEAD

Believes Slump Has Run Its Course.

BY O. A. MATHER.

When everybody talks about better times ahead, it is rather likely that the wish will be translated into fact. And so now every one is talking about a revival in business next year, although there is much difference of opinion as to whether it will appear early or late and whether it will be rapid or slow.

That depression has about run its course and that gradual recovery may be expected next spring is the view of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Survey in its current number. It points out that the depression now has run more than a year and about as long as such periods in previous cycles.

"Casting one thing up with another," it says, "it seems that we are at least as favorably situated for getting out of the depression in 1931 as we were in 1922. This leads us to believe that improvement will soon be on the way. As in 1922, it is likely to come along gradually, but by late spring it should be sufficiently evident as to be conceded on all sides.

Retail Trade Spurt Now.

"A spurt in retail trade on account of the holidays and gradual tapering off of manufacturing operations are about all that can be looked for during the remaining days of 1930. These are merely the seasonal expectations. It is unreasonable to expect anything more than this with the prevailing feeling, as always is the case after a year of declining business, that the sooner the year is over the better.

"Nor need we look for a sudden burst of activity as soon as the new calendar is hung. The ending of a year has not any particular economic significance. The blight of winter will continue to rest upon the out-of-doors trades for some months. And such early revival as there is in manufacturing will most certainly be moderate on account of the conservatism with which retailers and wholesalers anticipate consumer demand after a year of depression.

"Nevertheless, some quickening will doubtless be experienced soon after the first of the year. Expectations of betterment in the steel industry are shown in the firming of prices and the rise in unfilled orders for delivery next year. Automobile and building construction have declined to the lowest level in some years. The current volume of construction contracts is the lowest in nine years, while the output of automobiles is comparable to that of the time when automobile manufacturing was an infant industry."

Sums Up Situation.

Some of the favorable and unfavorable features of the present situation are cast up by Stephen I. Miller, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, in his monthly letter.

"Commodity prices have not yet developed the firmness which is needed before business can be said to have actually turned the corner," he says. "The general business indices are not particularly cheering. Car loadings and electric output show further contraction and building construction shows no sign of a quick recovery. Automobile production registers a slight increase over a year ago, but bank clearings are down by more than 40 per cent.

"On the other hand, collections continue on a fairly satisfactory basis, retail buying appears to have taken a spurt in many markets, money is cheap and plentiful (perhaps too plentiful), and the unemployment problem is being met with vigor and resourcefulness. Installment contracts are being worked off without an epidemic of defaults and repossessions are strikingly small in volume. We are hanging on and carrying on, and the courageous spirit which has brought us thus far will finally take us through the breakers to a safe landing."

Slight Change for Better Is Noted in News of Wheat

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A slight change for the better in the general character of the news was apparent in wheat yesterday. Foreigners showed more interest in Canadian grain, with export sales estimated at 600,000 to 1,000,000 bu in all positions, and there were indications of further business soon. Reports of rains in Argentina and Australia where harvesting is on with claims of damage in parts of the latter country attracted a little attention, especially abroad.

It was the same old story in the old crop deliveries of wheat at Chicago with the Stabilization corporation taking all the old May the trade desired to sell at 81c and the new style at 81¼c. Locals and commission houses were selling ¼c above these figures. The finish was at the same figures on Saturday with old May at 81@81⅛c, and new at 81⅛c. Old December was 77¼c and March, 79¼c.

July Wheat at New Low.

Scattered selling of July wheat carried the new crop month down ¾c to 69⅝c early, a new low for the season, but strength in Winnipeg caused short covering and a rally to 71⅛c followed, with the close at 70⅞@71c, showing a net gain of 1⅛c for the day.

There was further closing of spreads during the day between Chicago and Winnipeg, but the selling in the latter market failed to have the depressing effect as of late and the close there was 2⅛@2⅜c higher. Premier Bennett of Canada has returned from Europe and was reported as in conference with John McFarland, the new head of the wheat pool.

Liverpool Ignores Decline.

Liverpool ignored the drastic decline in North America Saturday and finished ⅛@½d higher for the day, shorts covering on the less favorable weather reports from the southern hemisphere. It is officially estimated that Italy will have to import 94,000,000 bu wheat this season, of which only 34,000,000 bu have been secured so far. Buenos Aires was ¼c lower for the day, with late cables reporting generally fair weather.

A rather steady decrease is being reported in the domestic visible supply of wheat. The total of 189,620,000 bu showed a reduction of 1,621,000 bu during the last week, and compares with 181,977,000 bu a year ago. Owing to small world shipments the amount on ocean passage decreased 5,752,000 bu for the week and is 37,504,000 bu, against 26,000,000 bu last year.

Corn Closes at Top.

At no time were corn prices as low as the finish on Saturday. Local shorts and professionals were fair buyers from the start and toward the last there was short covering which lifted prices sharply with some stop loss orders uncovered, and sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves. The finish was at the top with net gains of 1⅛@1⅜c, old December being 71⅝@71¼c; March, 74⅛@74⅜c; May, 76¼@76⅜c, and July, 77⅛@77⅝c.

"All the wheat held by the Canading pool has been hedged and 85 per cent of the wheat in western Canada has left farmers' hands," according to John I. McFarland in discussing the grain situation with friends in Chicago. With wheat in Winnipeg around 60c a bu, he regards it as a good investment, the price being the lowest known in western Canada. It means about 30c to the farmer, which is regarded too low. Mr. McFarland was reported as conferring with Premier Bennett at Ottawa yesterday and it was expected that he would decide to permit the provincial governments to back up the banks in their assistance to the wheat pool, so that there would be no trouble about financing wheat holdings during the season. It is expected that there will be around 75,000,000 bu of wheat carried over into the season of 1931. With America out of the export position, Mr. McFarland believes that Canada will have a good show of selling a large quantity of wheat.

EXPLAINS ORDER FOR REMOVAL OF STORAGE GRAIN

The issuance of orders removing several thousand bushels of wheat from privately owned grain warehouses by the federal farm board's grain stabilization corporation to its Kansas City warehouse was made the cause for criticism by grain traders in Chicago and Kansas City yesterday.

Walcott & Lincoln, a Kansas City grain elevator company, was called upon to deliver 45,000 bu into the Missouri Pacific elevator, operated by Hall Baker grain company, a farm board subsidiary, according to dispatches from Kansas City. This move was characterized by some as retaliation by the government financed organization for previous antagonism shown by the Missouri firm toward the farm board's "interference in private business."

George S. Milnor, president of the stabilization corporation, denied any ulterior motives being the basis for its buying, selling, or storing of grain. He said that the corporation's elevator in Kansas City had some empty space, which was being filled by wheat against which storage rates were being paid. Other firms besides Wolcott & Lincoln were being asked to deliver wheat owned by the corporation into this elevator, he said.

METRO-GOLDWIN PAYS $40 A SHARE DIVIDEND; NET RISES TO $9,924,869

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 15.—The Metro-Goldwyn Pictures corporation, the film producing subsidiary of Loews, Inc., has declared a dividend of $25,000,000 in favor of the parent company, which owns all of Metro-Goldwyn common stock. This big dividend is revealed in the Metro-Goldwyn annual report, issued yesterday, and covering the fiscal year ended Aug. 31.

The dividend is equivalent to more than $40 a share on the 620,000 common shares, which are carried on the Metro-Goldwyn books at $5 a share. Net earnings for the fiscal year were $9,924,869, compared with $8,818,918 in the preceding period. The year's earnings were carried to surplus, bringing it up to $30,307,459, and after paying $317,905 in preferred dividends and the $25,000,000 dividend on the common stock, surplus was reduced to $4,989,554.

Officials explained the big dividend as a bookkeeping transaction designed to adjust the surpluses of the two companies. Heretofore dividends declared by Loews have been charged against that company's surplus, although a large part of earnings have come from Metro-Goldwyn Pictures. The dividend is carried on the Metro-Goldwyn books under accounts payable as due to Loews, Inc.

Analyzes the Long Range Possibilities of Farming

BY SCRUTATOR.

A merciless analysis of the long range possibilities of farming has been issued by the Horse Association of America. Among the conclusions reached are these: That there is no prospect of a permanent increase in the price of farm products and that prices realized for farm lands in the future will depend principally on their net earning power, interest and taxes first deducted.

Marshaling of facts accompanies these assumptions. Certain authoritative voices are quoted to show trends that lead up to them. It is held, first of all, that there is now going on a rapid decline in birth rates, holding down the number of potential customers of farm products, while overproduction of foodstuffs is now world wide. Stationary population is expected to be reached in the United States, Canada and northern Europe within thirty-five years.

Output Exceeds Consumption.

"The world now has a population about 20 per cent greater than in 1900, but it has a wheat and rye production 40 per cent greater than in 1900. Of oats, corn and barley, considered jointly, the world now produces about a third more than in 1900."

Transportation facilities, the Horse association points out, favor foreign producers selling in the world markets. Wheat moves, according to this document, from the lower river valleys of the Argentine to Liverpool more cheaply than from Whitehall, Ill., to Chicago and more cheaply from Australia to Liverpool than from western Nebraska to Chicago.

The interesting theory that men of today, and women, too, eat less than those of former eras is brought out also. It is claimed with plausibility that men who fire furnaces with automatic stokers need less nourishment than those who fired by hand and that even farmers, riding on their machinery, neglect to stow away the food they did in years past.

As for clothing, that also has seen its changes—"formerly it took two sheep working a full year to clothe one woman, while now two silkworms can do it any Sunday afternoon."

This pamphlet was written to show that the farmer can best serve his own interests by making consumers of grains on his own farm, by using more horses and fewer motorized machines. That, of course, is controversial and is an expression of a belief which has, rightly or wrongly, enjoyed no particular favor among the American farming population in recent years.

World Situation.

The situation of the world's farmers is just as parlous as painted, if grains and other staples are considered. In other farm produced materials there has been a steady rise. California shipped more oranges in 1930 than in any other year. Farm income at present is down; so is all other income, but the new dietary habits are about as expensive as the old ones and there will always be a need for a large producing class on the soil.

It is probably true that we will need a relatively smaller proportion of the whole population doing that work. Grain farmers who expect to remain grain farmers would benefit by having more animal consumers. A look thirty years ahead, as we have here a look thirty years back, will undoubtedly show some of the marked trends of today reversed. Farming is not going to go on as a no-profit enterprise. The no-profit men are eventually forced out and the others remain. While this movement exists it is as easy to paint farming in colors too gloomy as it is to paint too brightly.

New York, Dec. 15.—Today's final stock list was smiling, but with little to smile about. United States Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Sears-Roebuck, and other bigwigs of the market accustomed to occupying front seats and lending tone to the show, all counted themselves in on it. United States Steel and American Can strutted a gain of a full point each and the upshowings of the others ranged generally from larger fractions to a point. By the well worn rule of reckoning the market was entitled to classification on the "up" side.

But truth must be told. Outside of the pivotals practically every single solitary stock of the list was bogged to the eyes when the gong ended the

STEADY SELLING CUTS DEEP INTO STOCK VALUES

Chicago Prices Fall Below Previous Lows.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The steady selling stream cut deeper into stock values on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The comparative buoyancy of leading industrial shares on the New York exchange proved of little assistance to a market struggling against a relentless current of liquidation.

A large number of shares, including market leaders and less prominent issues, were carried down through previous resistance points. The session was one of the busiest on the exchange in recent weeks. Transactions reached a total for the day of 227,500 shares.

The floating supply of bearish rumors was on the increase as the market continued to slide. In customers' rooms and on the floor of the exchange one heard numerous versions of "what is overhanging the market." Some of the stories show amazing vitality despite their age. Knowing persons found willing listeners for any stories, no matter how far fetched, that were supposed to explain the state of affairs in the market.

Gypsum Down 3¼ Points.

One of the sharpest losses of the day was sustained by U. S. Gypsum, which went sailing down 3¼ points, although it closed above its low for the year. Middle West Utilities, the market's pacemaker, sold below its previous low, then edged up to finish a bare fraction above it. Insull Utility was hard pressed and fell through a new minimum quotation of 33⅛. New Continental Chicago shares slipped off to 6¼ and Majestic receded to 5⅝ and closed only fractionally above those prices.

Despite the action of directors in voting to maintain the $2.50 annual dividend on the stock, North American Car common sold 1⅜ below Saturday's final price, which, up to that time, had been the year's low.

The high priced Insull shares, Commonwealth Edison and Public Service, sold ex-rights. The rights were traded in on the exchange for the first time. Edison rights were quoted around 12½ and Public Service rights at 17.

Drops 10 Points.

Public Service closed at 203, as compared with its previous price of 230, equivalent to a net loss of 10 points. Closing quotations on Public Service no par and Edison were equivalent approximately to last week's final prices.

The trading in the motor shares was dull and in most cases was made at reduced prices. Fractional recessions were sustained by Bendix and Borg Warner.

Despite the pronounced weakness in all sections of the list the market was orderly throughout the day. The spread in between sales was narrow in most cases.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A lower opening in the market for coffee futures, on reports of easier Brazilian exchange rates, was followed by rallies on covering and trade buying. No. 7 contracts closed net 12 higher to 1 lower. Sales 4,000 bags. Santos contracts closed net 9 lower to 6 higher. Sales 18,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos: December, 9.55c; March, 9.11c; May, 8.90c; July, 8.80c; September, 8.69c. No. 7 prices follow:

day. Steels, oils, amusements, coppers, rails, specialties, all looked like they had been kicked by an army mule, the losses faring anywhere from 1 to more than 9 points.

Strong Arm Support.

So it seems that interests with a mission to perform were doing their strong arm stuff in behalf of the front pew holders and letting everything else go hang.

The fact of the matter is, the market was in a mood for further reaction today and everybody knew it. An accumulation of selling orders brought on by the weak closing on Saturday were dumped in at the very outset and before their influence had spent itself more than 250 issues slumped, including United States Steel, American Telephone, American Radiator, Bethlehem Steel, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Columbia Gas, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, International Harvester, Johns-Manville, New York Central, Paramount, Phillips Petroleum, Radio Corporation, Texas Corporation, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Carbide, United Corporation and Westinghouse.

Early Selling Deluge.

The deluge of selling was intensified by the many transactions involving blocks of stock from 2,000 to 16,000 shares. It was one of the heaviest opening waves of liquidation the market has had to withstand in weeks.

Selling went on unchecked for the better part of the first hour. Then the "next friends" of the market began to get busy in behalf of their favorites and by dint of vigorous buying succeeded in getting something that passed for a rally afoot. United States Steel, which had been forced down to 135⅞, recovered to 138⅛ for a net gain of more than a point and a half, but eased back to 137½.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Mutual savings banks in New York state report a gain in deposits during November of $6,790,271, after a decline during October of $4,351,026 and a decline during November, 1929, of $41,152,590.

Permission to issue and sell $2,461,000 first mortgage bonds, in order to raise money for construction work, has been granted the Central Illinois Public Service company by the Illinois commerce commission. They will bear interest at 5 per cent payable semi-annually.

Expenditure of $125,000 is planned in the development of a new unit at the United Electric Coal company's strip mine at Duquoin, Ill. Local officials said the new unit will materially increase the daily output.

Asphalt sales of Lion Oil Refining company in the middle west during the last six months of 1930 will approximate 20,000 tons, T. H. Barton, president, announced. He said orders have necessitated operating the company's plant to capacity since it was placed in production last summer.

Officials of Sears, Roebuck & Co. state that by the end of the year notes payable are expected to show a reduction of $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 from the $20,798,000 at the end of 1929. The company has not been using 25 per cent of lines of bank credit offered, they said, and the notes, which mature at different times, are being paid as they come due.

Auburn Automobile company has placed order commitments in excess of $9,000,000 for materials to be used in its 1931 cars. Deliveries are to start at once. Ohio and Indiana manufacturers have been successful bidders for $6,000,000 of this business with Michigan and Illinois concerns sharing most of the remainder.

Hogs slipped back to last week's closing quotations soon after a 15@25c higher opening yesterday, closing at the low point of the day, in spite of the fact that receipts are running far below normal for this time of year. Fat lambs advanced 25@35c, while prime 1,085 lb long yearling steers sold at $14.50, the highest price paid for that weight since last May.

The expected decrease in hog receipts came yesterday, but strength in the market was short lived. The extreme top moved up 15c, at $8.25, on the early bulge, while the general average for the day, at $7.90, showed 10c gain, but closing sales were barely steady with Saturday's market. Prevailing quotations are still 25@40c lower than a week ago.

All interests purchased sparingly despite the 1@2c per pound advance in the wholesale price of fresh pork loins. Receipts of hogs at the eleven leading markets yesterday at 126,000 were below any corresponding Monday in many years and showed a decrease of 40 per cent compared with a year ago and 23 per cent decrease compared with two years ago. Chicago had only 35,000, against 77,890 a year ago.

January Hogs Bring $8.40.

Demand on the hog futures market centered on January contracts at 5@10c higher prices, light weights bringing $8.40 and mediums $8.30 for that month's delivery. Heavy for January delivery were offered at $8.35 and February contracts at $8.60. March light weights were bid $9.00. On the "to arrive" market light hogs for today's delivery were bid $8.00 and mediums $7.90.

Barring a few fancy yearlings that sold for the Christmas trade at the highest prices in several months, the trend in the cattle market ruled weak to lower again, medium and weighty stock showing the sharpest losses. Some cattle averaging 1,200@1,500 lb that lacked high finish sold as much as $1.25@1.50 below the high point of last week. Few sales were made above $13.00, while choice 1,349 lb beeves sold at $12.75, top for that weight.

Some long fed 1,500 lb steers sold for $11.00. Cows and heifers showed last week's full decline. Calves sold barely steady. Stockers and feeders were unchanged.

Sheep Receipts Drop Short.

The increase in Chicago sheep receipts was more than offset by decreases at the other leading centers, resulting in an active market at the advance in prices. Most good to choice grades sold at $8.00@8.25, all interests paying up to $8.35 at the finish, when only 7,000 were estimated for today at Chicago. Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and firm. Feeding lambs met good demand at steady prices.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 8,000 cattle, 33,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep, against 12,262 cattle, 30,512 hogs, and 22,327 sheep on the previous Tuesday and 6,459 cattle, 43,712 hogs, and 19,304 sheep a year ago.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The break in futures had an unsettling effect on raw sugar today, and as no sales were reported prices were nominally unchanged to 3.35c for spots, duty paid.

Except for a little steadiness at the outset, raw futures were weak under active general selling, which was prompted by reports that the German delegation at the Brussels conference had refused to reduce exports as proposed in the plans for the stabilisation of sugar. The market opened unchanged to 2 points higher on covering and some trade buying influenced by the better showing of the London market, but the news that the Brussels conference had broken up led to active selling, which appeared to come principally from houses with Cuban connections.

Prices declined 12@13 points below the best levels of the forenoon, but there was enough covering near the close to check the decline and cause slight rallies, with final prices 9@11 points below the previous close. Approximate sales 80,900 tons. Closing prices follow:

Refined prices were reduced 10 points by refiners to the basis of 4.65c for fine granulated.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Cotton goods opened quiet today, with gray goods prices easier. Finished goods were being bought in small lots. Rayon was irregular in price with business being done on low luster and fine Denier yarns. Raw silk was easier, silk goods quiet. Moderate lots of wool goods were being sold. Burlaps showed little change.

Inland Waterway Development

The large appropriations being made at the present time for development of inland rivers and waterways assure Woods Brothers Corporation of a very substantial volume of business in the future. As the largest inland waterway engineering unit in the country, Woods Brothers is able to handle this business on a profitable basis.

WOODS BROTHERS Corporation common stock, now selling around $19, earned $3.77 per share before Federal Taxes in the first ten months this year. As an attractive and safe investment with a high return value, we particularly recommend it for purchase at this time.

Purchase Can Be Made on Easy Partial Payment Plan

RECORD CROWD PREDICTED FOR REALTY BANQUET

Insull to Talk on "Faith in Chicago."

BY AL CHASE.

Today and tomorrow are the two most active days in the year for the Chicago Real Estate board. Tonight that organization will hold its forty-eight annual banquet and tomorrow it will have its annual election at which Mark Levy will be named as president of the board. Samuel Insull, the principal speaker at tonight's banquet at the Stevens, will have for the subject of his address "Faith in Chicago," it was announced yesterday. This coincides with the keynote to the banquet as outlined by Louis T. Orr, chairman of the banquet committee, which he said would be confidence in our home city.

LOUIS T. ORR. [Matzene Photo.]

The dinner, at which more than a thousand are expected to attend, will be preceded by a reception from 6 to 6:30 p. m., with former presidents of the realty board in line. Actual gastronomic activities are supposed to start at 6:30 but we can't recall any real estate board banquet that started before 7 o'clock.

To Announce Slogan Winner.

Anyway, the first feature of the dinner will be the announcement of the 1931 real estate slogan and the award of the prize by the contest jury which consists of Henry G. Zander, chairman, Edward S. Judd, S. Charles Iversen and John R. Magill. This committee has given consideration to more than 800 entries.

Following this will come some remarks by Newton C. Farr, retiring president of the Chicago Real Estate board, after which the address of the evening will be delivered by Mr. Insull. Mr. Orr promises many surprises in both entertainment and decoration and predicts that it will be the largest and most successful gathering of its kind the board has ever held.

Will Lecture on Coöps.

Harry T. Atkinson, director of divisional activities for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will lecture on "How to Organize and Market Coöperative Apartments" in the course of the fundamentals of real estate offered by the Central College of Commerce of the Y. M. C. A. in cooperation with the Chicago Real Estate board this evening.

Georgia and Charles Motuliak have sold the thirty-one flat building at 6413-25 Vernon avenue, to Mary E. Miller, of Plano, for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $72,000, Mrs. Miller conveyed in part payment a 300 acre farm at Plano. The W. E. Meyers Agency & Loan corporation was broker.

COTTON NEAR 9c LEVEL; LOWEST IN RECENT YEARS

Cotton prices suffered another decline yesterday making four consecutive days on the down grade, with a range of close to 40 points for the day and a close at a fair rally from the inside figure, with net losses in Chicago of 12 to 20 points and in other markets 14 to 22 points. Pressure of liquidators was again a feature, while buying support came from new investors and to cover previous commitments. There was nothing encouraging in the news to induce large buying, although the stock market had a stronger tone and grains were also firmer. Liverpool was weak and closed 12 to 13 points lower with sales of 3,000 bales.

Spot cotton lost 15 points, with New York down to 9.45c, New Orleans, 9.05c; Galveston, 9.15c, and Houston, 9.10c. Thomson & McKinnon say that a year ago today May cotton sold in New York at 17.35c, and they feel that a decline of 7.35c a pound in a fall due to 20 points in the full visible-tudes through which cotton has gone or is apt to go. Prices follow:

The Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust company failed last June for $2,000,000.

Seeking Safety.

What I want is a safe investment where I can put what little money I make at interest, so that when the time comes in twenty-five or thirty years that I can't work and need this money I can get it without losing half of it. What do you think of life insurance for a safe investment? Would you recommend these companies: Bankers Life Insurance company of Lincoln, Neb., Bankers Life company of Des Moines, Ia., and the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York? What about government bonds? What about Canadian bonds for a safe investment? Any information you can give me will be appreciated.—L. D. R.

The insurance companies that you mention all have excellent records. They are managed by experienced men. Each of them pays just claims promptly and each enjoys an excellent rating from the policy holders' standpoint.

Mutual Life Insurance company of New York is one of the oldest and largest of the mutual companies. Bankers Life Insurance company, Lincoln, Neb., was incorporated in 1887. It has had a fairly rapid and persistent growth. Its investments are of good quality and yield an excellent return. The same might be said of Bankers Life company, Des Moines, Ia., a $134,000,000 company which was incorporated in 1879.

The amount to be invested in insurance and the types of policies to be selected vary in different cases and depend upon the needs and circumstances of the individual.

There is no sounder form of investment than United States government bonds. They are especially suitable for one who is not familiar with security dealings. These bonds afford an excellent foundation on which to base an investment account.

Security Frauds.

I should like to know if you can give me some information concerning the complete story of a successful attempt to swindle people out of their earnings. This material is needed for a paper to be written for an economics course at the university.—M. G.

Write to the Better Business Bureau of New York City, Inc., 280 Broadway, and request a copy of their recently published booklet, "During Business Readjustment." Several such stories are contained in this booklet.

Company Is Dead.

I have held 200 shares of Amalgamated Oil company of Nevada since 1922. Is the company in existence and have the shares any value?—R. G. M.

This company's charter was forfeited in 1926. It is dead. There have been no published quotations on its stock for several years.

A CHICAGO INSTITUTION

that's matching Chicago in growth

As the only Multiple Line Insurance Organization with Home Offices in Chicago, the Affiliated Continental Companies continue to enjoy the preference that Chicagoans invariably give to a local institution which serves them well. Thus Continental's 1930 business has maintained its normal rate of increase over previous normal years, and its already strong financial condition has been materially improved. Ask your agent or broker for a Continental policy the next time you require life, accident and health, liability or property insurance, or surety-fidelity bonds.
